Illud vero scias, quod nomina intelligentiarum presidentium unicuique planete secundum hunc modum constituuntur: nempe ex figura mundi, colligendo literas ab ortu corporis planete, secundum successionem signorum per singulos gradus, atque ex singulis gradibus, ab ipso planete aspectibus [illegible] gradu ascendentis. Consimili ratione nomina principum et malorum spirituum sub singulis planetis presidentium, [illegible] retrogrado facta progressione, contra successionem signorum ab initio septime domus. Nomen vero supreme intelligentie, quam plerique animam mundi arbitrantur, ex quatuor cardinibus figure mundi colligitur. Nomen secundum rationem iam traditam, et per oppositum modum colligitur nomen magni demonis ex super quatuor angulis cardinibus. Simili literis nomina magnorum spirituum, presidentium aereis potestatibus, colligitur super quatuor angulis domorum succedentium, ita ut eliciatur ad nomen boni spiritus eliciendum, fiat processio secundum successionem signorum incipientium a gradu ascendentis, ad nomen vero mali spiritus [illegible] incipientium a gradu ascendentis.

Illud autem scias, quod nomina malorum spirituum, per has tabulas, extrahuntur ex nominibus tam bonorum quam malorum spirituum, ita tamen si ingrediemur tabulam cum nomine spiritus boni, secundi ordinis, nomen mali spiritus extractum erit, de ordine principum et gubernatorum. Si autem ingrediamur tabulam cum nomine spiritus boni, tertii ordinis, vel cum nomine mali spiritus gubernatoris, quocunque modo extractum sit, per has tabulas, sive ex figura celesti, nomina, que que ex his procedunt, erunt malorum demonum ministrorum inferioris ordinis.

Ad illud autem sciendum, quod quoties ingredimur tabulam hanc cum spiritibus bonis, secundi ordinis, ipsa nomina extracta, sunt secundi ordinis, et, si sub illis extrahimus nomen mali spiritus, ipse erit de superiore gubernatorum ordine; idem est si ingrediemur cum nomine spiritus mali superioris ordinis. Si vero ingrediemur hanc tabulam cum nominibus spirituum tertii ordinis, sive spiritum ministrorum, tam bonorum quam malorum nomina extracta, erunt spirituum ministrorum inferioris ordinis.

Multi autem magorum [illegible] non parvus auctoritatis, cuiusmodi tabulas latinis literis extenderunt, voluerunt ita ut per easdem tabulas, etiam ex nomine officii vel effectus, [illegible] nomen spiritus tam boni quam mali, [illegible] per eundem modum, quo superius traditus est, accepto nomine officii vel effectus, in columna literarum, in sua linea, sub suo sidere. [illegible] quidem gravis autor est [illegible], qui cum hanc calculationem [illegible] literis tradiderit, [illegible] aliarum linguarum, literas mutare [illegible] operationibus signis assignatas. [illegible] de nominibus spirituum eliciendis, [illegible] primus ille extitit, Sed ergo atque [illegible] ad hanc [illegible] spirituum nomina [illegible] [illegible] constituit, per nomen spiritus efficiunt, et quibus nomen [illegible] bonorum constituitur. Hoc autem artificium ita perficitur, primo in locandis vocalibus illarum literarum, quae per calculationem figure celestis [illegible] ad nomina spirituum, secundi ordinis bonorum, atque malorum presidentium, et gubernatorum eliciendum, est advertendum, ut hoc in bonis ita perficitur, [illegible] consideratis stellis, quae literas constituunt, et [illegible] a gradu stelle [illegible] in ordine [illegible] remanent, prosequatur a gradu ascendentis, et ubi numerus ille desinit, ibi est pars vocalis prime litere [illegible] ergo ab illa, proveniet vocalis illarum literarum [illegible] secundum [illegible] et [illegible] in [illegible] stelle, que primus est in ordine ea vocalis prime litere [illegible], demereat in [illegible] parte, secunde litere [illegible] gradu stelle, que secunda est in ordine, a stella prima [illegible] quod remanet, proiiciendo ab ascendente, et ubi est pars [illegible] vocalis, atque procedendo per secundam stellam, ea est vocalis secunde litere, et ita in sequentibus investigabis vocales sequentium literarum semper subtrahendo gradum stelle sequentis, a gradu stelle precedentis [illegible] et [illegible] atque in operationibus in nominibus [illegible] secundum successionem signorum in nominibus [illegible] in bonis spiritibus gradus [illegible] domus in istis [illegible] domus.

First it is good Arte allwayes for the Mr, that must begin this Arte, to leave swearinge, and all drunken company, yf he do knowe them; he must allway goe very cleane apparilled that must worke in this Arte; he must allway keepe his promyses, yf he make any, and not breake them; he must be good to the poore when he seeth neede.

He must allway keepe his Skrier in cleane apparrell; this is the begin-ninge to bringe them to Arte. +

The Mr must also have 1. or 2. good bookes to call by; as after you shall here fynde.

I. (Spirits in the stone.)

The first Spyritt that he must call, must be the ruler of ye Deade whose name is Assasell, and he must call him by night in the hower of ☉. And when he is come he must require one that is under him to serve hym, And yf he say noe, ye must not be over hasty wth him, but let him goe, and call him an other nighte; And when he is come And then charge him in the name of his maker, that he give you one, And then he wyll, whome ye doe aske. And then you must call one into ye stone whose name is called Asael; all this is for the stone; And when he is come, yf he be not to your sighte, you must first bynde hym to tarry, And then when you have bounde hym, you must charge him to appeare to ye owne sighte, And yf he come not, you must goe and [illegible] some thinge, as you thinke good, and charge him most straightly to [illegible] it, and tell you in what place of the house, or field it lyeth in, yet [illegible]. And when he hath [illegible] you truly, then say thus: O thou wicked [illegible] and cursed Spyritt, why doest thou [illegible] me [illegible] Then you [illegible] and say he doeth lye, Then you [illegible] in a contrary place or in some [illegible], And charge him very straightly, as followeth, that he tell you where it is. And yf he tell you that it is in the [illegible], say that you will not beleeve it [illegible] you may [illegible] upon the [illegible], [illegible] And when it is [illegible] it out of the [illegible] yf it [illegible] there. And when it is layde on the lande as by ye compulsion it may bee, Then say to him: Thou most vyle and wicked Spyritt, this is not so, for this [illegible] [illegible] none of my [illegible].

Nota

[illegible] you must [illegible]

And then discharge him [illegible] place [illegible] [illegible] speake with him; And yf he doe not tell you the truthe in those thinges then straightly punnishe him, And yf he say leave punnishinge me and I wyll doe it, then say him nay, I wyll punnishe the moste cruelly for this lye; and after [illegible] to doe it, which you by Art must doe, or else you shall never [illegible] thinge done for you. Then you must after you have charged and compelled him to tell you ye truthe, release him untyll suche time as you shall neede him againe.

Nota.

Then you must call another whose name is called Oriens, wch is A ruler over the wicked, And when he is come commaunde him straightly to appeare to ye sighte, or else that he wyll make the stone to leape 3. tymes from the place where the stone lyeth. And yf he wyll not, commaunde him straightly as followeth. O thou wicked, cursed, vyle, and rebellious Spyritt, why doest thou rebell against my commaundements; I charge and bynde the in the name of thy maker Jhesus christ, and by the power of heaven, thou cursed Spyritt, that thou nowe let the stone stande, and appeare to my sighte, for I wyll have noe nay. Therefore I charge the by these holy names of god, that thou doest appeare, Sabaoth, Adonay, Sachaell, Adonay α et ω. and by the name Tryon [illegible], Cranto, Panto, that thou do it without any more delay, appeare visible to my sighte, and speake or write to my hearinge or seeinge. Thus I charge the to doe without any stopp or stay. And when he hath by ye compulsion appeared, say that you see a thinge shadowe in the stone, which is in the walle, for I wyll not beleeve, that there is any thinge to my sighte, except thou speake or wryte, and appeare to my syghte, and speake to my hearinge; And therefore appeare to mee and speake or wryghte, or else I wyll accurse the and condemne the by gods power, and not by my owne power. Therefore I charge the do it. And when he hath doon it, then commaunde him to [illegible] [illegible] thinge thou art the kynge of the [illegible] of the East [illegible] I charge the doe it; And when he hath brought you A booke in the stone to ye sighte, then charge him to delyver it to you, or appointe him some place where he shall lay it, and let it bee doon wth speede, Thus I charge the to doe. And when it is come [illegible] you can not reade it, then come to him againe and say what haste thou given mee? I knowe not whether it bee good or ylle; Therefore I charge the [illegible] to showe me the readinge and understandinge of it, And yf he say not: Then straightwayes goe and take ye booke of [illegible] out of his hande [illegible] called fire to be drunke in their blood, which of you that are disobedient to my n[illegible] omnipotent & none but I who can command the heavens to smoake, the [illegible] earth to feare, the water to flow & hell to tremble, & not thee stubborne Spirit wh[illegible] hast thou dealt so frowardly with me (saith our Lord) to urge me to expulse & me my faithfull servaunt Michaell, & valiant Champion to expulse [illegible] & putt thee out of that place where thou wast filled with wi[illegible] wisdome & understanding continually beholdin[g] & seeing my wonde[illegible] eares heare the ma[jesty] of my voice? didst thou but know the my deligh[illegible] was upon the Spirits & upon such as excelled in vertue? & wouldst hidden thee that I would not have my soule in hell? why art thou thus out of the way, why art thou become so abominable? & why is thy th[roat] become an open sepulchre? with thy tonge dost thou deceive my servaunt for the poyson is under thy lips, thy mouth full of cursing & bitterness thy feet are swift to shed innocent blood: what is in thy minde but destruction & heaving, & what art thou but a worker of mischeife seeking to eate & swallow up my children as they were bread? Is th[illegible] the obedience thou doest owe unto me (saith our Lord) & the [illegible] service thou offerest unto me? Therefore for this thine obstinacy, disobedien[ce] pride & rebellion thou shalt be burned & most cruelly tormented [illegible]

An Angells sight.

This is a operation & a deuine, whose effect is great because that by it thou mayst see all things that are vnder or aboue the 4 Elements & know all things to come which come by the course of nature. Make a glasse of christall which is proper neat & well poli[shed] [illegible] whose body is not polluted with women [illegible] most holy name [illegible] so that it be vpon the [illegible] of it then lay it in [illegible] or [illegible], & thy masses be sunge, & then take it away & sett it in [illegible] & must be [illegible] vpon the [illegible] made ready vpon the Day of ♃ or ♀ & must [illegible] dayes aforesaid, but lett the worker be cleane from women, & abstaine as much as [illegible] from all filthy pollutions, also of them [illegible] any thing that is in the end of the world, or else if any of yours doe aske you of any doubtfull thing, then put your glasse against your eye [illegible] so that the ☉ may cast his beames vpon it & marke [illegible] & say those fiue prayers after one manner & forme as followeth.

The first of St John Baptist or Euangelist.
The second of ye blessed virgin St Mary.
The third of ye passion of or Lord
The fourth of ye ascension of ye Lord
The fift of Longius.

The manner of ye prayer of St John ye Euangelist or Baptist is as followeth.

O Lord God before whose sight are all things both in heauen & in earth, & in the deep sea, & in all deep places, I do beseech thee by thy holy name Agla, & by the meritts & deserts of St John Bapt: or Euang: that I may see in this glasse how such a matter standeth which I am in doubt of, or which I de= =maund. And if it be a fortunate or a lucky thinge, you shall see white points or little ascending vpward a pace in the glasse if you doe enquire of man, or beast, or a booke, or any materiall matter the forme & fashion of thinge, euen right as it is indeed will appeare in the glasse; if it will not wth ye prayer, saye the prayer of or blessed Lady the virgin Mary.

O Lord my God &c. of the blessed virgin Mary, mother of our Lord Jesus Xpt &c. vt supra

O Lord &c. & by ye meritts of thy most blessed passion wch thou hast suffered for vs sinners, that &c

First looke that ☉ be in ♐ then marke the new ☽ while ☽ is that signe & ye first Monday after the new ☽ the ☉ being still in ♐ thou shalt worke thus, Take virgins waxe or parchment yt neuer touched fire nor water & make two Images like the proportion of a man or a woman that thou mayst haue them at all tymes at thy pleasure. also if it be made in waxe it must be made by the heate of ye ☉ & not by fire. This done write in ye forehead of on of them this word [illegible] with this Char. [character] in the crowne of the head Sibika or Vlicia with this Char. [character] & in the nowle of ye head this word Azena with this Char: & in ye breast or heart these words Ebemer, emalegra or this word malagra with this Char: & make this Char. followinge in ye back against it
Then when thou wilt worke make a fire of Eglantine dried, then take the worke & hold it in thy hands saying this prayer followinge. O God Ruller of all things unto whom noe secrets are hidden we humbly beseech thy maiesty that the theefe wch hath committed this theft thou wilt vouchsafe to bringe againe to vs that through the shame of this theft, he may be [illegible] to come to worthy pennance & repentaunce through Christ our Lord. Extracted out of a sheete of Pap[er] Intituled The Vision of Humfry Smith wch he saw concerning London, In the fift moneth, in the Yeare 1660 being not long after her King came into her. and Printed by Thomas Simmons, at the Signe of the Bull & Mouth neare Aldersgate 1660.

Concerning the great Citty of London.

I beheld all her Waters wch belonged to her frozen up, and that exceeding hard, and the Vessells which went upon them, so yt I and others passed over her waters without the least danger, and over the greatest Vessells which had carryed her Merchandize; for all was frozen with a mighty freezing, whereby all her goodly Merchandize were stopt, and her mighty swift waters were turned into a mighty thick frozen Ice, wch stood still so yt her pleasant streames ran no more.

And as for ye Citty her self & her suburbs, and all yt belonged to her, a fire was kindled therein but she knew not how, even in all her goodly places and ye kindling of it was in ye foundations of all her buildings; and there was none could quench it for it was [illegible] fire, neither was there any able, neither did any seeke to quench it, and ye burning thereof was exceeding great and it burned inward in a hidden [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

the foundacon was burnt up, and all ye lofty pt brought downe (by ye fire) yet there was much old stuffe, and pt of broken desolate walls and buildings in the midst, which ye ffire continued burning agst; And yt wch was taken as to make use of, which yet escaped ye ffire, became uselesse in mans hand as a thing of nought. And ye vision hereof remayned in me as a thing yt was secretly shewed me of the Lord.

And now let her wise men finde out the matter, and her prudent men read ye parable, and her divines (so called) interpret ye vision (And let her know yt her day is at hand) And lett every one of them looke to their owne wayes.

Elizabeth the daughter of the Lady Jennings a child now 13 yeares of age being in Thistleworth (shortly after she was frighted with the sight of an old woman who suddenly appeared to her att the dore and demanded a pin of her) was taken with an infirmitie in her throate about the 13th of January refusing ever after all manner of flesh meate.
The 15th of February she complained to be exceeding sicke, and from that instant time lost the use of both her leggs. The 19th day at night she was taken with extreame fitts of panting and sighing and began to talke idlely and growe very ill, in so much that her parents fearing her death, sent instantly to London for Doctor [illegible], who brought her being very sicke, to London with him, where she continued languishing complaining of aches in divers parts of her bodie and often weeping extreamely.
About the end of February every night after midnight she had a great fitt of sighing and groning expressing divers paines in her knees, armes, head & hart very suddainely removing from one of these parts to another, and at last being setled in the head and hart, she would then lye continually sighing & groning 4 houres at the least as if death were att hand. The 17th of March at night she had an exceeding great fitt of strange convulsions, noe part of her bodie being free, which lasted the greatest part of the night, After which fitt her un= derstanding was very much weakned, and her memory of all things past quite lost; And shortly after all her right side was benummed, and her right arme lost all motion and sense as if it had bin taken with a dead palsie. And after this these fitts of convulsions never failed coming once or twice in 24 houres but only for 4 or 5 daies about fortnight before her recoverie, and in her fitts her dead arme was as violently moved as any other part of her bodie. During this time many things were applyed by the physitions for her helpe but all in vaine, the medicines rather producing contrarie effects. On Easter day

And noe sooner was the fitt ended but she remained speechles and in her passion as before. That evening her parents (having sett downe the words aforesaid by her spoken) resorted to Sr William Slingsbye the next Justice to advise what to doe: And they found the meanes to bring Countesse to him to be examined she not knowing their intent. whose examination followeth.

The examination of Margarett Russell als Countesse taken before Sr Wm Slingsbye kt one of the Justices of the peace in the Countye of Midds. 25th of Aprill.

Margarett Russell als Countesse accused for bewitching Elizabeth daughter of the lady Jennings being examined confesseth that yesterday she went to mrs Dromondbye in blacke and white Court in the old baylye and told her that the Lady Jennings had a daughter strangely sicke whereupon the said Dromondbye wished her to goe to inquire att Clarken well for a ministers wiffe that could helpe people that were sicke, but she must not aske for a witch or a cunning woman but for one that is a phisition woman, and there this examinate found her and a woman sitting wth her, and told her what case the child was, and she said shee would come this day but shee ought her noe service, and said she had bin there before and lefte receipts there but the child did not take them. And she said further that there was two children that the Lady Jennings had by this husband that were bewitched and dead, for there was controversie betweene two howses and that as long as they dwelt there they could not prosper. And that there should be no blessing in that house [illegible]
[illegible]

On fryday the 26.th of Aprill betweene 10. and 11. a clocke in the forenoone (at which time Countesse was brought out of the goale to speake the minister and his wiffe and others att a private house) the Childe had another very dangerous fitt of convulsions, which doctor Fox beholding said it merely touched her in which fitt she began to speake againe as followeth.

The height of my disease is witchcrafte.

& after a good space she spake againe thus.

They have noe power to witch me to death but only to putt me to paine.

& a non after with a smiling countenance she said.

One is in prison thother is hanged.

& presently after

It is roasted: it is roasted.

And presently her fitt went of; her speech returned; and her palsie arme recovered motion and sence, and ever since hath bin and is perfectly in her understanding and memorie, and of very good health in all respects and as well as ever she did before she fell sicke [illegible]

[illegible]

The second examination of Margarett Russell als Countesse taken before Sr Tho: Fowler and Sr William Slingesbye Kt. and Doctor Bates Justices of the peace in the Countie of Midds the 26.th of Aprill.

That mrs Goodcole the ministers wiffe did not as in her former examination is sett downe, but that it was a woman that satt by her working which was her sister. But she confesseth that this morning about 10. or 11. a clocke she was brought out of Newgate to the house of Hames the Clarke, where we did nowe examine her, to speake with mr Goodcole and his wiffe and with mrs Dromondbye.

And she further confesseth that when mrs Hargrave lay att mr Higgins house when my Lady Jennins first child was sicke, that she was then there with her, and that a maide servant of the Lady Jennins came thither to waish a mapp, of whome mrs Higgins did inquire how the child did and she answered not well, to whome mrs Higgins replyed, that they had much wronged them and that it would come home by them and theirs.

The examination of Francis Aston Anne Goodcole and George Goodcole taken before Sr William Slingesbye one of the Justices of the peace in the Countie of Midds 27th. of Aprill.

Francis Aston the wiffe of mr Thomas Aston dwelling in Clarken well examined, confesseth that yesterday about Nyne a clocke her sister Goodcole sent for her and shewed her a note in writing which her brother mr Goodcole did read unto her, which did contayne that there was a woman in Newgate committed for a witch who had named a woman in Clarken well [illegible] and had lefte a medicine there but that the child had not taken it. But sh[e] utterly denyeth that she or her sister did either speake any thing or kno[w] any thing either of the death or bewitching of the Lady Jennins other children that were dead, or of any controversie betwixt two howses. A[nd] that Countesse told her she was sent to her from a woman in the Strond that she had done good unto, and from the childs grandmoth[er] and prayed her att the last that she should come when she heard furth[er] from her./

[illegible]

And further saith that yesterday in the morning there came a ma[n] to speake wth her husband who was in bedd wth her, but she knowe[th] not, being a blacke man aboute 40 yeres old like a Cittizen wh[o] did desire him to doe some businesse for him sometimes the next wee[k]
After he was gone her husband did rise and went abroade, but did [re] turne aboute 10 a clocke to her sisters howse mrs Duffeilds, and sent f[or] this Examinate and her sister to goe wth him to mr James h[is] house before 11 a clocke whose maide fetched him thither as soone a[s] they came, mr Goodcole and his wiffe desired him to bringe Count[esse] unto them, And then they did inquire of her whether she knew [this] examinate, she answered that she never saw her nor knowe her but [the] day before as is confessed. And she also confesseth that her broth[er] Robte Duffeilde went wth them: wch done James carryed the pris[oner] to the gaole and they returned to mrs Duffeilds againe and ther[e] dined togeather

July 30. 1622. The Lady Jennings repaired to Dr Napier for cure of her Daughter. See the Figure;
& his notes thereupon in his Diary for that day & yeare.
The Dr calls the disease Epileptica Matricis, and Morbus Matricis.
See at the end of that Booke the Drs Questions relating to the nature of the disease, & how to cure her, and whether she were bewitched, or only troubled with the Epilepsie of the Mother.

Trinyte [illegible]
[illegible] in this [illegible] world to [illegible], and [illegible] & by the vertu of thy [illegible] sprite man obey and doe obey [illegible] the great and mightie name is [illegible] which is above all names, to which all [illegible] in heaven, earth and hell doe obey [illegible] is most mightie and [illegible]able, which is [illegible] all [illegible] and glory worlde without [illegible]

O great and marvellous lord [illegible] [illegible] in the handes of the [illegible] mary [illegible] and mother of thy onlye sonne Jesus Christ, by the [illegible] of her, and by [illegible] bodye [illegible] Jesus [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] and [illegible] you must [illegible]
[illegible] be [illegible] not only of your [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]. Wherefore for your [illegible]
[illegible] worke, [illegible] all [illegible] are followinge.

You must have a [illegible] of [illegible] families with you, cleane and [illegible] of a good [illegible]. And that day of Consecration of the [illegible], Septer, and Swordes, ye must [illegible] fast and [illegible] [illegible] the Consecrations, for without your [illegible] and Swordes you shall hardly attaine to your desires.

All [illegible] is necessarye, And [illegible] without [illegible]
And if you can conveniently it is best working with the same [illegible] [illegible] is of a great worth.

When you begin to worke you must have a masse of St Cyprian
And in the [illegible] masse of St Cyprian you must [illegible] a penny [illegible] Secret of this Art

At that [illegible] before you worke in this Art, you must [illegible]
[illegible] all [illegible] and naturall pollution [illegible]
[illegible] And [illegible] your nayles [illegible] your heade [illegible]
[illegible] heade handes and feet

And that [illegible] towardes the east [illegible] towardes the west [illegible] towardes the [illegible] towardes the north [illegible] you must [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] the [illegible] water [illegible]

[illegible] must [illegible] and [illegible] towardes the [illegible] the, and [illegible] & [illegible] be of the breadth of viij foote, or to the [illegible]

& there must be a table of stone, trees and [illegible]

& make the Circle, whether [illegible] & [illegible] and [illegible] must be of the breadth of an inch or more, and [illegible] white napkin washed in these waters, & in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

& blesse the chambers table napkyn, & [illegible], and [illegible] chambers, then are they fit for the worke, and [illegible] [illegible]

Note that in diverse worke you must use diverse Circles, but [illegible] Circ[illegible] for [illegible] diverse Addicions doth suffise for all worke in the world as hereafter you shall perceive /

Note that no Circle shalbe above [illegible] foote the crosse in the Circle [illegible] [illegible] by the [illegible] of Salomon shall not be [illegible] foote at the most, and the [illegible] foote from the Circle or iij foote at the [illegible] the Characters [illegible] shall not extend above xvij foote, [illegible] Circle shall appeare in their places /

Consider well that the principall ~~Circles~~ Characters are [illegible], [illegible] must be made in all Circles, because without [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] but [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

All these Characters be Letters of Hebrewe, and be the names of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible] in the old [illegible], and so the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

The Characters of [illegible] must be made in Copper alone and you must alwayes [illegible] these Characters in your right hand, and in the same houre you worke you must [illegible] the same Character to the Spirit

Care not if the Experiment continue more then one houre because the experiment hath [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible]

Also note that you may not worke at all [illegible] in this Art but you must take [illegible] and [illegible] the moone, that it be increasinge and augmentinge, as the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in that moone, till the [illegible] [illegible]

A Note to the Reader

In choosing the rather formal Old English Text to set De Nigromancia, we were soon faced with an unusual quandry: the short 's' looked somehow out of place, at least in the middle of words. It appeared just too fussy and decorative to occur too often. We probably would have setteled on what we thought was the jarring effect in using the short 's' when Monotype informed us that they had cut the more traditional long 'ſ': that setteled it, we chose to use the long 'ſ'. Thus this note of explanation for those unfamiliar with this old style usage:— the character 'ſ' will be used both initially and medially, and the character 's' will be used only as a finial; the ligature 'ſſ' will be used for double-s medially and the character 'ß' for double-s finially, and finally the ligature 'ʒ' will be used for 'ts' as a finial. We hope that this reversion to old style usage will not prove to be inconvienient to the reader.

¶The Grand Oration*

I Humbly beseech thee, Otheos Sother, and conjure [that] from [all] the perils here in this world, and in the world to come [You] do grant me refuge, and by the virtue of Thy help vouchsafe that those Spiritz [I call upon] may hear and do obiscience to me, so that I may succeed in all my work and obtain the Treasure of the Spiritz by Thy Great and Mighty Name Tetragrammaton which is above all Names, to which all patriarchs in Heaven, Earth, and Hell do reverence; Oneipheton, which is most Mighty and Terrible, and which is not to be named save at great distreß, to which be all Honour and Glory, World Without End. Amen. ¶O Great and Marvelous Lord, which of Thy Holy Spirit didst give health in the hands of the martyrs; sown miraculous life in Mary, the Virgin Mother of Thy only Son, Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ by the 'Coelestes Reginia,' the Holy Spirit deserving of Her; and by His Holy Body, which Jesus gave up and abandoned to the Croß, and thereby redeemed the world for Her. I humbly beseech Thee, grant that you do hear my prayers and fulfill my desires, delivering me from all the powers of Darkneß, that by Thy virtue and power, and by the virtue of Thy Most Precious Son Our Saviour, the Golden Light of the World§, and also by Thy Holy Name Tetragrammaton, which is ineffable, that Thou betimes may hear my prayers and fulfill my deſires whatſoever they may be. By Thy Name ſhall I ſummon theſe Spirits, without fear of injury to my Body or Soul, or any thoughts unſeemly, through Jeſus Chriſt, which ſhall come to judge the quick, and the dead, and the world by fire. Amen.

Introduction:

Here beginneth the practice of Nigromancy—or the Black Art—which is the convocation and eſtriction of the Spirits whereſoever they may be; and in verity to gather them like fellows to thyſelf as thou wouldſt ſheaves of wheat, that by their means you may obtain the 'Theſaurus Spiritum'—or treaſure of ſpirits, By this Art is ſcarcely anything completed unleß it be newly ſet apart, at once made venerable, mighty, and occult. Thus the ſecret work before [my] diſcovery was widely known by the populice of ancient Alexandria, by which I, Fra. Robert Lombard, a brother minor of the Franciſcan Order together with Fra. Roger Bacon through many years of ſtudy of that place fell upon it. Before my death—whereafter concluſions may be drawn, and evidence followed upon—let it be ſaid not that I was prodigial becauſe of the diverſs works I have had the opportunity to tranſcribe, and my good fellow in faith Fra. Roger Bacon has tranſlated into the Engliſh of whom, putting aſide our childhood friendſhip, his fame, and his own ſincere faith, beſpeaks him at the ſame time extraordinary, whitherto obſerve the piety of this treatiſe which I truſt he would hold no diſcredit to add to his many other entrances to true expertiſe.

This work is divided into four parts: ¶The first concerns itself with the disposition of the operator; ¶The second concerns rudimentary operations and the prerequisite necessities for completing the work; ¶The third deals with the convocation of the Spirits; ¶The fourth covers prayers used for all manner of effects.

The First tract or part containeth six chapters: ¶Of the principal things required of the operator; Of the regular observances; ¶Of the cleanness and purity of the operator; ¶Of the vault and the ways and dispositions therein, and of the secret cubicle; ¶Of the composition of the chrism, and the fashioning of the sigils; and ¶Of the mingling[?] of Metals used in the fashioning the sigils.

The Second tract or part concerns the manner of conjuration, and contains six chapters: ¶Of the manner of calling the Spirits; ¶Of the adoption of dignity and honour before them; ¶Of the discovery of the Treasure of the Spirits; ¶Of the especial times, places, and Cosmic arrangements at which we may behold the Spirits; ¶Of the co-archetation—or hierarchy—of the aerial Spirits, inasmuch as elementary, true yet remarkable, and innumerable unto monumentousness is their counting; ¶Of familiar spirits, such as will sing, attend, build, advise, cloathe and instruct thee through, so-without deceit.

The Third tract or part is divided also into six chapters, to wit: ¶The convocation of the Spirits through the ineffable love of God Almighty; ¶Concerning invisibilily . . . ; ¶Of the composition of metals; ¶Of the completion of our labours; ¶Of the ever-lasting praise so-required; ¶Of the fraternity which is a delight to the good Spirits, and of the marriage in love both with these undertakings and through the power of every living thing.

The Fourth part or tract is divided into five essays: ¶Of the True Knowledge of all Spirits; ¶Of the certain moderation by which we present ourselves before the Spirits when they are bound; ¶Of the inclusion of those essentials that will bring us to fulfillment without negation or death; ¶Regarding the duties of the Priest, and the enkindling of all the Sciences; ¶Concerning the formulation of the Ceremonies & the oblations & obeiances thereof.

Tract One, C1.

How greatly this Secret Work and the operations of obtaining the Treasure of the Spirits succeed, nevertheless do not confuse in any way the cycle of days and hours, and observe the Characters and Conjurations without doubt or hesitation—by which many works are truly perfected—on which occasion observe all without fear of danger both by reason and exception of the [Characters and] Conjurations in your possession.

Of the Chief and Supreme Rulers [of the Spirits] it is impossible [to have knowledge] in many operations of this Art unless we be pure and clean, not only in vestment but in body and soul, and immaculate, and free from monstrous communication; and it too is necessary that your Instruments of Science be pure and clean, and rendered suitable to enter boldly upon this work.

I, C2.

It is near to impossible to succeed in these many rites and operations of our Art without an especial true Priest of a noteworthy family, and honest and pure of heart; and on that day of Consecration of the Ring, the Sword, and the Sceptre he must fast with faith, and devoutly commit the consecrations if we are to enter completely and without fault into Our Work; for without the Secptre, Ring, and all else, hardly anything in these operations will succeed.

I, C3.

It is nigh impossible in these many operations of Our Art, without dillegent attention paid to days and hours, names; of even night-observances, and especially the Lunations [phases of the Moon]. Always must you wear vestments of white linnen, itself proper, insofar as it is always kept clean and perfumed, and is made passing meet from our trust in these dilligent summonnings [conjurations] of the Spirits.

I, C4.

In connexion with the operation of these conjurations, and of the chrism*, you must always dress in the proper vestments of fresh white linnen or simple wool, and not elabourate with moot extravagances; and you shall perfume all things aforesaid. You should be new [i. e., clean, fresh] and duly prepared, yet as many of these other Spirits may be unwilling to be seen as aforesaid. Nevertheless, if you annoint your eyes with consecrated chrism, of whatsoever sort, and put on your vestments you will succeed. And always take care not to commit anything sinful in connexion with doning these vestments to do that work suitable to you, because if your veſtments are tainted, you and your aſſiſtants will not ſucceed in your work.

I, C5.

IN all operations of this humble Art it is neceſſary from the beginning not to be proud in eſtate, and to overcome temptations with true eternal faith. With [ſuch] various requiſites and Inſtruments, and with the requiſite precautions and other dictates; perform without doubt error, or vanity—for one error is magnified abſolutely to a thouſand by pride.

I, C6.

IN all things it is neceſſary that all be ſweet and freſh and the air muſt be without clouds: this is preferable for the Spirits. And if you can do ſo convieniently, it is beſt in our accuſtomed work to call when the Sun ſhines, for the ſame is of great virtue. If you follow in this you will attain all your deſires, & they ſhall appear.

Tractate Two, C1.

WHen you begin working in all operations of this Art, you muſt during the time of preparation for the conjurations have a Maß of St. Cyprian ſaid and any other Maß which is required [to be ſaid by the Prieſt by cuſtom*].

But in this Maß of St. Cyprian, you ſhould offer a penny—and if you offer a crown,* ſo much the greater it will add [to this work]—and that upon his book, as a chaſte ſervant of this Art. The ſanctifying of the chriſm ſhould be attempted at this time, but the Maß muſt always be one in the manner of St. Cyprian, by whom it was in this Art through conſequences moſt propitious we [became] guardians of his Secret Book, from which ſucceed faithfull renditions and very harſh injuries and puniſhments await thoſe who perform this work if they doubt the truth & virtue of theſe undertakings, for they are Holy. And without doubt theſe formulae along with others requiſites in this tractate require certain ſuitable and dilligent obſervation, wherefore if you ſet yourſelf apart from all fallicies, you truly will obtain your deſires.

NOte well the fact that from the firſt to the laſt quarter of the Moon—and not before—is the hour when we are moſt ſkilled in our operations. Still, our proſperity in this work being to ſuch degree as to be ſuitable, if we begin in that time at night,-how greatly increaſed in truth is that hour from Sunriſe until the Meridian [i. e., Zenith]. It is of leß virtue from Meridian until Sunſet. It increaſeth from the hour of night at Sunſet until cock-crow, and from the hour of cock-crow until Sun-riſe it decreaſeth; and in the hours of increase, from that time through the night is matter in control. Take care in all other things to be true, and not commit sin; abstain from frequent copulation, and other impurities.

II, ℭ2.

When all those things have been prepared, before you work in this Art, the first and foremost observances is that always for not leß than three days you must abstain from all copulation, natural pollution, and drunkenneß as from every conceivable Cardinal Sin, but be pure and confeß [your sins] to [your especial] Priest.

Insofar as in all operations you must work chastely, you should be annointed with oil; you must pare your nails, and shave your beard, and your head shall be shorn; and you shall wash yourself clean, both head, hands, and feet.

And seven times towards the East; and seven times towards the West; and seven times towards the North; and seven times towards the South you shall repeat the conjurations, and seven times towards each of the Four Quarters you shall say the 'Our Father' altogether. ℭAnd whensoever you show the Plate with the Great Four-fold Name of God in this work to the Spirits, or when you repeat that Great Name, the Plate must be annointed in unction of sweet balsams, and you must bear the burden on bended knee. ℭThen also must you always wear upon the middle finger of your left hand* the Ring—whose form and figure should thereon be engraved, and it duly consecrated.

II, ℭ3.

Note that always in all aspects of your operations that before [commencing] there must exist a different and exceeding angency of purity both in these vestments, your appearance, and even an exceeding splendidneß in the agreed-upon place: for if the least foulneß be present in your vestments, body, or conscience, without doubt the Spirits will account you unworthy of this high exercise; wherefore do as this chapter doth instruct you carefully, and after so preparing yourself, ask confession on these operations, and devoutly pray.

It is of the highest importance to be free of any profane contact when you enter into the Circle, and that with true desire and devotion you follow these dictates, and have Maß said, and thereafter† wash your face in clean water & make suffumigations of laurel leaves & other sweet smells... & enter your Circle in the Hour of Venus§ and begin your dedication in the first part of her hour, and for a half hour thereafter, thus. Conjure in May [the fourteenth of May is the Feast of St. Cyprian] so as to [be within] Holy and not impure hours; and enter into your bath in the ſame demure manner: write in hard labour [i. e., in copying this book], ſtudy, and with dillegence expell all ſorts of putridneß from you. And [being] ſo purified, for a half hour ſay the oration. The ſtraw of your pallet muſt be freſh, and your bread newly baked, which food will thereafter aſcend; and before commencing the conjuracions remain faſting at leaſt after finiſhing the reading; and when you partake, eat ſcarce, no meat, but bread & water clean & ſweet; becauſe fleſh before theſe operations is not partaken. However you may partake of fine wine and ſweet bread, and of fiſh; preſerve even your ſtomach from impurity during theſe operations thus far, leſt ſtrong and fearfull viſions be impoſed upon you for the delight of the Spirits to overcome you, ſo that you are not able to accompliſh any thing. Inſofar as ſuch perils are very much true and real, it is meet that after theſe operations you ſhould light a candle for three hours to guard and vehemently calm that place where[-in] you eſſeyed them.* If at night, ſuch is cuſtomary; if as before in the day, it is cuſtomary to obſerve the aſpect of the Sun.

YOu ſhall enter into abſtinence from your paſſions and hunger, during the time you wiſh to employ theſe conjurations, elſewiſe the ſtrong ſway of the nocturnal forces will thereafter manifeſt, and will ſomehow ſupercede the virtue of theſe bindings and conjurations. And ſo before [work at] night do not eat any thing, as alſo before [work by] day contain all carnal deſire; always abſtain before your operations, and of all things ſhun impure communication by acts of copulation, as likewiſe all boiſtrous and bibulous companionſhip, but firſt and foremoſt take care leſt ſome ſtirring [undo your efforts]. But ſhould you conceal from your prieſt and fellows your copulations and not confeß ſolumnly, without ample doubt you will gain little of your purpoſes.

BEfore beginning accordingly as ſet forth herein, it is neceſſary with reſpect to theſe operations to ſeclude ['dis-poſition'] yourſelf in a certain ſecret place, as like a field which is abſent of rugged ground, or ſome fortification wherein theſe ſeveral operations may be conducted in all due ſafety. Have faſhioned therefore a ſecret Vault, bright, and clean, and ſquare in whoſe quadrangle there muſt be placed windows five cubits ſquare in conformation or perhaps a ſcant more. And theſe ſhall be ſituated in the Vault thus: one window you ſhall place towards the Eaſt, and one window you ſhall place towards the Weſt; one window you ſhall place towards the South, and one window you ſhall place in the North. You ſhall form the Vault about twenty feet to a ſide in width or leß, and in height it ſhould be about twenty feet or more; and the roof thereof ſhould be ſquare, and riſe croſſwiſe height-by-centre another four feet or ſo.* Set this building upon ſtraight and level ground, and in a place ſerene, and far from the ordinary dealings of men.

When you enter therein, deſcribe a ſuitable Circle with chalk whoſe form is correct to the work; and write out in faith the letters and names of the Angels or Spiritz, and the Holy Saintz with a good underſtanding of your undertaking.

UNder one window ſhould be placed wine, and ſtraw in good quantity which is freſh and new and ſweetly ſpiced oils for annointment of the body, and even an offering of bread newly baked, as if you were expecting an entourage of honoured perſons, as in diverſe experimentz hereafter is weighed carefully.

YOu ſhall arrange the place as if all were uſual; and you ſhould trace the Circle with the Sword or Sceptre in the place you do your work, and pause ſo and conſider; for it muſt be ten foot acroß or more

IN theſe diverſe operations it alſo is required that you have an altar-table of laurel wood freſh cut and reſinous, a finger-linnen new and white which has been waſhed in clean ſweet roſewater, and three new knives with white hilts, deſtined for ſuch purpoſes. On this occaſion bleß and ſanctify moſt certainly the book, the vault, the table, the finger-linnen, and the knives, and every other thing which is within the vault; then they are fit for the work you conduct and without doubt with them you will have what you ſeek.

II, ¶5.

IN diverſe operations you muſt uſe diverſe Circles, but three forms of Circles fit, for with additions they ſuffer for all work as you ſhall well perceive. ¶Note that as regards the binding of Spiritz of the Air, and of Fire, you ſhould chooſe one Circle with diverſe additions to the Names where ſuch are required, and with that Circle, and the proper Characters, you may proceed in your operations thereafter as before-ſaid. But when conſidering Spiritz of Water in this work, they muſt be bound in a Circle with their correſpondences; and in the centre muſt be placed a phial filled with rainwater, or elſe water from a ſpring. And many bindings of ſuch are done near running ſtreams, as hath been ſhown before*, but in the phial is the greateſt virtue of [i. e., with reſpect to] this conſtriction.

BEfore dealing with the Spiritz, conſider theſe many Circles; which is appropriate in theſe bindings, and diſcover how all Circles ſuffice in their place. Note that Circles uſed for Spiritƺ of Water or Earth ſhould never be greater than fifteen feet in diameter, while the croſſes going forth ſhould not exceed two foot out therefrom, of three at the utmoſt. Nevertheleß go forth, and purge the place with bleſſed Holy Water, and do ſo for nine days.

II, ¶6.

SUrround yourſelf with a curved line deſcribed in chalk, and a ſecond one foot apart ſo curved. Wherein which place deſcribed in chalk under the proper ſigns and auſpices, and with all you require; Sceptre, Altar, &c., in that part ſhall the Prieſt offer at the proper time threemaſſes in honour of the Saintƺ, of the which muſt be one of St. Cyprian as aforeſaid in the chapter concerned with the inſtrumentƺ. Keep faſt to the very word of theſe ſecret tables, and true, nor overwhelm them with ſuperfices but hide them well. And above, below and on all ſides incenſe theſe inſtrumentƺ with Frankincenſe as ſhall be explained. ¶Thereafter ſprinkle and incenſe them, and being at peace with God, repeat the following oration.

¶Conſecration:—

LOrd Jeſus Chriſt, deliver me from evil and have mercy upon me; by Thy ineffable purity and clemency in this hour take heed of me by my invocations. Holy and Indiviſible Proof; Father ✠ Son ✠ and Holy Spirit therefore accept and be pleaſed by theſe orations and theſe words of mine by the invocation of theſe Your Holy Names; with rapture and ſincerity I implore Thee, permit me nonetheleß, though unworthy, to truſt in Thee, and depend upon Thee, I prithee in full awe and devotion; prevail upon me being Thy creature; inſpire my heart, [raiſe sceptre aloft] and by the ineffable and incomprehenſible Father, Bleß ✠ Sanctify ✠ and Conſecrate ✠ [theſe objects: sceptre, &c.], and by theſe, Thy Holy Names:

HOly Jeſus Chriſt, Alpha and Omega, Hely, Helion, Elohi, Theon, Stimulaton, Oppreſares, Tetragrammaton, Aetiaram, Eregion, Viſion, Oriſton, Eyrynes, Meſſiah, Sother, Emanuel, Sabaoth [Tzabaoth], Adonai, and by all your Holy Names which no man is permitted to ſpeak, and by all the virtue of this place, and by Thy virtue and power, Thou who art Divine and not Created, Conſecrate ✠ Bleß ✠ and Confirm ✠ and by the virtue and power of your precious Body and Blood as ſuch virtue deſtined to be acquired and kept, and truly without any falſehood ſoever, give ſtrength and efficacy to this Circle compoſed of nought but Thee, and make it an admirable defence for both body and ſoul in theſe operations againſt all evil and falſehood; all things viſible and inviſible; and all malignacies; purify and ſanctify it with your virtue that it may be found perfect, in whoſe excellence it be faſhioned, Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt who reigneth in Heaven, to whom be all honour and glory forever and ever. Amen.

OBſerve the rules in making your Circle, which ought not to exceed fifteen feet in diameter; the manner of which deſcription has been thus explained. ¶Theſe Circles deſcribed in the name of the Father omnipotent, who by a ſingle word created all; thereafter describe all circles as is ſeemly. Some circles ſhall be deſcribed in the name of the Son of God alone-begotten who was made man, who ſhed his precious blood for our ſins; thereafter deſcribe all circles as is ſeemly. Some circles ſhall be described in the name of God the Paraclete* whoſe ſacred heart was preſent within the Apoſtles and the Prophetʒ. And theſe ſhould be henceforward be obſerved [in reference to the names [??] of] God. And after you have written theſe Names in the firſt [or principal] Circle, deſcribe the ſigils of the Angels, the hours, days, and characters as is ſeemly.

INaſmuch as is formoſt in this work, you muſt call the Spiritʒ to appear through Jeſus Chriſt, by Adonai, and by Jebedias [ſic. ?]; and by all that which appertains to the experiment. And in the ſecond degree of the Circle† write the Names and Characters appropriate to the operation, and eſpecially theſe: יהוה without which characters nought of your conſtraintʒ of the Spiritʒ will avail anything. ¶Beyond the Circle as is fit deſcribe Pentagrams, Hexagrams, or Octograms as beforeſaid, the ſhape being that moſt ſuited to the work. In all Circles you muſt be fervent in order, and ſprinkle the circle accordingly, purifying it alſo with incenſes in circumambulation as is ſeemly.

¶Conjuration:—

AGla, the veritable Light, Way, Life; Revealer, have mercy upon me. At this preſent time grant me courage and patience, and aſſiſt me in conſecrating this Circle through your great mercy, by the beauty and bounty of theſe fumigations, and by the Holy ſacrifice of Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, through the endleß virtue of the Virgin Mary, Thomas, Jacob, Phillip, Bartholomew, Simon, and Thaddeus; by Gregory, Lawrence, Dioniſis, Christopher, Euſtachius, Blaſtius, Egidius[?], Katherine, Margaret, Cyprian, and all your Saintʒ grant us your favour by conſecrating this Circle; ſend the Spiritʒ* to appear before us, without their deceitʒ, but through your ineffable Preſence let us behold only Truth from the beginning, and let our deſires be fulfilled, through Thee, who Art the Creator and Saviour of All in One. Amen.

Conſecration of the Circles:—

IN the Name of Our Lord, Jeſus Chriſt; Father ✠ Son ✠ and Holy Spirit ✠ Inſeperable Unity, I humbly entreat and conjure [Thy?] eternal protection and defence both for my Soul and Body now at the preſent time, and forever, through the virtue of Thy Holy Crucifixion and Paſſion; I beſeech Thee, Lord Jeſus Chriſt, Son of God made fleſh, through the virtue, consent, and interceſſion of the Holy Virgin Mary, Thy Mother, and by all Thy Saintʒ and Apoſtles; ſo far have I ſtrayed from Thee, yet by Thy infinite Mercy, ſhow me the wonders of all the Spiritʒ howſoever often I deſire, by Thy Holineß and Virtue, and by Thy Sacred Name compell theſe Spiritʒ here before our Circle in anſwer to our Conjurations, from all partʒ of the World ſo-agreeable to willingly perfect and compleate from nothing my deſires without deceit but with greater obedience and by Thy help and the Virtue of theſe conſtraintʒ let them complete my demands, through Chriſt Our Lord. Amen.

IN the Name of the Holy Father Omnipotent, eternal God, creator of Heaven and Earth and all the elementʒ, Thy complete majeſty I implore and beſeech Thee to grant me Thy favour; bleß ✠ conſecrate ✠ and ſanctify ✠ this Circle, made with my hand, juſt as Thou didſt bleß and dignify the altar of Noah after granting him the Viſion of the Deluge, by Thy Sacred Word [the Chriſt], in the Name of the Father Omnipotent, the Foundation of the World, who Liveth and Reigneth in all the Ages. Amen.

IN the Name of the Univerſal Architect and Great Foundation-Stone, Admirable Author, I adore Thee and make offerings to Thee, and appeal to Thee here in this Circle, that you intercede for me againſt the Spiritʒ which I call upon, and compell to reſpect itʒ compoſition thus formed and anointed on this day of ſanctification. Pour down Thy bleſſings and inceive this conſecration even as Thou art of one ſubſtance with the Father and yet a bleſſed Trinity; let it be found agreeable and acceptable to Thee, through the invocation of Thy Holy Name. I beſeech Thee to Conſecrate this place and with great propitiouſneß eſpecially protect us by your Preſence againſt viſitʒ from phantaſms; enlighten and ſanctify ✠ bleß and aſſiſt ✠ and allow our habitation to perpetuate, O Thou who liveſt and reigneſt unto the Ages. Amen.

LOrd Holy Father, Mercy of whom there is neither beginning nor end, pay heed, I prithee unto my prayers, and ſee fit in thy bounty to ſanctify my deſires; Holy Spirit Who Art God, wonderful and immortal, whoſe Majeſty and Grace are without limit, I beſeech Thee to beſtow Thy bleſſings upon this Circle, and intercede for us herein, and make it Holy; even as that place where Jacob beheld the Angels aſcending and deſcending from Heaven as in a viſion of ſleep, through Chriſt Our Lord. Amen.

GOd who reigneth in all places, hear Thou this conſecration, and grant that this our Circle may remain inviolable through thy Majeſty. O Lord Holy Father Omnipotent, Eternal God I humbly implore Thee, inaſmuch as this Circle, being conſtructed for the invocation of Spiritz is worthy, that Thou bleß ✠ ſanctify ✠ and conſecrate ✠ it with ſuch ſingular honour [virtue?]. We, though unworthy, invoke Thy moſt Holy Name [Tetragrammaton]; ſee fit to conſecrate it, in Thy Divine Viſion, Thy Piety, and Infinite Power, bleß it that whoſoever enters herein will enter under Thy protection and care, and will be freed from the fetters of their iniquities, and that our petitions ſhall be complied with to effect, O Thou Moſt High Who Liveſt and Reigneſt forever and ever. Amen.

SEnd down, O Lord our God, Thy Holy Spirit above our Circle, who with Her Ineffable Virtue may ſanctify ✠ and be preſent in our Heartz, dilligently fortifying us with Her Strength, through Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

AlMighty and Everlaſting God in whoſe honour this Circle is conſecrated in Thy Name, Heavenly Virtue, Holy Bleſſings, and all things in Thy Commandmentz, and in my calls give me Thy Help that I may declare Thy Name, Thy Holineß, and Thy Virtue, and thus obtain effect in my work, through Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

GOd Who Art the Author of the whole Univerſe, whoſe Multitudes extend above the heights of Heaven, and whoſe faſtneſſ remaineth even as the foundations of the Earth; and Thy Bride whoſe Mercy paſſeth not over our ſincere repentence*; Who haſt given a place in the Firmament of Heaven for the Sun ✠ and the Moon ✠ and the Stars ✠ and who by thine infinite Wiſdom haſt made man in thine own image; Who counſeled Adam and Eve to obſerve Thy mandate, and care for Paradiſe, and who when they diſobeyed didſt caſt them out thereof; Who covered the whole world with the Flood; whom Abraham did ſee at the Holy City, under the guiſe of three perſons† and gave aid unto; who allowed Lot to eſcape from the judgement paſſed upon the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah; who Moſes beheld, covered in flames of fire in the midſt of a buſh, and didſt ſpeak with, who delivered his people out of captivity and returned them to the Promiſed Land, and who cauſed a path to appear in the midſt of the Red Sea, all through Thy might and virtue; from whom Moſes received the Law on Mt. Sinai; who cauſed water to pour forth from a ſtone in the midſt of the deſert; who delivered Daniel from the Lion and the Arena; who the three children, Shabnoch, Miſach, and Abednego ſang of, and were delivered from the might of the fiery furnace; who Suſannah had faith in, and was freed from the hands of the infidels; who Jonah the prophet called upon and was freed from the belly of the whale; through theſe and other miracles which Thou haſt ſeen fit to manifeſt, I beseech Thee to hear, and be propitious unto my orations, through Jeſus Chriſt's sake, who is Thy only begotten Son, Our Lord.

IN complete devotion of my heart, and with mildneß and humility; and by the virtue and power of this Circle by the efficacy of which let me be preſerved of body and ſoul, gather the Spirits from whitherſoever parts of the world they may be, and place Thy firm protection on me againſt all the aſſaults, falſehoods, and deceits of the Demons through Thy omnipotence and virtue, by Thy Holy Incarnation, Nativity, Circumciſion, Baptiſm, Privation, Temptation, and Tranſfiguration; by the virtue of Thy glorious Death and Paſſion, Thy Scourging, Trial and Crucifixion and precious Death; through the virtue furthermore of Thy deſcent into the fires of Hell, by Thy ſpoilation of the Inferno and the liberation of the damned, by Thy glorious Reſſurection from death and admirable aſcent into Heaven, and through the virtue of the Seven Orders of Holy Angels, and Thy Apoſtles; and by the tremendous Day of Judgement, and by Thy Ineffable Names by which all things are preſerved: Tetragrammaton, Shemhamphoraſh, Agla, Sabaoth, Adonai, El, Eloi, On, Jeſus Chriſt. Reſide in this Circle, Bleß ✠ Conſecrate ✠ and Approve ✠ through Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who liveth and reigneth forever, and governeth by the virtue of God the Holy Spirit, forever conjoined as One through all things unto the Ages of the Ages. Amen.

Diſcover* Thou ✠ God the Father ✠
Bleß Thou ✠ God the Son ✠
Sanctify Thou ✠ God the Holy Spirit ✠

HOly Mary, Mother of Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, bleß ✠ and ſanctify in all things and places Thou doſt occupy and with Thy great Mercy aid me to obtain that as I ſhould deſire ✠ bleß ye all you Apoſtles, bleß ye all you martyrs and confeſſors, bleß ye ✠ all virgins and in all earthly ſafety and with all the virtues of Heaven, Holy and Everlaſting God bleß thee ✠ and in all Sciences, and by the Confirmation of all Holy Angels and Archangels, Thrones, Dominations, Principalities, Virtues, Powers, through Cherubim and Seraphim and from Thy Great Authority bleß ✠ and Thou Lord Jeſus Chriſt have Mercy upon me, Bleß ✠ Protect ✠ and Sanctify this Circle as is apt and fitting, and through all the power of theſe our invocations, ſummonings, conſtraintƺ, and bindings of all the Spiritƺ theſe deſires: [—petition—] and place Thy good Salvation and protect me with a ſtout and true defenſe and eſpecially the tuition of my body and ſoul, through Thee, Jeſus Chriſt, the Saviour of the World, the King of Glory who in Truth and in Victory with the Holy Spirit liveth and reigneth as One God through Immortality Forever and Ever. Amen.

The Bleſſing of the 'Sphere' or Chamber:

I Exorciſe thee, O creature of God, thou Chamber, that all inimicable phantaſms fly out from thee, by God the Living ✠ by God the True ✠ and by God the Holy ✠ I exorciſe thee in the Name of God the Father omnipotent ✠ and in the Name of the Son ✠ in all theſe operations of cleanſing of the Soul and Body, Pour forth and let deſcend the Holy Spirit, that the multitude of phantaſms may depart, eſpecially thoſe of the machinations of the Devil, and every ſuch Spirit unearthly I adjure, through Him who ſhall come to Judge the quick and the dead by fire. Amen.

The Oration to follow:

God, the Unconquerable Virtue and Author, and Indiviſible Ruler, and ever-magnificent Victor againſt the minions of evil, whoſe Great Strength holds back the Adverſe Dominations, who looks down upon and condemns with ſeverity the fallen and pertinacious ſpiritƺ, who quelleth hoſtility by Thy tremendous power, Repell thee the terrible illuſions of phantaſm and heed my prayer and petition as of this worthy Circle approve in your Piety, Goodneß and Wiſdom that it may acquire Holineß as whereſoever it be required, through the invocation of Thy Holy Name repell all the infeſtations, and terrors of the impure ſpiritƺ and the temptations and ſeductive illuſions of the poiſonous Serpent, and manifeſt Thy Holy Spirit to us, and have mercy upon us, and appear when we attempt to diſpell them, O Thou who liveth and reigneth God of All forever and ever. Amen.

Then incenſe the place as deſcribed in the previous chapters, and write theſe Seven Holy Names of God in ſeven ſtations of the Circle: Iah ✠ Lealge* ✠ Vehe* ✠ Agla ✠ Charon ✠ Libares ✠ Poimander ✠ and juxtapoſe them within the Circle towards the Seven Partƺ of the world and with the operations of conſtraint aboliſh the preſence of evil Spiritƺ, ſeeing as in theſe operations you are therefore protected.

Tractate Three, ¶1.

THe Pentacle of Solomon itſelf ſhould extend upon the face of the Circle about two feet beyond, and the diameter of the Circle ſhould not exceed ſeventeen feet. The Characters conſidered true and pertinent ſhould be ſhown in their places. Conſider well the Principal Characters are theſe: יהוה which ſhould be placed in all Circles and in all ſuch Lamens, becauſe without them, all conjurations of the Spiritz will fail, and no Spirit will anſwer truth, but falſehood. All theſe Characters are letters of Hebrew, and are of the Name Tetragrammaton, which were placed in the phylacteries of the forehead of the High Prieſt in gold leaf, as in the Old Law, and were alſo placed in Jeruſalem and in Alexandria the Great, which place I beheld with weeping eyes, my hands raiſed up devoutly to Heaven, even as do the Saracens look towards Judea. ¶Theſe are furthermore the characters of the Planetz: Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Sol, Venus, Mercury and Luna:

¶All of which characters ſerve in their hours. And all muſt be made in Lead, Tin, Silver, or Copper, but the Characters of Venus muſt be made of Copper alone; and you muſt always hold theſe Characters in your right hand, and if your experiment is made in the hour of Jupiter, uſe his Characters, and ſo on. And care not if your experiment continues into the ſecond hour, ſeeing that theſe operations take their dominion from their beginnings. If you work in the hour of Mars then your experiment muſt relate to Mars; and you ſhall ignore all other hours beſides in your experimentz ſave that hour which relates to the Planet in which you do work. And therefore in all theſe conſiderations of work all muſt be done before you ſolicit the Spiritz.

III, ¶2.

YOu ſhould alſo note that you may not work at all times in this Art, but only when it is ſagacious to do ſo. You will heed the Moon, her lunations; that ſhe be increaſing in light and augmented with good aſpects; and everything in theſe days thereof: 2nd, 4th, 6th, 8th, 10th, 12th & 14th, & no more in that Moon; & do many things in this Moon continuouſly, and with good conjunctions near approaching. You muſt hold faſt to this conſideration untill the next Moon, elſe this experiment will not avail anything.

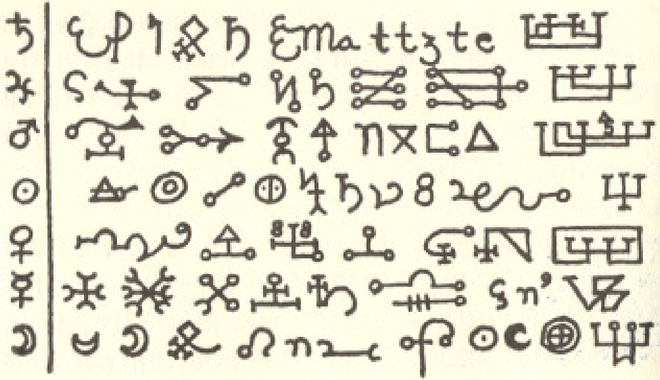
MOſt experimentʒ do begin in good Signs, as in the Sun if he be well-aſpected, and in the hour ruleth a good Planet it is better, and moſt effectual in this Art. ¶If you work for Love, work in the day and hour of Venus; if for honour, in the day and hour of Jupiter, and all the hours are of a like operation. But if you work for war or to do evil you may only work in Mars, his day and hour; and it were better that you work not at all.



OUr Hours and alſo our Calls are the agency of a True Science; a Conjunction of the Sun and Moon are to be preferred to the leſſer computations of the Church, for in all things is the Moon of foremoſt importance in conjunctions for the fortification of Circles. The Moon ſhould be in the third or fourth quarter, on that account conſider, and call the ſpiritʒ to obey your requeſts, with the diſcloſure of treaſures, ſciences, and our deſires. ¶Fear the Immortal One, and ſay your prayers and orations, and make a great oblation, faſting as aforeſaid, and obſerve all the rules and regulations herein ſet down. ¶And take heed well that you know the True Conjuration of the ſame, and the means by which it may be with three or four ſo rendered.* ¶Therefore take great heed of the name and planet, that you work wiſely in this ſecret, for it ſheweth ſecretʒ and wiſdom. If you truly obſerve the rites and keep theſe orders without doubt you ſhall not fail of your deſires.

III, ¶3.

THeſe words [alone] may ſuffer for the diſpoſition and working, and the knowledge of the place and times, and of the Characters and planetʒ. And forthwith be faithful and give God the praiſe . . . ſaying your [prayers] with ſolemnity from [your] heart. And make a great oblation, faſting for at leaſt three days as aforeſaid, and the characters muſt be made at this time, and bathe yourſelf as directed, and ſweet-cloathed in [linnen] veſtments. Then have a girdle of Buckſkin, and write about it theſe letters: A. L. P. H. A. &. O. M. E. G. A.* & on the other ſide the Great Name of God. And upon your breaſt you muſt have this figure drawn in Virgin Parchment, & hang it on your breaſt on your white veſture:†

& if you have fellows you muſt have them provided for after the ſame manner.

ALſo the Maſter muſt have a Knife with a White Hilt on which muſt be worked A. L. P. H. A.§ & with the ſame Knife make a Circle on the ground as followeth, & in the ſame manner & form, in an even & clear ſpace.

BEfore you enter into your Circle, you muſt with ſuffumigations cenſe yourſelf, as with Olibanum and Lygn Aloes and repeat Pſalm XLVIIJ*† with great devotion, as well as other devout prayers of penitence. ¶Upon your right arm you muſt have a band of Virgin Parchment with theſe figures:—

& likewiſe on your left arm a band with theſe figures:

THen in the Name of God, enter thy Circle & adjure the Spirit* with the conjuration following, & fear not, for they will work many deluſions to affright thee, but be of good comfort, & adjure them more fervently: for they muſt needs obey thee— & let your work goeth forward, & doubt not but by the mercy of God you ſhall effect that which you deſire.

IIJ, ¶4.

THen muſt you have a Sword, clear & bright, & with . . . & a ring of copper, & in the ſame written theſe words: . . . & you muſt have the Planets & their characters [upon them], & on the D[ay & Hour of Venus will you commence your work in the which you ſhall] have from the Spirit certain anſwers for what[ſoever you may aſk of them, & reſt certain that they ſhall] give you perfect anſwers.* ¶Then muſt you have a Sceptre conſecrated, of copper in the which may be graven the Great Name of God.† All theſe things muſt be conſecrated . . . & faſhion the Sword after this manner:—

The Prieſt you call to aſſiſt, being adorned with the ornament of a Prieſt , but chiefly his robes, muſt be faſting & newly come from Maß, being Pure & Clean; & while ſtanding he muſt hold the ſword betwixt his hands, ſo that the pommel of the Sword be againſt the point § upright, & holding it but lightly lifting up his right hand he ſhall ſay:—

I Conjure thee, O Sword & I adjure & bind thee by the virtue of God the Father Omnipotent, by the virtue of Jeſus Chriſt his Son our Lord, & by the Holy Spirit, & by all things made in Heaven & Earth, & by the perpetual virginity of Holy Mary, the bleſſed Mother of our Lord, & by the chaſtity of John the Baptiſt, & by the dreadfull Day of Doom, that thou be unto me a Sword conſecrate, that thou mayeſt be a bond & a help againſt all powers of Air, Water, Fire, & Earth ſuch that whenſoever this ſervant of God ſhall caſt or ſhow thee, all Spirits may be made aſtonied, until they have been obedient unto him, & do whatſoever he commandeth them. ¶I conjure thee, Sword, by the brightneß & virtue of the Kerubim which with his ſword [ ] drove Adam out of paradiſe for his perverſity & impiety; & by the Sword of Solomon which is uſed in the invocation & calling of Spirits, & by Longingus' Sword,*† that thou become bleſſed & conſecrated, & that our Lord Jeſus Chriſt bleß & dignify thee ✠ & ſanctify thee ✠ that againſt the gainſaying of all falſe Spirits thou mayeſt ſafely overcome, by the virtue of the Lord God Omnipotent which ſhall come to judge the quick & the dead, World without End. Amen.

¶Then the Prieſt ſhall make the ſign of the croß ✠ upon the Sword with the Chriſm & on bended knee he ſhall kiß the croß of the Sword.* After he ſhall lift up himſelf & take the Sword in his right hand, & ſay;— 'Strengthen us, Lord God &c.' the whole of that Pſalm,† & he § ſhall put the croſſ-feigning of the Sword upon the bare head of the Maſter & ſhall ſay;—

To thee, my ſon by the virtue of the body & blood of our Lord, Jeſus Chriſt, I give the power of this Sword, being Holy to touch, to hold, & to lift up. And as thou wouldſt govern it in all thy works, that ſa the living Lord didſt deſcend into this world out of paradiſe, ſo by the virtue of this ſword all Spirits will do Thy will & grant that they may tremble & be obedient to thoſe that hold this, O Lord which livest & reignest One God, World without End. Amen.

Confeß & counsel both together, & kiß each other, & wrap the haft of the Sword in clean cloth, & give it to the Master to kiß, & being taken in the right hand of the Master & being signed with the sign of the Croß & other Holy designs, let it be kept aside for four hours wrapped in the stole of the Priest. ¶Then in the third hour begin to exorcise the Ring of Copper—but first, let the Priest take the stole that the Sword was wrapped in, & hang the Sword up by the point, & keep it very clean, that the dust mark it not.

III, ¶5.

The Ring's consecration must be in the hour of Jupiter, & in the hour following [which is of Venus]; then shall be graven in the Ring the Great Name of God Tetragrammaton in Hebrew letters as before: & so engrave these letters that in their midst be a croß, & all be on the further side of the Ring. Then after, have this Ring of fine Gold marked as well, [i.e. gilded,] & give this to the Priest. This shall he wrap in his stole. When all is then prepared, begin the Conjuration:

I Conjure Thee, O Creature of God, thou Ring which sometime wast of Solomon blessed; I bleß thee, & be thou so blessed. ¶I beseech of thee, thou Son of God, Jesus Christ, that thy form & figure & this work which I do by thy enterprise may touch this Ring, that Lord as thy Holy Ring was bourne before the Ark of God, so do thou make this Ring to make well known unto me the knowledge of All Spirits, & that this consecration & conjuration which we aloud offer & by the virtue of this Ring the power of the wicked spirit shall be repressed, & their strength, might, & power be compassed together, that they be compelled to answer truly to all questions that they knowest without delusions, telling me the truth only of whatsoever is in their secret knowledge, that they will make it most clear & manifest unto us. Let it be done by the same Lord, Jesus Christ which with God alone liveth & reigneth in great & mighty majesty. Amen.

I Conjure thee, thou creature of God, in whose form above the clear Celestial orb all science is assigned, & by all the signs of Heaven, by the Name & Order of the Angels. by all the climes of the world, & by the Great Name of God Tetragrammaton that is graven in thee by the Judgement & Power of Jesus Christ.

After this, his beginning . . . that what Spirit soever shall be shown unto me, that . . . he shall be in great dread & fear, until he have . . . Great Name graven in this Ring, straight he ſhall obey . . . importance, to get honour, charge, . . . tell you untruth, but to ſhow & maniſeſt & anſwer all he hath heard & known . . . but that I have power which . . . Holy . . . in my works that ſtraight away all ſpirits . . . & conſecrated that truſteth in thee our aid, O Lord almighty . . . which ſhall come in the hour that all . . . obey & be subject unto him, by the bleſſed sacrament . . . that our Lord which liveſt & reigneſt World without End. Amen.

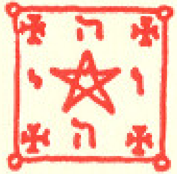
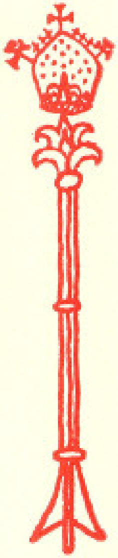
Then ſhall the Prieſt ſprinkle the Ring with Holy Water, & . . . he ſhall annoint the Ring with pure balſam & [crocus. . ?] . . . & on the middle finger of the left hand of the Maſter the Prieſt ſhall place the Ring; but when the Maſter receiveth it, he ſhall do ſo reverently, on both his knees.

III, ¶6.

IN the ſame manner is the conſecration of the plate of Copper or Tin in which muſt be graven the Great Name of God that is in the Ring. The plate muſt be the length of three inches at every quarter, & let the thickneſs be according to your diſcretion, ſo that it doth not eaſily bend; & like the Ring it muſt be gilded.*



¶Then as in the conſecration of the Ring do likewiſe to the plate of Copper; & in the ſame conjuration beforeſaid, where you ſay: 'as of the Ring bourne before the Ark of God, &c.,' here ſhall you name 'The plate where God did name the Ring' & you ſhall add, 'like as the Golden Plate in the forehead of the High Prieſt' & guardedly dignified, ſo ſhalt thou have this plate in thy invocation & conjuration of the ſpirits & their ſecrets, & being worthily dignified & conſecrated, the Moſt High & watchful God almighty ſhall by the virtue of the ſame plate, & by the Majeſty of the Great God have power to puſh down the power of the wicked ſpirits. Amen. ¶After this oriſon is ended, the Prieſt ſhall annoint the Plate with ſweet balſams & give it to him [the Maſter] in the work, being wrapped in a clean cloth & a ſweet perfume in it, & he muſt receive it reverently on both his knees.



III, ¶7.

HEre followeth the Conſecration or bleſſing of the Sceptre, which muſt be made of Bay Laurel wood, & faſhioned like unto the Sceptre or mace of the council of a city. Let it be ſo broad & ſo thick as you may deem fit, with a nail to hold the plate aforeſaid, & in the midſt of the Sceptre there muſt be a hold* & all muſt be gilded. And the Prieſt ſhall wrap his ſtole about the Sceptre & he ſhall takeſt & raiſe it on high ſaying:—

I Conjure thee O creature of God, thou regal Sceptre, dignified by the power of God & his virtue immeaſureable, by the pure wiſdom of Solomon, which once used thee in his regal kingdom, & in the binding & constraining of Spirits, by the terrible day of Judgement, & by the virtue & power of all the Angels that keep the spirits in subjection. I adjure you, when I work in this Art, that you be obedient to my consecrations, conjurations, & straight bindings, & against the malignations of any spirit whatsoever, & that it remain & keep the same virtue for which it was ordained & made by Solomon, & as to whensoever the worthy Sceptre of the Assyrians by his power & clemency did demonstrate love & friendship, so in friendship I proffer to the spirits this Sceptre, to press thee descend, & constrain thee to obedience by Jesus Christ which with God the Father & the Holy Spirit liveth & reigneth ever one God, World without End. Amen.

Which done, annoint all of the Sceptre with Balsam. Let it be of one cubit in length, no more, which done & finished give willingly to the worker* the Sceptre & with worthy devotion, let him kiss the Ring at the reception thereof; & after, take it in his left hand, & let him lay it where he will, in a clean place, until the time be that he would work therewith. ¶So have I secretly revealed to you that without which it is impossible to work effectually in the Art of Nigromancy. All this must be done in one day—that is on a Friday —both Sword, Ring, Plate, & Sceptre. ¶And so may you do anything whatsoever you will, observing the times, seasons, & hours, as well as others order as aforesaid.

Now it resteth to say something of the conjurations, say in accord &c., & the first of these—whose Art never faileth—but first take care that the aforesaid conjurations be made on a Friday; of the Sword, Plate, Ring, & Sceptre, let them be made in the month of September . . . the next Friday after the Conjuration of the Sword & other instruments, with the moon increasing . . . after your Balsam, which must be made when the Sun Ils in Aries, that is, in March, which then made in a great quantity you may keep always & need not more . . . in a font which was destined for the purpose.

Tractate Four, ¶1.

First shall you retire to thy chamber, being prepared as aforesaid, & . . . accordingly, upon a Wedenesday, & you shall begin in the hour of Mercury, which is at the rising of the Sun. If it be a clear day, it is all the better, but if it is dark do not stay in his hour at afternoon. If then it be that . . . look in the nighttime soever he be, when it is clear, in the hour . . . & thou shalt make a Circle of chalk, that it may well be distinguish-of Solomon, which once uſed thee in his regal kingdom, & in the binding & conſtraining of Spiritz, by the terrible day of Judgement, & by the virtue & power of all the Angels that keep the ſpiritz in ſubjection. I adjure you, when I work in this Art, that you be obedient to my conſecrations, conjurations, & ſtraight bindings, & againſt the malignations of any ſpirit whatſoever, & that it remain & keep the ſame virtue for which it was ordained & made by Solomon, & as to whenſoever the worthy Sceptre of the Aſſyrians by his power & clemency did demonſtrate love & friendſhip, ſo in friendſhip I proffer to the ſpiritz this Sceptre, to preß thee deſcend, & conſtrain thee to obedience by Jeſus Chriſt which with God the Father & the Holy Spirit liveth & reigneth ever one God, World without End. Amen.

Which done, annoint all of the Sceptre with Balſam. Let it be of one cubit in length, no more, which done & finiſhed give willingly to the worker* the Sceptre & with worthy devotion, let him kiß the Ring at the reception thereof; & after, take it in his left hand, & let him lay it where he will, in a clean place, until the time be that he would work therewith. ¶So have I ſecretly revealed to you that without which it is impoſſible to work effectually in the Art of Nigromancy. All this muſt be done in one day—that is on a Friday —both Sword, Ring, Plate, & Sceptre. ¶And ſo may you do anything whatſoever you will, obſerving the times, ſeaſons, & hours, as well as others order as aforeſaid.

Now it reſteth to ſay ſomething of the conjurations, ſay in accord &c., & the firſt of theſe—whoſe Art never faileth—but firſt take care that the aforeſaid conjurations be made on a Friday; of the Sword, Plate, Ring, & Sceptre, let them be made in the month of September . . . the next Friday after the Conjuration of the Sword & other inſtrumentz, with the moon increaſing . . . after your Balſam, which muſt be made when the Sun is in Aries, that is, in March, which then made in a great quantity you may keep always & need not more . . . in a font which was deſtined for the purpoſe.

Tractate Four. ¶1.

Firſt ſhall you retire to thy chamber, being prepared as aforeſaid, & . . . accordingly, upon a Wedeneſday, & you ſhall begin in the hour of Mercury, which is at the riſing of the Sun. If it be a clear day, it is all the better, but if it is dark do not ſtay in his hour at afternoon. If then it be that . . . look in the nighttime ſoever he be, when it is clear, in the hour . . . & thou ſhalt make a Circle of chalk, that it may well be diſtinguiſh-

ed. Make it of generous ſize & let it be in the midſt of the houſe. As you ſit in the Circle you may turn you to the windows, & will ſee the four corners of the Heavens; that is to ſay the Eaſt, Weſt, North, & South. Make ſo your Circle that when you may mark your corners . . . then take thou the Sword in your left hand, & the ring on the middle finger of the left hand, & the ſceptre being held in your right hand, & faſtened thereto the plate, & take thou the ſceptre, & boldly go thou with the Sword, & bleß you; & being right diſpoſed as before, enter the Circle & thy fellows alſo being right & well diſpoſed—& if you will, you may bleß your fellows with the croß of the Sword & with the Sceptre as before—then enter into the corner; be in the middle of the Circle as a ſentry. Let the croß of the Sword lie on the earth, & ſet yourſelf next to the haft of the Sword looking towards the Eaſt. Obſerve that your followers ſit at the hame [or point] of the Sword, looking towards the Weſt, & mark that you may in the Circle behold all the principal parts of the world; that is to ſay Eaſt, Weſt, North, & South. But chiefly look thou in the Eaſt, & at thy back be the backs of thy fellows, & upon both ſides thou ſhalt ſee the North & South.

Then being rightly diſpoſed & propoſed, hold this book upon your knee, & upon what part of the heavens thou ſhalt look—that is, towards the Eaſt—begin the firſt Conjuration, which once ſaid turn you the ſecond time to the Weſt, thirdly to the South, & fourthly towards the North, ſaying this Conjuration; & as often as you ſhall name the Great Name Tetragrammaton graven in the Plate & fixed to the Sceptre, & in the Ring, with bended knee ſhalt thou kiß both—& mark that your fellows do the ſame—& that you may be ſafe & ſecure, in the foreheads of your fellows make a croß with both the Plate & Ring, & ever as you read the Conjuration, have the handle of the Sword, which his hand—in which the Sceptre is—is over, & be ready to ſeize the ſame in a moment but at the ſight of the Sceptre the ſpirit ſhould be affrighted ; & then you ſhall kneel with great & circumſpect dignity, looking on this book. Leiſurely you ſhall kneel, & do not look before the book leaſt the ſpirit at that phaſe appointed be mean, and deviſe ſuch tales as you longeth for, So let this your devotion, and all your works begun be wary & of mighty force, for if diſſolutely you race, your work will not go forward . . . days. . . . have a fellow that may look & take heed as in that . . . the moſt, ſhould the ſpiritz then appear, that he may truly tell . . . if that . . . may turn that way, fixing his eyes always upon the . . . & the Maſter ſhall after, at the end of every conjuration with his fellows . . .* & that one fellow ſhall tell you truly without diſſembling, until the . . . drawn near unto the Circle. You ſhall not ſpeak one word to the ſpirit more than the conjuration in this book, until you have from your fellows that he is devout & hath refrained from laughing & toying. Let him therefore in any caſe refrain, & when you are ſettled in direction then perform your conjuration, & then conſtantly you ſhall ſay to your fellows: "They are bound," then looking directly upon them thou ſhalt ſay this conjuration of obedience as followeth ſlowly & clearly without recourse to the book, but looking conſtantly towards them . . .

¶ . . . & offering or bowing the Septre with the Plate towards them: & when you name Tetragrammaton you ſhall ſhow them your Sceptre & Plate in your left† hand with the Ring, at which point they will begin to bow their knees & hark their teeth. Then undoubtedly you ſhall hear & have a true anſwer, & they ſhall do their obedience to the great & mighty God; & in coming again begin the Conjuration, bowing the Sceptre & the Plate of the Great Name of God. If they bend not their knees, then holding it towards your fellows, graſp the Sword in your hand, but ſay nothing. Then at bowing the Sword, Plate, & Sceptre, they ſtill bend not their knee then conſider the hour of the planet that reigns then, & ſhow the Table with the characters of all planets every one in a plate by itself, & mark under what planet they be. For at the proper character they will be obedient & bend their knees, under one of the planets; & on their knees they will bend to that. Conſider, therefore which is the planet, & when his hour is; keep it well in mind. But as yet thou ſhalt not ſpeak. The hour being found, you muſt then remain in the Circle for viij hours; you ſhall ſit ſtill 'til the coming of the ſame hour . . .

¶ Say this conjuration & binding to obedience:—

O I conjure you, Spirit; & I adjure you by that infinite goodneß of God wherewith all things were made when he aſked: "let it be made;" & it was done. I conjure, require, & command you nowbetimes & forthwith that you appear, viſibly without our Circle, by the almighty power & wrath of God the conquerer, wherewith he made man like to his own image above all others . . . [by his] juſtice [by the which] your pride hath been dampened, & by the mercy wherewith . . . & by the humility & virginity of the bleſſed Virgin Mary, mother of our Lord, Jeſus Chriſt . . . he who brought you to obedience, that you anſwer truthfully, & give quick reply to all my queſtions, & that you [dare not] diſobey, but heed theſe words, & be obedient thereunto.

¶I conjure you, Spirit[s] by the obedience that you all do owe, by this great & heavenly Name of God [here the Maſter ought to bow] Tetragrammaton that in this Sceptre & Ring is graven; that by theſe Holy & High Names of God All-powerful that you quickly & without delay perform my requeſt, or depart; & by the precious blood of Jeſus Chriſt that you be obligated to bring ſome other that hath knowledge [soas] to anſwer me truly what I demand of, all & whatſoever I ſhall aſk, without any fraud or deciet, but rather that you forthwith fetch my deſires, by the virtue of wiſe Solomon whose power, by the great virtue of God, hath bound you to obedience, which is of force & authority to will & command, by He which liveth world without end & reigneth everlaſtingly. Amen.

¶Which all being finiſhed, mark as I ſaid whether they do their obedience or no, & call to mind all things aforeſaid. ¶The Binding of the Spirit:—

I Conjure you, Spirit, by the obedience you owe to the Great Name of God [bowing] Tetragrammaton, who hath made both you & me & all things by the great power of His mighty Name, and by Michael the Archangel which caſt and drove you down out of Heaven, and by the Annunciation of the Bleſſed Lady, mother of our Lord, by all martyrs, by the Paſſion, Death, & Reſſurection of Jeſus Chriſt, & by his Aſcention into Heaven; & by the great abundance of tears of the bleſſed Virgin Mary, & the Magdalene & the other Holy women for the death of Chriſt, & by the darkening of the Sun at his death, & by the ranting & raving of the people thereat, & by all the things that then were done in Heaven, on Earth, in the Air, & in the depths of Hell . . . that was to me of all things that I ſhall aſk you. Give me perfect anſwer without fraud or deceipt withall, or any manner of fear. Make true anſwer to my queſtions, by virtue of our Lord & Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, reigning as One; Father, Son, & Holy Ghoſt by & to which be all honour, praiſe & glory, One God, the Father Everlaſting, world without end. Amen.

I Conjure you that ſpeak [but if not, then only, "I conjure you Spirit,"] by the virtue . . . & by the ineſtimable ſtrength of the Name [bowing] of God, Tetragrammaton, & by all the characters in this Circle, & by all things in Heaven, Earth, & Hell, that this thing [—Petition—] . . . . ſhew me & tell me without any fraud or deceipt, I adjure thee by God Almighty that ſhall come to judge the quick & the dead, who livest & reigneth world without end. Amen.

¶Then certainly he will tell you of the thing you require & all concerning it soever: which being done, you shall give the Spirit licence to depart.

NOte that in all this enterprise your fellows look not, least that they be tempted to speak, for if they spoke then would there be no peace, for the spirit being bound cannot hurt, & if they would hurt at the beginning, they cannot presently for fear of the Sword, Sceptre, Plate, & Ring, but if the binding is loosed by idle talk then all would be lost; & hold you always the Sword & Sceptre in your hand, at rising, & take no heed of scoffing or jesting, or any laughing voice you perchance hear, but have your eyes fixed on the Sword & Sceptre.

¶Licence to depart:—

I Conjure you, Spirit, by that Holy Temple of Solomon that the Almighty God sanctified, & by all the elements, & by the Great Name of God [bow] graven in this Ring & Sceptre, that you quietly & peaceably depart, without any tempest, rain, thundering, or other deliverer of dismay, terror, or fear, & that you & your fellows come to me whensoever I call you, without any fear or trouble to any, by the virtue of our Lord Jesus Christ, & by the virtue of the living God, Father, Son, & Holy Ghost all one, who liveth & reigneth world without end. Amen.

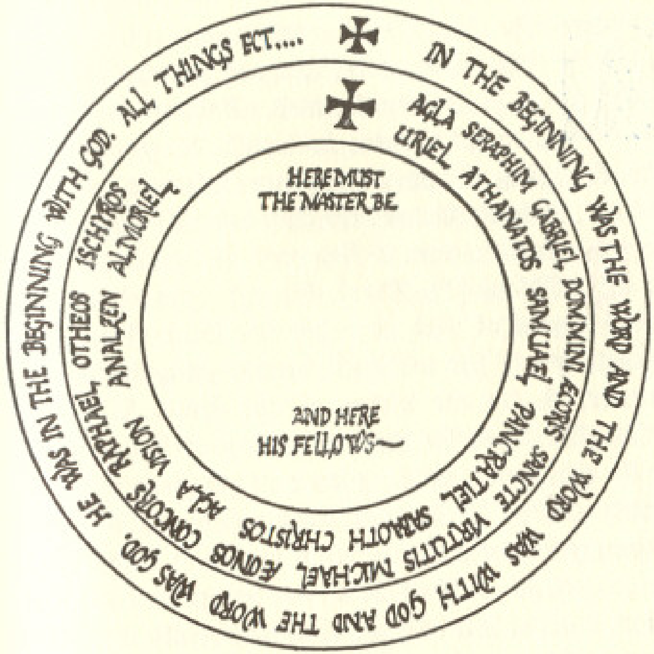
¶Then give God praiſe, & riſe, & go out of your Circle & eat what meat ſhall pleaſe you, but take your Sword, Septre, Plate, & Ring with you. And have ſome Frankincence ready, & make a fumigation with your Sword [in hand] & clothes, & be not fearful, but rejoice in God & be ſtrong in faith.

Here followeth the form & figure of the Circle for the experiment afore-ſpecified, at which making you muſt be clean of conſcience, & pure. You & your fellows muſt hear a Maß of St. Cyprian, & begin your work on a Thursday in the Hour of Jupiter* but only if the weather be fair & clear. If not, begin in the next hour of Jupiter, when it is a fair day, & clear; & ſo be it that the moon is increaſing in Light. ¶[Note eſpecially that you ought to ſtand facing Eaſt, with your fellows facing the other quarters. You are permitted to wander from this ſtation if required, & may enter the ſpan between the Names Theos Agla & Anima Sother in the South, but under no circumſtances ſhall you enter the ſpan between the Names Otheos & Chriſtos in the North. —ed.]

N.



¶The Circle needed in the experiment for [diſcovery of] treaſure & in connexion with the circle, & every-thing that is neceſſary for the ſame work. ¶And firſtly the Circle muſt be made of vellum parchment—a ring thereof—of the compaß of viij foot over, & laid on the ground with x loops to pin it down:—[Take note that all of John, Chapter I ſhould be written in the outer Circle, in a ſpiral.—ed.]

Ee

Note that to this operation you must bring the Sword, Sceptre, Ring, & Plate, & the Circle must be consecrated, And use sweet and pleasent odours; labdanum & crocus & such like, & having all yobr instruments consecrate, on bended knee, looking towards the East devoutly say:—

I Conjure you, O Amazael, Aziel, Anathana,* Absoul [?], Azael, Tyer,† you Holy Angels of God, by the Spiritual Grace that teacheth you "sin not!" & by the terrible face of Lucifer, & by the virtue of our Lord & yours, Jesus Christ, & by the fearful day of Judgement, & by that Inestimable Name of Nanes that was written on the forehead of Aaron, Tetragrammaton [bowing] that here is written in my Ring & Sceptre, that so often as you shall show your service unto me in a vision, without fear or awe. ¶Answer truly my questions, without any fraud or trouble from error, nor with any delay shall you say & do whatsoever I shall command of you by the virtue & power of our Lord Jesus Christ which liveth & reigneth one with the Father & the Holy Ghost world without end. Amen.

Work upon a Thursday in the hour of Saturn or Jupiter. If you work in the night, let the Moon shine & the stars be bright. ¶Before you enter into your Circle vi hours you are permitted a light repast of fresh & light meat* liver, fish, bread of clean unborn wheat grain, and wine; but only in modest serving, for it is but to comfort & sustain the body, for in this work you shall see marvelous things. ¶You must be set in the North, & turn the face of you & your fellows to the South; which done, let your fellows raise their hands, & you hold the Sword directly up, & let the Ring, Sceptre & Plate be in the other. Then you shall say on bended knees in the middle of your Circle, bending & streaching the Sceptre towards the North† make this great charge.

I Conjure you, Spirits, Astaroth, Belial, & Troglis, & you infernal spirits, by Jesus Christ, by the Father, Son, & Holy Ghost, & by the gracious Virgin Mary, by the prophet John the Baptist, by the Tables of Moses, by the virtue of Michael the Archangel that drove you out of Heaven, & by the glorious Saint Cyprian the martyr with which you made subject, & by Solomon who made you obey his sayings, & by the fearful day of Judgement, by the mild countenence of Jesus, by his precious wounds, both in his hands & in his feet, by his Annunciation & Preaching, by his Death, Ressurection & glorious Ascention, & by the sending of the Holy Ghost, by the Father & the Son, by the Holy & glorius Apostles, by all the virtues of Heaven, by all the ſeven gifts of St. Mary the Virgin, mother of Jesus Christ, which ſhe gave her ſon; by his five joys, by the Aſſumption of the Virgin Mary, & by all Holy Myſteries.

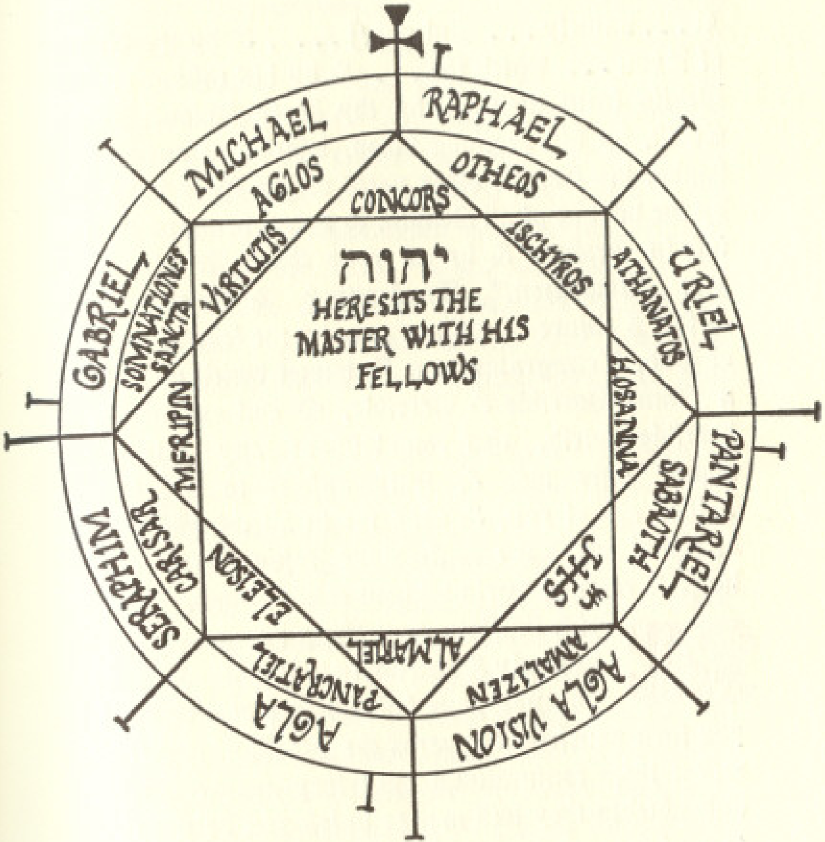
I Conjure you by that great & excellent Name of God, ineffable & infinite maſter of the Univerſe, & by that terrible Name of God, Tetragrammaton [bowing] aforementioned, that is in theſe objects; Ring, Sceptre, Sword, & Plate, that by all theſe reverent Names . . . [appear] unto me without any fearful or horrific viſion, th— . . . or other here, but that without any tarrying you [obey my commands, & all elſe I ſhall aſk] of you . . . by theſe great . . . & hear . . . do worſhip . . . Father, Son, & Holy Ghoſt which are all one God, world without end. Amen.



This Circle is for Treaſure that be hid in water— as in the Sea, or elſewhere . . .

C . . . namely . . . Julius[?] . . . , & by the virtue of Lyon . . . which the . . . & by his casting out of Devils from men, & by thy Holy saviour Jesus Christ, by his precious blood, which ran out of his hands, his feet, & other parts of his Holy body, & by the virtues of all Saints, & by all honours awaiting in Heaven, & by all your Good Angels, who are: Almarazen,* Amalzatin,† & Colatizab'tin; & still I adjure & conjure you, by the fearful Name of God, Tetragrammaton [bowing] which is to you a Name Horrible & Terrible, O evil expiates and horrible spiritß, that you without any delay do appear unto me, & truly answer to whatsoever I shall ask of you, & obey me in all things, by the virtue of our Lord & Saviour Jesus Christ, which livest & reignest world without end. Amen.

Which finished, & nothing appear— even if devoutly & charitably it be said—& neither you nor your fellows sees any thing, let you turn yourselves towards the North or South, & repeat these conjurations until they appear— which undoubtedly they will appear unleß you be not clean in conscience, body, & clothing—which should be before you have repeated it three times; & when the first comes, you shall hear as it were the hissing of a serpent, which at the first hearing with a bold mind name you Tetragrammaton, signing the which with the the sign of the croß, bowing your Sceptre towards the place where you first hear. But answer not without your book, nor fear not, for undoubtedly the Evil Spirit will transform himself into horrible & terrible shapes to terrify you & your fellows; but let them name Tetragramaton in a like manner, and sign them with the croß. Then straightaway the spiritß will cease, & change themselves into a fair shape, & after, for the span of one hour, you shall hear no stirring, but standing quietly you shall hear them speak.

Which done, & the conjuration finished, if they be standing, offer them the Sceptre* & they shall follow in obedience; & if they do not, show them the characters of the Seven Planetß doing as is said in the former experiment, & mark your hour, & without all doubt they will be obedient, they shall say to you in a hoarse voice: Behold! From out of the fire ascend nine winged beings. It is they who shall bring what you desire . . . & surely you shall behold them, bringing the treasure with them in coffers from all directions, & a fresh scent accompanies them; & then shall you see them, then you shall speak the name Tetragrammaton . . . with the Sceptre in your hand . . . which shall be like a lion before, & the form [or face]? of an eagle behind, & his voice like that of a fair women; as fair as thee to look upon & theſe will give you ſcarce . . . thereunto to ſay the conjuration in the firſt experiment, & so being ſaid, then the egregia &c. naming His Name, & devoutly ſhall you conjure him to ſpeak & do whatſoever thou wilt—but it is ſore hard to make him ſpeak—then thou ſhalt riſe, & whether he will or will not, thou ſhalt command him to ſpeak & to bring thee what thou requeſt, in ſuch a place as you name—but after he has once ſpoken you ſhall never ſay anything without the conjuration aforeſaid—& when you have named your place he will ſtraightaway depart. Do not forget which place you name, but add this to your conjurations; that without fail he ſhall come again, & that then only about the time that you appoint. He will come, & you may aſk of him what you will, either in the earth or in the ſea; but you muſt make fumes of Maſtic & Oil,* & after you ſhall ſay your conjuration, & give him licence & ſtraight he will vaniſh away. But you ſhall not go out of your Circle, but muſt remain, as in the former experiment, & with patience ſhall you have your demand; for which offer God thanks, Who worketh & doeth all for His glory & your good.

¶This Circle is for Water Spirits. Uſe in like manner, when you may work for friendſhip, in the Hour of the Sun on the morning of Sunday:†

NOw it reſteth to tell the making of an ointment, wherewith you ſhall annoint your eyes; & all ſpirits will appear unto you ſuch that you may ſee them when you pleaſe. [NB]* Firſt when the Sun is in the ſame ſign, & in the ſame moment as Mars,† take the ſting§ of a ſerpent which hath killed himſelf & dry it, & make of it a powder. Then take Balſam — & mix: of the powder, 1 oz.; & of the Oil 4 ſpoonfulls. Then take a little of the root of Mandrake, in a powder, 4 ſpoonfulls—& if you will you may preß the leaves in the oil—& mix altogether. Then put it in a clean glaß with a little clear ſtopper, & when the Sun is in which degree of Aries that is fitting, make this Circle following in your chamber, & put the glaß with the oil in the midſt of the Circle, between your legs, with a piece of clean copper, & have your Sword, Sceptre, & Ring in your hand[s], & the other inſtruments [i.e. the Plate] towards the Eaſt. ¶Bowing your Sceptre, begin to ſay very devoutly—having faſted the ſame day, bread & water; & hearing a Maß of the turmoil of St. Mary the Virgin & a Maß of St. Cyprian, & offer in the Maß what you will only ſo that it be not leß in value than a penny — then having all things ready, towards the Eaſt: [ſay:]

HOly Lord, Father Omnipotent, & Everlaſting God, which of Thy only Word didſt make & create all things; which in the days of Moſes didſt conſecrate oils to be powdered, & annointed on the head of Samuel; by the virtue of thoſe oils wherewith Mary the Magdalene didſt annoint the feet of Chriſt, & by thoſe oils which St. Mary the Virgin, mother of our Lord unto Thy bleſſed Son didſt annoint his Holy body aftre it had been taken from the croß & was placed into the tomb; & by his humility who was born in a ſtable, which lived as the ſervant of a carpenter, & was obedient unto Thy will alone unto death, which ſuffered for us miſerable ſinners; moſt humbly we pray thee, like as this oil by Thy Holy Saints & Angels was prepared & made Holy , & by conſecration made bleſſed, by the conſecrating power of his precious blood, Thy only begotten Son who died upon the croß, bleß theſe oils to annoint & open my eyes ſo that everywhere I may ſee & behold the ſpirits appearing, which once were inviſible & hidden, & that familiarly they may anſwer me whatſoever I ſhall aſk of them, & be obedient unto me & perform my ſayings, & alſo whatſoever, by Thy grace & power, I ſhall command of them by virtue of this oil, & by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, Thy dearly beloved Son, which with Thee &

the Holy Ghoſt liveth & reigneth ever One God, world without end. Amen.

O Holy Mary, mother of Jeſus Chriſt, make this oil worthy & conſecrate; O Holy Spirit, Cherubim & Seraphim; bleſſed, O all you ſpirits bleſſed, I beſeech you to ſanctify this oil & make it an example . . . O you ſainted Apoſtles, O bleſſed martyrs, holy Patriarchs & Prophets, O all holy Angels, bleß & conſecrate this oil, that all ſpirits may, by the virtue of this oil, be driven to obedience without any fear, terror, or diſquiet to me or any other creature, & that viſibly I may ſee them, by Jeſus Chriſt Our Lord. Amen.

Which done, kiß & put the Sceptre & Ring in the midſt of the Circle, laying it againſt the glaß with the oil, & the Sword acroß it in the manner of a croß. But take heed that the Plate with the Name of God Tetragrammaton touch the Earth, & be rotated ; & put the Ring upon thy fingre all the night following. You ſhall lie that night in a clean linnen & ſweet, in a clean & ſecret chamber & bed, & ſo much as you can, abſtain from ſleep; & without all doubt, before the middle of the night, thou ſhalt have that which [thou deſireſt] . . . By 20 days thou ſhalt not be tempted to evil . . . After, eat a little, that thou faſt not overlong, & then you ſhall ſee a million Angels in the air, which will come & bleß the oil which you have made. Now this is a ſign, when as about the middle of the night you hear, as it were, a talking very diſtinctly, but you cannot underſtand [what is ſaid], You ſhall ſee the Sceptre lifted up into the middle of the Circle, & the Sword alſo, without hands. Take heed you be clean when you touch it leaſt that wonder decay. But it is better that a prieſt make this oil, & enter the Circle to make it. Always when you make this, you muſt be alone.

THis oil muſt be kept in a clean glaß phial, or in an unguentorium bought clean & wrapped in the ſtole or garment of a prieſt. But do not uſe the oil until thou be re-conſecrated to God, & thou ſhalt ſee many Angels, & thy Angel preſently if thou wilt, & he ſhall teach thee what he knoweth, & what he knoweth not he will learn, to teach thee. If he be inferior, he will aſk of his Emperor, & he himſelf will teach him; & he will tell thee howſoever is . . .

¶Saying with the Sceptre—& you muſt have of . . . Olibanum in the Circle, & fire to make fumigation— . . . & ſee the ſpirits ſay this Conjuration:—

I Conjure thee, thou ſpirit preſent, by virtue of this oil, & by the virtue of this Name written in this Sceptre & Ring, & by the fearfull Day of Judgement; & I conjure & require of you by the precious blood of Jeſus Chriſt that you be unto me loyal, truthful, & truſtworthy at my command, & that thou do not ſhow me any terror,or fear, or hurt to horrify me, but quickly, without fraud or deceit you come unto me ſo neigh that there may be but ſeven feet between ye & me, & that truly you anſwer me with effect whatſoever I ſhall aſk, by that great & ineffable Name of God Tetragrammaton [bowing Sceptre as before] that is in my Ring & Sceptre, & by Jeſus Chriſt, the only begotten Son & ſaviour which with the Father & the Holy Ghoſt liveth & reigneth One God, world without end. Amen.

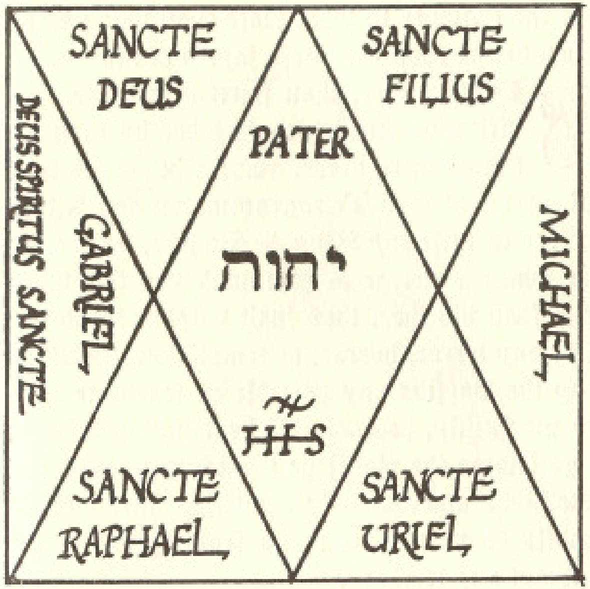
IV, ¶5.

¶[Spirits who govern tranſport; their experiment]: . . . a horſe to ſh-. . . name a . . . ſerve you at all times, & to carry . . . to England, or to Egypt, or Jeruſalem, or Alexandria within a few hours, without any fraud, deceit or delay.

BE clean in all things, then make this Circle in your chamber in the hour of Jupiter; then enter your Circle with your inſtruments & characters, & turn you toward the Weſt quarter & begin this conjuration:—

I Conjure you, Spiritß & Devils in the Weſt, & you the principal Spirit of the Weſt; I adjure & conjure you by the infinite power of God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghoſt; & by the clemency of & the virginity of the glorious Virgin Mary, mother of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, & by his humility, plentifulneß, & gentleneß, & by all his pains, & by his death; by the rending of the temple thereat, by the darkening of the Sun at his Paſſion, by all the Names of God known & unknown, & by this Name infallible & infinite, which is terrible, great & Holy: Tetragrammaton, that is graven in this, my Ring & Sceptre; & by the fearfull Day of Judgement, that without tarrying you come & appear, bringing with you a ſwift ſpirit-horſe which you have & know, that without deceit, fraud, hurt, or fear ſhall humbly obey me, and carry me without any bodily hurt or ſpiritual hurt or fear whither-ſoever it pleaſeth me to go [name the place] by him that liveth & reigneth ever One God, world without end. Amen.

Which done, you may kiß the Ring & Sceptre, & with the blood of a lapwing or of a bat, make this figure following with the characters new* . . . & place it in the window towards the Weſt, & ſtand in your Circle—& if your Circle be made that it extend directly to the wall Weſt, it is better . Which done ſay the conjuration thrice,



& then he will come, but take heed of this for then will appear in the air ſpiritß with many horſes which then wilt . . . & there will be four ſuch horſes . . . but take heed & note well whether they be white or black, & chooſe only from thoſe that be white, & you will one ſuch with a red bridle, for all the others are demons, & none hath a bridle but one. Thou ſhalt ſay to the principal Spirit that thou wilt have the horſe which beſt pleaseth thee—& thou ſhalt point to the horſe with the red bridle—& then all the other horſes will vaniſh away, but that horſe will come then out of the chamber to what place thou wilt name . . .

¶Then before thou mounteſt, ſayeth of him:—

I Conjure thee, thou ſpirit of a horſe, by the virtue of him which & whereby thou & all things were made. Come hither, & by that great Name of God Tetragrammaton that I ſhewed unto thee in theſe my Ring & Sceptre, by the virtue of the which I charge & command you that whenſoever I ſhall bid thee, thou ſhalt without fraud or deceit, or any terror, horror, or temptation, ſhowing me not by the wayſide any horrible or fearſome demon, carry me ſwiftly, peacably, & honeſtly whereſoever I will go [name the place] be it on Earth, in Heaven, or Hell—or otherwiſe—without any hurt ſpiritually or bodily & return me again from thence in ſafety & without any trechery.

I Do charge thee by all the powers of Heaven, & by the infinite power & clemency of God, & by the virtue of his Name Tetragrammaton, that I have thee at command all the while that thou carryeſt me & re-carryeſt me to what place I ſhall command, & that thou not ſtumble nor deign thee to go to any other place than I ſhall bid thee, whether I am riding or ſitting upon thee, by Jeſus Chriſt Our Lord & Saviour which liveſt & reigneſt, world without end. Amen.

Afterwards, strech your Sceptre towards the Spirit, looking into the Air towards the prince that licenced him by virtue of the conjuration, & after thou shalt take the end of the bridle in thy hand & put thy foot into the stirrup saying the former conjuration unto the words: 'without any hurt spiritually or bodily,' & then show him your Sceptre, & Ring, & say: ¶'By virtue of this Name written in this Ring & Sceptre I command thee that thou faithfully obey my desires without delay' ¶& after he will go into the Air & bring thee where thou wilt. When you come to the place where you desire, put your bridle secretly where you will;* & you shall say in descending the same conjuration that you said upon ascending into the Air, unto its end. Then go & do what you will, but take heed that you commit no sin, nor break any commandment, for if you do, your horse will not be at your obedience, nor can you ride him to bring you back again unless you remain pure & unpolluted whatsoever with such like which you must observe.

This is the Circle for the experiment above which may also be used for the Circle of friendship, which with the same conjurations may be used, but you must call out of the South: Almazon, & Elobona § in the hour of Venus, & command to cause friendship betwixt two, & love, & constancy & without any doubt they will do whatsoever you command them. But you must use all your instruments & characters as in the former conjuration & use all circumstances as before done; but do all devoutly, with great piety & discretion, for in this Art there is no dallying or jesting, but God must have his due honour, by whose gracious presidence all things are done & brought to pass at your request. Therefore be mindful & thankful to Him for these wonderful miracles which you do attempt & accomplish in His Name.

IV. ¶6.

¶[To Know a True Spirit from Anything Other:]

Now of the knowledge of a good & true spirit such . . . conjurations, instruments, & Circles in the first experiment . . . in the hour of Jupiter or Venus, being clean go into your chamber & Circle, & on bended knees in the midst of the Circle with your fellows if you will, holding up the Sword in your hand upright against the Spirit of the East, by your conjuration first you shall begin. After once saying the conjuration, turn you towards the West; after to the South; & last towards the North, calling the spirits out of all the regions.

After four times ſaying your conjuration you ſhall call the ſpirits on bended knees ſaying firſt: ¶‘I conjure you ſpirits of the Eaſt,’ ſecondly: ¶‘I conjure you ſpirits of the Weſt,’ & ſo on to the four quarters. And ſo repeat your conjuration ’til the four Principal Spirits appear, then to know which are true & which are falſe, bind them by your conjuration, & all true ſpirits will do obedience. Bending the Sceptre towards them, & your Ring, & Characters of the Planets, they will bend their knees. If they honour the Great Name of God Tetragrammaton—which doubtleß they will— then they will do ſo at the firſt, without tarrying any. But repeat & begin your conjuration thrice, & thoſe that will not then obey & do reverence you may know to be falſe, damned ſpirits, & perverſe. For knowledge further of their offices & names, look in the Book of St. Cyprian, which is called the book of the offices of ſpirits; the which is divided into four parts, according to the four parts of the world, & thereby you ſhall know the Names of all thoſe Spirits, & of their offices, & ſo by practice & good heed you may have all at your fingers’ end; for if you lead a good life & keep from voluntary & preſumptuous ſins, & obſerve all orders & reverences before ſpecified, you may eaſily attain any experiment that you deſire, ſo long as you be clean in life & clothing, & in body & mind, & devout in all your doings, for which the Lord God be praiſed both now & forevermore. Amen.

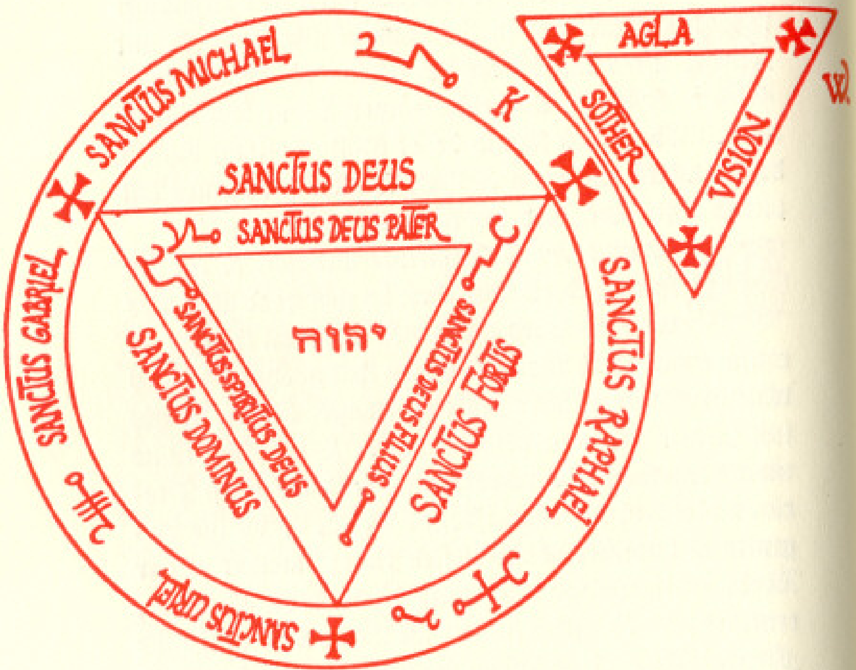
¶With this Circle & Triangle following the Spirits will not fail to anſwer, & truthfully tell thee anything:

And make it in the hour of Mercury, & put the Ring in the Weſt part of the Circle— or in the Triangle— upon a four foot linnen cloth. The Ring ſhould be of Gold, hollow, with a device which will open & ſhut, & after it is made faſt on its back part, then ſay this conjuration:—

I Conjure you, O Prince Alaſtiel, & all thy ſpirits ſubject unto thee, by that good God who with his word created & made all things; I conjure you all & require you by that goodneß of God which made man after his own image, & you by his juſt geſture for your pride damned, & by his infinite mercy wherewith he redeemed us with the Moſt Precious blood of his Son, Jeſus Chriſt, & by the virginity & humility of the bleſſed Mary, mother of our Lord, by the power wherewith he subdued all ſpirits, crucified, * & made ſubject all the devils, & by the Fearful Day of Judgement, by all the Virtues & Powers of Heaven, by Angels & Archangels, Cherubim, & Seraphim, by the Prophets, Patriarchs, & Martyrs, by the Bleſſed Saints & the Holy Virgins; by Jeſus Chriſt, by his death & paſſion, by his humility & converſation[?], & by this Great & Terrible



Name of God, Tetragrammaton [bowing the Sceptre as beforeſaid] which was in the forehead of Moſes, graven in my Sceptre, & conſtructed & conſecrated in my Ring, wonderful & inexpreſſable. You, you Prince Alaſtiel I conjure to aſſign me one Familiar Spirit, not of the higheſt nor of the loweſt [order] but of excellent knowledge, which can & will abide with me, true & faithfull, for the term of my natural life, faithfully ſeeking all I aſk for, & being obedient; anſwering not ſubtly or fraudeulntly, or with deceit, but fondly & faithfully; truly anſwering me of all queſtions which I ſhall demand of him, & by the Powers & Virtues of God our Father, that ſo long as this Ring ſhall laſt & endure, that he ſhall remain & continue therein & never go out or depart, unleß of me he be aſked to come out, or licenced to depart, & by Thy power that is in this, conſecrated & fumed, by Thy ſacrifice, & all real works aforeſaid, by him alſo that ſhall come to Judge the quick & the dead & the world by fire. Amen.

After this is ſaid, you ſhall ſee them in the Triangle. Call all the ſpiritȝ between themſelves, & [he]* will aſſign you one which he himſelf will include† into the Ring, but you muſt ſay this conjuration thrice before, or otherwiſe they will not obey. ¶Which done, & the Spirit being included, you ſhall put the Ring joining to the Circle, § right within thy chamber with thee. ¶Which accomplished & done they will all stand at the window to hear your words: ¶Then say:—

I Conjure thee, Spirit, included in this Ring, by the great power of God, & by the words that hath restrained thee & made thee subject & obedient, & by all the miracles of Jesus Christ, & by that great & ineffable Name of God Tetragrammaton that is in my Ring & Sceptre engraved, that so oft as thou shalt be included in this Ring—by the virtue of thy Prince Alastiel—by my conjurations, thou never go forth or depart unless thou be licenced, but truly answer all my questions whensoever I shall ask or demand of you, without fraud or deceit, or guile, or any dissimulation [then move to the West]. O thou spirit now without, within this Ring I conjure you, & be thou quick to heed my call, & answer me truly all questions whatsoever, by Jesus Christ Our Lord who one with the Father & the Holy Ghost shall come to judge the quick & the dead & the world by fire. Amen.

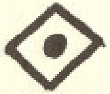
IV, ¶7.

¶[For theft: to cause the thief to come unto thee, in order for, & to allow thee to ask what thou wilt of him, wheresoever he be:]—

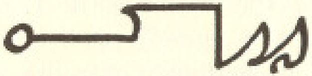
FIrst having your Circle as before for theft in the first experiment & all instruments & all conjurations performed & yourself clean, look first at the phase of the Moon, the Sun being in Leo on the first day of the Moon.*

TAke some virgin wax which never shall touch water or air[?], clean & white, & in the same work until it be soft. Of that wax make an image of a man or a woman, but make it by the Sun, & when you have made your image, write in the forehead: Iris & this character

& on the cleave or crown of the head: Sybilla & also this character:



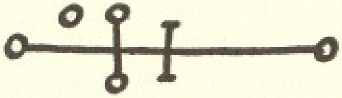
& in the midst of the head: Azriel & this character:



after, on the breast, thy name—or the name of him for whom you work together with these Names:

Eliezar, Malago, with this character:

upon the feet, & on the back, against the heart, this character:



¶And when you work, make a fire in your Circle of dry eglintyne, then go into your Circle, & take the image in your hand, saying:—

O Lord, the searcher & revealer, with whom no secret lieth hidden, by Thy majesty & Power I humbly beseech Thee that the thief that hath stolen [name the item] come before me, & confess his crime, by Thy might & Power, & by Our Lord Jesus Christ, who shall come to judge the quick & the dead & the world by fire, & through Thee who livest & reignest, world without end. Amen.

¶Which done say the Lord's Prayer, & after, the following:—

Almighty & everlasting God, the maker of all things, & searcher & purger of all sins, from whom nothing is hidden, to whom nothing is impossible, knower of all secrets, we most humbly beseech Thee that by Thy Holy Name Thou commandest Thy Holy Angels Raguelim & Urielim by Thy precepts which I do obey in this my work, that the thief which stole [name the thing] come & appear before me, & that soon & quickly he confesseth the truth of such things as I shall ask of him, by & through Our Lord Jesus Christ, Thy Son, our only Saviour & Redeemer which with Thee livest & reigneth world without end. Amen.

Then hold the image against the fire of eglintyne, but take heed in any case that you melt it not for then the thief, which you worketh for, will die; therefore take heed that the wax melt not, & keep it ever in a clean & sweet cloth consecrated with the image as in the other experiment. Then take the image again in your hand, & looking towards the East on bended knees say very devoutly this conjuration:—

I Conjure & call you spirits & Angels of God Sabaoth, Urielim & Reguelim; I conjure you by the almighty power of God the Father, God the Son, & God the Holy Ghost. Amen.

¶And by these Holy Names of God that I call on for help, who said I am Alpha & Omega, the first & the last, & by the High & Noble Name of God Agla, & by this most mighty & terrible Name Tetragrammaton, & by this Name Jesus to whom all knees in Heaven, Earth, & Hell obey & do reverence, & by the joys of Heaven in which you art, that this thief who hath stolen [name the thing] in what part of the world soever he be, whatsoever he be about, by the virtue of all these Holy Names, & by these characters worked on this image, that he bodily appear & come to me, & as I prick this image with this charm, even shall he be pricked, that night nor day he resteth not nor shall he least he come; Fire, I conjure thee to scorch his body with great & unceasing burning; prick this image in the face by the heat of the fire, & make him come unto me & quickly confeß his crime.

SAy this conjuration first upon the head of the image, second upon the forehead, thirdly upon his breast, fourthly upon the neck, & fifthly on his back near towards his heart. And always remember your characters; & do this every day until he comes—& surely he will come within nine days if he be in England. And keep your image fast in a chest wrapped in a clean cloth, for whatsoever happeneth to the image, the same will chanceth to him of whom thou dost work. Take heed therefore, & pray to God for all speed with hearty prayers; be thankfull & then shall you have what you demand, to whom be praise & honour forever & ever. Amen.

HEre is an end of these approved experiments of Fra. Roger Bacon & a contented associate, then his fellow in Brasenhouse Colledge in Oxford. ¶Often such tried, for most certainly experiments they ever were, being both the Keys & bounds of Solomon; his secret book of the Art, the which he left graben in braß. ¶Here you shall do wonders, nothing is impossible, believeth, & use the fasting & prayers, & you shall attain more each year forthwith, for which be thankful. Amen.

¶[An additional prayer:]—

¶Say this prayer . . . every work must . , , & on your knees, looking & lifting your eyes, your mind, & your heart up to Heaven:

OMost excellent goodneß, drain not from me Thy great mercy, O most mighty maker, dispise not my work, O most prudent redeemer, who suffered to purify thy redemption, O most gentle ghostly & heavenly host purify for us, & keep thy house & dwellingplace, the which then was sanctified & dedicated to thee in the Sacrament of Baptism. ¶O Lord Jesus Christ, wound my heart with thy most Holy wounds mayest my mind with thy most precious blood [be mingled], that whither soever I go or turn, I may behold above me thee crucified, & whatsoever

I ſee it may appear to me ruddy with thy moſt precious blood, that thus beholding of thee I may ſlight my heart & ſight in nothing, but only dwell in thee, & be thankfull to thee for all thy great bleſſings & goodneß; love praiſe & honour: Thee which art Alpha & Omega the firſt & the laſt; the beginning & the end, which liveſt & reigneſt forever & ever.

Amen.

¶Afterward

IN MCMLXXX I had the fortune to frequent the Britiſh Library, where I was, through the generous aſſiſtance of Mr. Harry Bourke the curator, made privy to the Manuſcripts archives of that place. In ſhort, I gained acceß to a wealth of unpubliſhed material. ¶At that time a rather ſpurious book called the 'Necronomicon* or Book of Dead Names' was enjoying a certain popularity. The contributors to this book were famous people, ſome of them ſcience fiction writers, and others notable occultiſts, yet the book itſelf was the moſt appalling ſcheme to deceive the public I had ſeen in years; a blatent attempt to capitalize on the 'Lovecraft phenominon.' Among the ſources cited in the text were Sloane MS. 3885 & Additional MS. 36,674. My curioſity was naturally piqued, and I ſidetracked my original reſearch [a tranſlation of the 'Lemegeton,' forthcoming] and purſued this odd vein. What I found was far from the 'Necronomicon' but inſtead a whole genere of Catholic Magical tracts, of which one of the moſt notable was 'De Nigromancia.' ¶In the heat of my youth I decided to embark on an expoſe of ſorts, by tranſlating the whole contents of Additional MS. 36,674. The project, called 'Thaumaturgical Daemonology and Goety' ſoon proved too dry and fragmentary to be publiſhed as a whole.

There were but two treatiſes in the codex complete enough to use, one was 'The Key of Knowledge' by John Dee [another verſion of the 'Greater Key of Solomon'] and the other was 'De Nigromancia of Roger Bacon.'

AS would happen, a friend of mine, a 'catholic' Biſhop, viſited me ſome years after the project had been abandoned. He and I talked at length, and the matter of '¶De Nigromancia' came up. He ſuddenly became oddly both animated and reticent. Eventually I pulled out of him the peculiar confeſſion that 'De Nigromancia' had long been a Secret Book employed by the 'catholic' Church for the ſacrament[?] of Exorciſm, and the cleanſing of the damned. I decided at that time to take up the project again, and ſent it to my publiſher. ¶Now we in the Art often note ſynchroniſtic or parelell events of ſignificance in our lives. So whether coincidence or deſtiny, oddly, my publiſher wrote me back with great enthuſiaſm to tell me that he had another copy of this MS. from the Sloane collection in Latin, and apparently more complete. It turned out to be Sloane MS. 3885, you ſee before you the reſult.

*My own words. Although this is implied in the text, I feel it should be spelled out explicitly.

*In the Latin MS the terms 'denier' and 'mina' were used; a denier is a silver piece, and a mina is worth one hundred deniers. In the English version the terms 'penny' and 'crown' were used.

[ij, 3.]

†I would dare to suggest that this washing take place during the Lavabo of the Maß itself, and not thereafter. It is important to remember that the only distinction from 'a Maß of St. Cyprian' and any other, is that it includes a collect appropriate to that Saint, and was usually held on the day dedicated to him. For the purposes of this work I should think that the inclusion of this collect at the appropriate time during the Maß would be sufficient, and that by no means must the operator wait until the Day of St. Cyprian.

§The Latin suggests the hour of Jupiter as an alternative. The hours of the day are divided into twelve equal parts from sunrise to sunset, and the hours of the night are divided likewise from sunset to sunrise. On Friday, the day of Venus, the hour of sunrise would be her first hour [followed by Mercury then Luna, &c.] and her next hour of rulership eight hours later. These 'hours' furthermore by reason of these calculations may be greater or leß than sixty minutes each.—ed.

*The implication throughout the MS., by use of such words as 'volneris'—to harm—for conjure, and 'eseas'—to essey or wage war upon—for summoning or negotiating with, is that the spirits will be hostile and uncooperative with the conjurer from the beginning of the work, and as such great caution is to be advised. Indeed, by context, 'volneris' might be coined equally as curse.—ed.

The characters for planets, ſigns, and alchemical ſymbols might alſo be encoded letters, as ſuch methods were often employed in the Middle Ages.

Monday. A meridie hora 4 1/2

We presented our selves redy for instruction receyving: and [illegible] presumed not to call my good minister spirituall: but by humble prayer, referred all to God his good pleasure.

EK The Golden Curtain, which covereth all the Stone, hangeth still. I here a voyce, or sentence, thrise repeated, thus.

A voyce. Sanctum, Signatum, et ad tempus.

Δ This sentence of, may be diverse ways understode, and more than I can imagin: but which sense is to our instruction, wold I fayne know.

A voyce — Sanctum, quia hoc volle suum: Sigillatum, quia determinatum: Ad tempus

EK. hard speches, but he could not perfectly discerne them

A voyce — Ad tempus: et ad tempus (inquam) quia Rerum Consumma[tio]

All things are at hand.

The Seat is prepared.

Justice hath determined.

The Judge is not yet willing Mercy [illegible] betwixt the Divinitie: But it is sayde.

Tyme shalbe shortened.

EK saw no creature: But the voyce came behinde [illegible] [illegible]: [illegible] [illegible]: when he espied one standing on the Table besides the [illegible] cloth on which the Stone standeth. He seemed like a husbandman: all in red apparayle; red hose, close to his legs, a red Jerkel, a red buttoned cap on his hed. yea and red shoes.

He asked EK. how he did. and EK answered, Well I thank god.

Δ By your apparayle, I shold [think] you have somwhat to say concerning the Commons of this Realme, and not of such [illegible] poynts or [illegible] I am desyrous to know who sent you, what is your message, and what is your name. For a name you have [illegible], as all Creatures etc.

Δ He paused a good while; wherevppon I asked him, if he considered my speches

— I consider your speches, for you have left nothing behinde

EK. He kneeleth down, and semeth to say somwhat, his speche is quick, [illegible] round and redy. he seemeth to pray in a strange Language. I perceyved these words among many other Oh Gahire [etc.]

Zudna gepona Oh Gahire [etc.]

His Countenance was directed toward the Stone.

— Vestra [illegible] non mea facio. EK He [illegible] standeth vp.

— Hast not thow sayd. From whome commest thow? What is thy Message. [Δ he loked toward me] And hast asked my name saying, All things have a name. It is true. For so they have, by [illegible] they are. Hast thow left any thing unsayd?

Δ You wherby my speches not onely in generall, but allso in particular. The will of God be done (to his Glory) for the rest.

My message is from him, in whose name thow hast desyred it. Who hath sayd, Lift vp thyne eyes, behold I say and loke vnto, (behold, I say) the Somme of my Commandements. What I am, whose ministers you are, and (as it is sayd before) To what ende and purpose it is.

Then cease to pleade; when Judgement standeth in place. For all things are

All things have a name [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 70 [illegible] [illegible]

The Somme of our Commaunded Observation

Δ — After dynner, abowt one of the clok and ½ the tyme [illegible] expired: and then we attended the mercy of the highest.

Δ At a great gladsome shyning of the stone, Galuah [illegible] owt a litle and inrownded, over [illegible] [illegible] on the Corner of the grene silk sarcenet, by the Mysterie [illegible]. She was like a woman, as Galuah, in face, but apparell [illegible] mans gown furred with foyns, or as Jentlewomen [illegible] were. or Δ Uppon the diversitie of your apparell we are to ax, whether you are Galuah, or no? Or have you allso (as I have done) put on holiday clothes?

Gal — FEAR GOD. EK. She steppeth forward, one step.

Gal — My garment is called HOXMARCH, which, in your speache is Δ Initium sapientiæ est Timor Domini. we acknowledge it to be in a true lesson: and allso the First step of the pathway to Felicitie.

Gal — What is Fear?

Δ Feare is of two sorts: one is called filialis, the other Servilis &c.

Gal. — Unto the first, all fear is joye, and therfore the Begynning and entrance into quietnes. True quietnes and rest is Wisdome. For the mynde that knoweth hath the greatest rest and quietnes.
The Dowghter of Despayre, unto the wicked is Feare.
This Feare is the first that accompanieth unto Damnation: But he that is perfectly wise, or tasteth of Wisdome, knoweth the Ende.
And his feare is of the thing that is done.
For when we feare synne, we do it, because we hate it. This is the true feare of God.
When we study to do good, it is a token of our fear. In that it is a[illegible] we feare him, whome we love, and for whose honor we study to do it.
This is all that may be sayd of Lawfull and unlawfull feare.

The TITLE of the Bok — Towching the boke, it shall be called Logah: which in your Language signifieth SPEACHE FROM GOD.
Write it after this sort ~~LOGA~~ LOAGAETH: it is to be sownded Loga.
This word is of great signification I meane in respect of the profoundnes therof.
The first leaf (as you call it) is the last of the boke.
is the first leaf
And, as it is a hotchpot without order, so it signifieth a disorder of the world, and is the speche of that Disorder, or Prophesie.
Write the boke (after your order) bakward: but alter not the forme of the letters: I speak in respect of their places.

I understand not this, Unles it be that the first leaf being in dede the last, is of the writer to be lefft ovt. Or vide post 4 tone sayd, that Galuah,

EK: his hed is so on bright fire that it can not be loked uppon. The fire so sparkleth and glistreth, as when an hot yern is stryken on an Anvill, and specially at the pronownsing of every word.
It is to be Noted also that uppon the pronownsing of some words the beasts and all creatures of the world every one shewed them selves in their kinde and forme: But notably all serpents, dragons, todes, and all ugly and hydeous shapes of beasts: which all made most ugly countenances, in manner assailing EK but contrariwise cowring and fawning uppon Galuah.
It is to be Noted also that by degrees came a second and a third beame of light into Galuah from the stone and all three together appered thus: the third parteciping of the other two.

Loagaeth	seg	Lox	brinc
Larzed	dox	ner	habzilb adnor

The second beame cam at the word Larb pronownced, when allso froggs and serpents appered &c.
The third beame uppon the word Exi pronownced.

in — The first leaf of the boke.

Gal — In them is the Divinitie of the Trinitie.
The Mysterie of our Creation.
The age of many yeres:
and the Conclusion of the world:

Of me, they are honored, but of me, not to be uttered. Neyther did I them my self: for, they are the bonnes of my Understanding, and the fowntayne from whence I Water.

Δ. I beseche you, how shall I write these names in the first leafe?

Gal — They are to be written in 5 Tables. in every Table, 21 letters.

Δ. How shall I place the 5 Tables uppon two sides: Three in the first and two in the second: or one in the first and fowre in the second: or how els?

Gal — As thow seest cause.

Δ Shall I write them in letters of gold?

Gal — The writing hath byn referred to thy discretion, with cullors and such things as apperteyne to the writing therof.
Uppon the first side write three tables, and on the second, two.

Δ. How: thus? Gal. Set them down I will direct thy Judgment.

Δ Whom? Now. Gal — Not Now.

EK. She is gone.

Δ Deo nostro sit Laus honor et gratiarum actio perennis.
Amen

Wensday. 19 Junij. hora 2. a meridie

Δ I made a prayer to god: and there appeared one having two garments in his hands. who answered

— A good prayer, with a wavering mynde.

Δ God make my mynde stable: and to be seasoned, with the Intellectuall seven, free of all sensible mutabilitie.

EK. One of the two garments is pure white: the other is sparkled, of divers cullours: He layeth them down afore him. He layeth allso a sparkled cap down before him at his fete. He hath no cap on his own hed. His heare is long and yellow: but his face can not be sene: at the least it was turned away from EK continually: though EK changed his place.

— You shall see my face. Lo it is white.

EK. Now he putteth on his pyed coat, and pyed cap.
He casteth the one side of his gown over his showlder, and he danceth and singeth.

— Here is a god, let us be merry — EK. he daunceth still.
— Here is a wedon, let us be merry
— Doth this Doctrine teach you, to know god [or] to be skyllfull in the heavens?
— Note it.

perhaps it may not be spoken onely by Erring, in the hearing of E.K.?

EK. Now he putteth of his clothes agayn. Now he kneleth down, and washeth his hed and his neck, and his face, and shaketh his [illegible] [illegible] monstrous way to fedway ... they can disp[illegible] ... partly the day ... grief of his mynde and body, and partly his suspecte the Crea[illegible] ... he had greater this mystery to be exhibited with the mystery delivered ... had in manner forced him to leave of all. But I agayn with rowse ... of him, and partly the prudence and [illegible] devine, wrought ... mitigating of his ... and his quietnes.

Gal — There are three seden.

Δ blessed and prayed for ever be he, which is one and three: and whome I myself ministers or Governors do incessantly glorifie.

Gal — Thy folly and weaknes is great, god comfort the. [He spoke to EK for his excessive dispitefulnes and blaspheming of the spirits and goodnes of Galuas.]

EK Note. Now the beasts were all returned into the stone them. Likewise all the Creatures and monstrous or ugly shaped beasts, are all gone.

Pray — The were willed, hereupon, divers tymes to pray:
At sundry poynts of EK his greif and dispitfulnes sundry speaches were used by the spiritual creature among which these I noted.

Gal — He that is angry, can not see well. From him that is perverse, God turneth his face.

The best Reconciliation — The hindrance of punishment, is the mercy of god, which imputeth not synne unto them whome he hath chosen: therefore be patient, and reconcyle thy self to god.

EK I do it with all humilitie and sincerity of mynde, and beseche god to help me with his grace: for of my self I can not do so.
Yet I am Thomas Didymus, I will beleve these things, when I see the proofe of them.

Δ He seemed yet agayn to doubt whether this Gualme and the rest (partakers of this action) were verely good, and voyd of all halting or abusing us.

EK How can you perswade me that ye be not deluders.

Gal — I will prove it, by Contraries.
The servants of darknes have theyr garments stayned: theyr mouths stynk of blasphemy and lies. But our garments are no such, neyther doth our lipps speak any untruth: and therfore we are of god: for who so understandeth is of the truth, is of god.

[Margin: which prove ... instructors to be Good Angels]

Moreover the divell is known by his works: for the spirit of god controlleth them. The spirit of God agreeth with us, and there is no controllment agaynst it: therefore it is not Divells.

In one thing thou mayst know us differing from divells.
The wicked spirits allwayes abhorre the word Mercy
But it is the Doctrine that we preache, in respect towards you.
We are not, who ever will Mercy — But this way leadeth hardness and is a stumbling block to the wicked. But the beauty of the Castell is not able to be expressed.

The Allme ... — Happy are they which are covered with the porch of righteousnes, and on whose hed there is a garland of godlines. For, unto those belongeth to taste of the fountayne of true Wisdome.
Is it not written of this boke, that it racketh Nature in all degrees?
The judgment hereof is faithfull truth.
And wash your selves, and follow me.

Δ Lorde wash thou our selves, or els we shall not be clene.

Gal — How thou art, God knoweth. But comfort your selves in this

This Testimonie Victorie — That neyther this Testimonie can perish, neyther will you can remayn any slavery: Quia Testa erit Victoria, in him and for him, whome I leave you.

Δ What shall I do with these 21 wordes now receyved?

Gal. There are onely the words of the first leaf.

Δ I pray you, how shall I beginne them, or place them?

Gal.

his clothes: and plucketh of the uttermost side of his body, and falleth prostrate on the grownde, and sayed — Vouchsafe (o God) to take away the wearynes of my body, and to clense the filthines of this dust, that I may be apt for thy service.

EK. Now he taketh the white garment, and putteth it on him.

— Mighty is God in his great Justice, and wonderfull in his immeasurable mercy: the heavens taste of his glory: the erth is confownded at his wysdome. In hell they tremble at him, as at a revenger. This showeth the (O) to be a God, and stretcheth forth thy glory, from the East unto the West. For thy heavens are statutes, and thy Creatures, Lawes: that thou mayst be accounted a God of Justice and Glorie.
Bycause thou art a God, therefore there is a heven: For unto the Prince of righteousness, there belongeth a place of Glorie: into the which there entreth none that are defyled, neyther such as are blemished with the spotts of Iniquitie.
Manus haec bona est — EK putting forth his right hand
Qui habet aures, intelligat

EK Now he sitteth down on the Desk top, and loketh toward me.

Δ This Parable is, in generall, somwhat understode of us: but in particular, how it may be, or is to be applyed presently we understand not.

— Beware least Error entre within the dwelling place of Righteousnes. I have sayde.

EK. He semeth now to be turned to a woman, and the very same which we call Galuas.

EK. Now he is come down, to the usuall place of on the Table.

Δ
I have assayed divers wayes, to place the five Tables on the two sydes of this first leaf; is it to your liking as I have done it, in the five little Triangles?

Gal — As concerning the setting down of the five Tables, it is sufficient, as it is done.
The cause why I appeared thus, was that you might avoyde error.

Δ I pray you, to shew us the meanes how that error was or is to encumber us.

NOTE Gal. Who so ever taketh the servants of the wicked, to prove the glory of god, is Accursed. But, O Satan, how many are thy Deceyts?

Δ Note; my Companion (EK) wold have caused personall apparitions of some of the reprobate spirits, before the Prince Albert Lasky in my study, thereby to shew some experience of his skyll in such doings: But I wold not consent to it, And thereuppon Galuas gave judgment and warning of such an error, of my Companion his intent etc.

Gal — Behold, It is sayde, Before he go from hence, I will

Note of A.L — I will powre water into him:
And my Angel shall annoynt him; as I have determined.
Hyde therefore nothing from him: For you belong ...
Neyther can flesh and blud work these things, that I ...
All things that are established in God, are Glorifyed ... understanding. Neyther let your harts be hardened: For ... condemned, and these things shall come to passe.

Credit is all that I seke (sayeth the Lord) For when I ... be sufficiently beleved.

An othe. — I take the God of heven and erth, to judge; and sweare by him ... that these wordes are true, and shall endure unto the ende.

Note of generall poynts, and speciall gifts — The generall poynts of mans salvation are concluded allready, but the speciall gifts belongeth unto God
God strengthen you against his adversary. Δ Amen

Gal — Sone you shall know more.

Δ This Prince wold gladly know, whether it shall be best for him, with first opportunitie to be going homeward.

Gal — It shall be answered sone, and what question so ever he allso demandeth.

Δ May he be here present at the Action doing?

A.L may be present at Actions — Gal — Those that are of this howse, are not to be denyed the banket therein.

Δ May I request you to cause some sensible apparition to appere to him, to comfort him, and establish his mynde more abundantly in the godly ... of God his service?

Gal — If you follow us, let him be governed by us. But what so ever is of flesh, is not of us.

EK. She semeth to wepe; for the water cometh forth of her eyes.

Δ You perceyve, how he understandeth of the Lord Treasorer his grudge agaynst him. And perhaps some other allso, are of like malicious nature: what danger may follow hereof, or encumbrance.

Gal — The somme of his life, is allready appointed. One fote can not be diminished: But he that is Allmightie, can augment at his pleasure.

A.L. povertie — Let him rejoyce in povertie, be sorry for his enemies, and do the works of Justice

EK. She semeth to pull the ayre over her, and so to take into a cloude of invisibilitie, and so disapere.

Δ Deo gratias agamus

Wensday after none Circa hora 5. The Lord Albert a Lasky being present.

Δ — We attended of Galuas some instructions or discourse, concerning the Lord Lasky

EK — At length, appeared before the Lord Lasky (in the ayre) an Angel in a white robe holding a bloddy cross in his right hand, the same hand being allso bloddy.

Δ In nomine Jesu Christi Crucifixi, a te requiro (qui crucis trophaeum hic gestas), ut illa nobis significes quae sunt ad Christi gloriam; cui sit honor et laus perennis.

EK. Now he is come, from before the Lord Lasky, and standeth here on the Table: he turneth him self to all the 4 quarters of the World
He kneleth down. he prayeth

— O God, why shold the people uppon earth rejoyce; or, wherein shold the pleasures of theyr sensuall delights be fixed? Why doth

the Mone

A.L — ... him to perish with the violence of the wicked
I will hereafter visibly appeare unto him, and ... be done. 18

An yere to come — But a yere is not yet come, and these things shall be ...

Hindrance bredeth excep[tion] ... and synne bredeth hindrance — But (thus sayeth the Lord) I have hindred him, bycause he hath yelded to the provocation of those that are wanton:
And hath consented to those that blasphemed my name.
Byd him loke unto the steps of his youth, and measure the length of his body: to the intent, he may live better, and ... him self ...

This Tanfeld served the L. Lasky — Δ Note. At this instant Tanfeld cam rashly uppon us, into my study: we thinking that the study dore had byn shutt: for the Lord Lasky being gone out of my study, the other way through my Oratory, to take Tanfelds message from the Court: and having despatched him rested without. And Tanfeld having commendations to me from some at London (as he sayd) fearing least he shold be sent away by and by, without doing the same, cam undiscretely uppon us, to our no little amazing and great fearing his rash opinion afterward of such things, as he could not perceyve perfectly what my Companion and I were doing: Hereupon, Jubanladaec gave this sentence, and closed thus the fatall ende of Tanfelde.

Juban — It is sayd, He that entred in thus rashly, Lo, five monthes are yet to come, and fishes of the sea shall devoure his carkas.

A.L his annoyntings — Jub — As before, what soever he taketh in hand, shall prosper, for my names sake. For, thus it is sayde, and these words, are the wordes, wherewithall I do annoynt him. For then the Comfort of the Highest, there is not a sweeter Unction.

Miracula et signa ... — Loke not for the miracles of this world, as the wicked man in his hart doth; But study to please him, with whome ye may rejoyce for ever.

You sonnes of men, what do you seke after?
Do you hunt after the blustring of the wynde: or are you imagining a forme unto the clowds: or go you furth to here the braying of an asse, which passeth away, with the blustring of the ayre.
Seke for true wisdome: For it beholdeth the highest, and perceth unto the lowest.

The L. Treasorer — Cecill hateth him unto the harte, and desireth he were gone hence
Many other do privily sting at him, I can not properly say sting him

England. — But (I say) I will powre down my wrath uppon them, and they shall be confounded in the myddest of theyr own Iniquities: Let my byrth full live and be like the frutefull vineyarde. Be it so.

Δ For his retorne homeward, what is your advise: perhaps he wanteth necessary provision, and mony Juban — He shall be holpen here, and els where, Miraculously.

I speak, as it were, to him self.
Let him go so sone as he can, conveniently.

Δ I say agayn, perhaps he wanteth mony, But the Treasors of the Mone hold her course? or why are the sterres observing an order? Why are the people thus scattred abroad? Bycause Iniquitie hath caught the upper hand. The dores of our god are polluted with blasphemie: his temples desolate, his commandements violated: and his glory accounted as nothing: But wilt thou suffer; or canst thou hold thy hande from thy great and mighty strokes? most high God, most mighty God, most honorable God, have mercy uppon thy people: respect the Creation (the Creation I say) of those, wherein thou hast delighted. Suffer not the Serpent to extoll his hed above thy altars: eyther let thy holy vessell be poysoned with his venom. For thou art mighty and overcommest all: and who can rebell agaynst thy provision?

Bend down thy mercifull eye: Beholde this Confusion: loke uppon thy Temple, and see the Desolation thereof. And then in thy mercy (O) shew thy self to be a God, and such a mercifull governor as hath compassion uppon those that are diseased: yea, even unto death. Graunt this Camascheth galsuagath garnastel zurah logaah luseroth. Amen

Δ I pray you to declare unto us your name

— My name is Jubanladaec

Δ If I shold not offend you, I wold gladly know of what order you are or how your state is in respect of Michael, Gabriel, Raphael or Uriel.

Jub — Unto man, according unto theyr deserts, and the first excellency of theyr sowle, God hath appoynted a good Governor or Angell, from among the orders of those that are blessed. For every sowle that is good, is not of one and the self same dignification. Therfore according to his excellency we are appoynted as Ministers from that order, whereunto his excellency accordeth: To the intent that he may be brought at last to supply those places which were glorified by a former: and allso to the intent, that the Prince of darknes might be confounded in Gods justice. Amongst the which I am one, which am the keper and defender of this man present: Which carry the Triumphe and Ensigne of his Victories continually before him: as a reproche to my Adversarie and his: and to confirm the Dignitie whereunto he is called, by the presence of this Character.

EK. Now he heaveth up the Crosse.

A.L: Judaei. Victoriae ... AL — Jub — I have allso sealed the same in his hart: For unto him belongeth great victorie, In the name, and for the name of his God.
The Jues, in his tyme shall taste of this Cross.
And with this Crosse shall be overcome the Sarazens and paynims.

For I will establish one faith (saith the Lord of Justice) that I may be known, to be the same, that I was first among all people.

Moreover, I will open the harts of all men, that he may have free passage, and will not suffer through them: and will not suff[er] hi[m]

But I do allways, inwardly, direct him: and I will minister such comfort unto him, as shall be necessary in the myddst of all his doings

Δ Note. As sone, as he had sayd this sentence, he semed to synk through the Table like a spark of fyre: and semed to make haste to his charge. I meane the Lord Lasky. Whereby we perceyve the frailty of man to be great when he is destitute, (yea but after this manner) of his good Angel.

I will stir up thy desyre.

Δ How shall I do for the letters: shall I simply translate the letters, as I finde them?

Gal — I. Δ The titles of the sides, are they to be written only in the holy Charakters?

Gal — As thou sayst. Even those wordes do make the holy, that thou callest them, holy.

Δ I beleve verely, they are holy, and sanctified.

Gal — In the last 7 of the 40 dayes the words of this boke shall be distinguished. Δ And Accented allso? Gal — I.

Δ How shall I do, for the tables, where certayn letters are to be written in all the voyde places? Seing they will not justly agree.

Δ While I was writing certayn prayers to god Angells, and also preparing me ... there appeared one ... in the ayre, all in white ... full of plyghts, and tucked up very dubble with a myterlike attire on his hed and a crosse on the forpart of it. He willed EK to speak to me, and to tell me of his being there: But he refused and expressly denyed to do it: partly by reason Galuas had sayd she wold not deale with us but every seventh day (being every monday) tyll the Actions were ended: and therefore he supposed this Creature to be an illusion: and partly he urged some evident token or profe of theyr well meaning toward us in this etc. He was denyed: and then this Creature pricked him with a drawn sword, requiring him to declare his words to me. But EK a long while bad him declare them him self unto me, if he wold: and sayd, why shold he not ...
At length my companion cam, oppressed and constrayned to say what this Creature wold say. Who at length sayd thus — The Egles have fode for theyr yong ones, by divine providence and not of them selves.

— Lord let me diminish the powre of this wicked spirit that doth so provoke and stir him to mischief.

Oratio 20
Spiritu et mente dico,

O Sit mihi verus orandi modus: nam bonitatem Dei laudo. Iram Patris meritus sum, quia Lumen eius elongatur a me: Verum In nomine Christi remissionem delictorum meorum, et confirmationem in suo Sancto Spiritu exopto. Per te, Halleluya, resurgam. Me accuso, me condemno: omnia mala feci.
Omnia per te Pater, sunt. Paratus esto exaudire. Oculos ad Coelos elevare nolo: egestatem quia meam nosti.
Quid differs Domine, Cor meum in melius confortare?
Vivus, et non mortuus sum: Igitur Credo in te. Exaudi me. Antidotum mihi sanctum monstra, quia malum meum agnosco. Mitte mihi auxilium tuum de Sede Maiestatis tuae: Et per Angelos bonos tuere me. Audi: Exaudi, o tu igitur Angelus meus adsis mihi: Defende me: nec trade corpus et animam meam in manus inimicorum meorum, Sed secundum magnam misericordiam Dei, (per potestatem tibi traditam) me protege. Adsit mecum prudentia tua, quo Diabolum et Sathanicam fraudem vincam. Adiuva me derelictum, Confirma me debilem, Cura me sanum, Sana me aegrotum: Mihi esto spiritus super humanam sapientiam. Fac me fidelem Operatorem: Adduc tecum Angelos de coelis demissos Sanctos, qui mecum in adversis tueantur et ab omni custodiant malo, donec illa hora venerit, quam nemo evitare potest: Sustinuit anima mea in verbo eius
Amen.

O Glorifie god ye sonnes of men, and prayse him in the myddst of your wickednes. For he is a God that sheweth mercy to his people and beholdeth those that are afflicted: All honor prayse and glory be unto him, Now and for ever: Amen.

Δ I beseche you, what is your name, that this mercy of God may be recorded, to have byn bestowed uppon us by your ministerie

Δ Uppon the perusing and examining the prayer by Gabriel ... unto us, I found certayne imperfections, and some doubts: wherefore we thought it good to ask counsayle, and requier Gabriel his advise that the prayer might be perfect, as he might well like of, to god his honor, and our comfort.

Say, Assyste mee: but the other is more effectuall.

Cura me sanum, — Regarde me and loke unto me being whole.

Δ As concerning the Inscription which I have written before the prayer I wold gladly know, whether it be to your well liking or it

Gab — Fiant omnia ad laudem Dei.
My doings are of no such regarde: What I have done, be it done so that your Additions be to the honor of god, it is sufficient.
The effect of the prayer is greater, then is the forme
The Former, is greater then the Forming
That is to say, He that hath formed it, is mightyer then any thing, any vertue wherein it is formed.
Where so ever, therefore, the mynde formeth it with you, with perfect humilitie, and consent, there is allso the Former.
As formed of him, therefore I leave you to the ende of his workmanship, which contynually formeth all things according unto his own fashion.

Symmes — Your symmes have banished me, from saying those things, I wold.

Δ O Lorde clense our harts, and wash away our symmes, amplius lava me ab iniquitate mea, et a peccato meo munda me.

Gab — Symmes are never washed away or forgotten with the highest, but with such as are sorry, and allso make satisfaction

Satisfaction — Δ O Lord full sorry I am for my symmes, and what satisfaction is requyred I wold gladly know.

And are not they allotted to his Cumfort, being brought in?
The sowle of man is the Image of God: after his forme, which kepeth within him self the powre of his diuinitie in the heauenly Spirit. Whereby he hath Authoritie to Consent with God in the workmanship of his will and Creatures.
Which Powre being sealed allready, giueth vnto man (as King of him self) to Consent to his owne saluation: Conioyning and knitting him self togither, eyther with Perseuerance, in the assured hope of mercy: or with willfull drunkennes, to the reward of such as fall.
Therfore, Become Holy:
For, the sowle beautifyeth, when it is beautified in it self.
Resist not the Will of God, which is mighty in you.
Be not obstinate

Be

Be humble
Reioyce not [illegible] the world: But be glad that your [illegible] world. 53

Disappeare [illegible] wicked working: for from whome commeth Strength.
Yf [illegible] become holy, the ende is more wonderfull.
But yet [illegible] when you were called to the knowledge and performance of God his will, [illegible] his mercy.
Euen as one day perisheth, and is not, all things that hath byn;
Euen so is and shall be the State of this world.
For, the Erth must sing O Sonne with the heauens
And they must be One Vnitie
And Heauen [illegible] shall descend with an horn of glory to the ende.
The Sonne and Mone shall [illegible], and wonder at theyr stay.
The Kings of the Erth shall become prowde in them selues: and are vnable to be tamed with meke[ness]
But I will yoke them (sayth the Lord) with Correction.
And [illegible] them, one to imitate an others steps.
yea they shall tred [illegible]
For in [illegible] Corruption shall not dwell, with Authoritie
Neyther [illegible] the Prince of Darknes vsurp my further honor

EK — He speaketh much in a smaller voyce than he did [I cannot [illegible] it] He turned back and spake.

— I speak these things for your vnderstanding, and that you may be strengthened.

EK — He turneth bak agayn (as before) and speaketh I know not what.

— My deare brethren, therfore Reioyce in cumfort, and the Image of peace: and remayn faithfull, that you may be [illegible] with that face that shall prostrate, and afterwards rest before the [illegible] flames of Zarzor: where there dwelleth no defyled Creature nor any [illegible].

EK — He turneth [illegible] bak agayn (as before) speaking
He semeth [illegible] to [illegible] a piller of copper, [illegible] [illegible] became [illegible] than he was.
Now he standeth on the top of the piller
Now he kneleth downe: his bak being toward [illegible]

A voyce sayth to him — Sweare — [1].
He sayd It is done

He sayd — The first voyce openeth his mowth and saieth [There is a great rumbling, and rushings of falling of [illegible] as if there were [illegible]] 7

He sayd — The Will of God is sealed, in this prophesie, and it shall endure

A voyce — Sweare — [2].

He sayth — I haue done.

He sayd — It Thundreth, and it is the second voyce.
The effect of God his will, is not of tyme; and therfore not to be known of man; till that moment and ende of tyme shall appere, wherein it must be published and finished with Powre.

E K — Now it thundreth agayn [illegible] a [illegible] hold fast down into a gulf [illegible]

A Voyce — [illegible]
The Voyce — I haue — And it is [illegible] last voyce
All things that are created, [illegible] nought
The wynde of the heavens [illegible] all the earth Wisdome sitteth [illegible] crowned, in the top of an hyll, with [illegible] glory.
It is the Ende +

E K — Now all dasheth in a flame of fyre: Piller, and he, and all and so flyeth vpward

A Voyce — He that hath eares, let him heare

Another Voyce — It shall be. Amen.

E K — Now the Curten cometh before all, as it was at the begynning of this day.

Δ — O lord, for thy great Mysteries declared vnto vs this day, We most humbly thank thee. But on our partes, there re [illegible] some of thy good ministers, [illegible] Vincent [illegible] as of the Lord Albert Lasky: [illegible] of Vincent [illegible]

E K — A very little Creature appeareth [illegible]

The little one — A word, and away.
The harts of Princes, are the secrets of the Lord.
Such they are, as vnlok the doings of the world.

Δ — of A L. his delay in comming contrary to our expectation I [illegible] greatly [illegible]

— Those things that are of wickednes, are not of our remembrance.
This stranger shall hinder a third part of his glory.
But all your Life is not of him: Nor he of you.
If he become good: he shall be well rewarded.
He is forward.
Vincent is in France.

Note, Of A.L. and our separating somewhat.

E K — He is gone suddenly. This Creature [illegible] between the Curten and the forepart of the stone. It was one of the least Creatures that ever I saw.

Δ — All honor, prayse, and thanks be to our God, allmighty: now and euer Amen.

Thursday — January 9. The Lord Albert Lasky cam to Stetin [illegible]

Fryday January 10. [illegible] from [illegible] Stetin

[illegible]day: 12 [illegible] 1584 Stetin

Δ — [illegible] we were talking together of our affayres,
A Voyce — [illegible] sayd
I am [illegible] here.

Δ — After supper, [illegible] had a desyre to shew to E K some places of St Johns Apocalypsis [illegible] voyce sayd to him;
In equo albo, et [illegible] Doctrina vestra,
Et est verbum Dei.
10, et 9, sunt Novemdecim.

Δ — Hereuppon seeking in the 19 Chapter of the Apocalypsis: we found the text Equus albus &c. versu 11.

A Voyce — Ne dubitetis Sum enim seruus Dei.
To this purpose apperteyn those places of Scripture &c.
These are the dayes wherein the Prophet sayd, No faith shuld be found on the earth.
This Faith must be restored agayn, and Man must glorify God in his works.
I am the Light of God.

[illegible] Esdras 4. cap. 9 [illegible]

Δ — Then belike He is VRIEL.
— I am a witnes of the Light.
These are the tymes wherein justice and truth must take place.
Behold I touched him, and he became a prophet.
Δ — Mean you Esdras?

Vriel — Yea; in his ninth Chapter of the fourth boke.
There you shall fynde manifestly the Prophesie of this tyme and this Action.

This Action in Esdras prophesied of.

Δ — Alak, we think the tyme very long, before we be entred in the right trade of our true Actions!

Vr — When you haue the boke of God, before you, then I will open these secrets vnto you.

Δ But alak, the tyme is very long thereunto, the more is our greif.

Vr — The Bible it is.

Δ — I meant [illegible], of our other boke which is to be written.

Vr — I will speak of that allso.

Δ — This delay is greatly to our greif, and occasion of [illegible] temptations

Vr — The Temptations of this world, are nothing vnto the wise.
Happy are they that [illegible] temptations, with emptying of the body
The [illegible] is not yet [illegible], or els [illegible] prophesy
I meane not [illegible] E K.

Δ [illegible] Vincat manifesta VERITAS

E K — He is gone

Δ — Honor, glorie, laus, et benedictio, sit Deo nro, qui in ALBO EQVO [illegible] sedet [illegible]
Amen.

Monday. January 13. mane hora 9 ½

Δ After our long discourse vppon [illegible] Esdras &c. Vriel cam, and stode, [illegible] his boke, not [illegible]

Vr — Read the sixth chapter:
For Faith must florish. The world [illegible]
[illegible]

Δ — E K red it, and [illegible] there [illegible] it is Florebit autem fides, et vincetur corruptela, et ostendetur veritas, quae fuit sine fructu diebus tantis &c.

E K — A voyce sayth Open the shew stone

E K — At length appeared one in a long white garment
The Curten went a syde: and the [illegible]
[illegible]
He hath nothing on his hed, but long here hanging down [illegible]
He is tyed or gyrded about, as [illegible]

VRIEL — I am Vriel [sayd this man] the light and hand of him that created heven and earth: that talked with Esdras and did comfort him [illegible] affliction: and the same that hath talked with you from the beginning of this Action.

Therfore, gyrd your selves together, and here the voyce of the Lorde
Listen (I say) [illegible] are [illegible], (I say) to them that dwell [illegible]
Beholde this is the last sleepe of the world, and the tyme [illegible]
Powre of the highest hath armed him [illegible]
Come, O ye strength of the heavens and follow me
For the Earth hath cryed Vengeance and hath cursed her self and dispayreth
Come I say For I will place the seat of Righteousnes
That my Kingdome may be in One
And that my people may florish: yea even a little before the Ende.

And what is that? E K — he spake these 4 words in another tune.

E K — He loketh up to heven

A voyce — Blessed art thou which respectest ~~[illegible]~~ thy justice, and not the Sonnes of man.

Vr — This is the voyce of the Angel that must take place.

An Angel must be taking place.

Δ — May we be so bold, as to demaunde the Name of that Angel that we might know it [illegible] yeres.

Vr — No — It is not lawfull.

Another — I sweare by all things that are conteyned within this holy boke. *
By the seat of God, and him that sitteth theron
That the words which haue bin spoken in this Action and shall be now spoken by me, are true.

* Note, he spake this, pointing down to the great Bible of the Lord Alb Lasky's vppon which the Shew Stone now stode.

A prophesy: Three yeres are yet to come, (even in this month, that begynneth the fourth yere) shall the Sonne of perdition, be knowen vnto the whole world:
Suddenly creeping out of his hole, like an adder, letting out her young ones after her, to devour the dust of the earth.

This

[illegible] I suspect 42 [illegible]

Vr — This Man [illegible] fourth yere, shall Antechrist be knowen [illegible] the World
Then shall be Wo, and all amongst the kings of the earth
For they [illegible] all a [illegible]
Neither shall there [illegible] that ruleth now, or reigneth as a King or governor of the [illegible], live vnto the ende of the [illegible] yere, But they shall all perish.
Their kingdoms be overthrowen
The earth wasted
The rivers become blud, with the blud of men, and beasts mixed together

Oes nunc Reges peribunt ante tertium annum finitum

In this tyme, shall the Turkish State be rased up and cast from the earth
And in stede of him shall enter in that Devel, that enemy of ours, the Childe of the Devel: the father of lies, and such as dwell in the [illegible] of [illegible]

Behold This Prince shall fly through his kingdoms, as the pestilent after his [illegible]: devouring his possessions, and cutting down the wicked.
But he shall become Proude.

The Prophets of the Lord, shall descend from heven clothed with their old garments, they lyve, and not stayned.
Thy eyes shall see them.

Enoch —

Out of these bokes shall be true doctrine of the Prophets and Apostles, be [illegible]
Which are not to be vnderstode, but with the Spirit of Vnderstanding the spirit of Wisdome, and Truth.

Vr signe — Behold, I will say vnto you, my self,
Come, Heare,
For, the Voyce of the Lorde, is with powre.
Therfore, be mylde and of humble spirit:
For Lo, the tyme shall come;
And I haue Seven bokes, such as shall be delivered vnto one of you

7 libri tradendi: Δ

And I will meet thee walking in the feldes.
And will stretch furth my hand saying, Come:
Then shall thyne eyes see those things, that thy Spirit doth
And thow shalt become a man of Vnderstanding:
For I will give thee bred, and thow shalt eate it; such, as shall be the bred of Sufficient Comfort.

E K — It thundreth in the stone.

EK. Of thee, [pointing to E K] thus sayeth the Lorde:
Thow art flesh, and become stubborne
Thy judgment wayeth dull, and thy hart sealed:
But I will vnseale thee; and thow shalt be Partaker,
But bycause thow hast offended me) not with powre.

Notwithstanding, thow and he shall be togither

Thow shalt be a workman of Nature: looking into the Chambers of the earth: the Treasors of men.
Many things are plucked from thee, which were thyne.
But not from you: bycause I haue promised them.

Sep. Septemb. 22.

What is he that brydled the wyndes at your prayers?
Or who is he that hath preserued you from the [illegible] imagination of [illegible] and hatreds of the world invincible?
Is it not he, that is God of heven and earth?
Is it not he, that made both flesh and spirit?
Yea even he it is, that sayeth
Fly from the wickednes, and societie with Devels.
Leave of, to synne against the Lord: for he is of great powre
This is the last tyme, that any [illegible] shall be made in this Stone
For, Lo, the promises of the most highest shall be fulfilled.

This sentence is [illegible] and this stone being [illegible]

E K — Now I see all the heven, [illegible] as I saw before
And there sitteth One in a Judgment seat, with all his feete fyry.
And there sit six, on one side of him, and six on the other:
And there sit 12, in a lower seat vnder them.
All the place is like gold garnished with precious stones.
On his hed is a great stone, covering his hed: a stone most bright: brighter than fyre.
Fowre, bring in a man bownde
Now all is gone, except Vriel

Vr — The ende of words, the begynning of dedes.

A Voyce — Seale it vp; For it is at an Ende.

Δ — What is your will, that I shall doo with this stone

Vr — All is sayde: and I am sealed for tyme to come.

Tuesday January 28 — We went from Posen.

Thursday Jan. 30 we cam to Komin, [illegible] over the long and dangerous bridge: with much cumber at one broken place by reason of the huge cakes of the yse, which lay there.

Satterday February 1. We passed the dangerous way of yse: hauing 24 men to cut the yse for our coaches to come through [illegible] two [illegible]: but for all that great [illegible] we could not get to [illegible] that night: by reason of the great lake and yse hard by the town, which was broken over the bankes into the meddowes [illegible]

Tuesday. February 11. Stylo veteri: ast 21 stylo novo

Δ After our common prayers of the 7 psalmes, and my particular invitation and calling for God his help, and the ministery of his good Angels: After I had more than half an howre spent attendance: E K [illegible] and thought that he felt a thing about his hed, as yf it clawed with [illegible] clawes
It continued no long tyme.
And toward the Easterly Corner of my great study above, semed to E K clowdes to appeare farre of, as at a quarter of a myle distance.
Then appeared a Sea, on the [illegible] way. And a haven [illegible], with a river which fell or ran into that midst.
And besydes that river, coming down into the haven, did another river appere by running into the sea, without any haven making or having.
The water of this sea, is not like sea water, but rather like quicksylver
Now commeth a mountayne, and [illegible] vppon that mayn sea.
Now that Mountayne semeth to rest and stand before that river mowth, that is by the haven.

A Voyce — Measure me.

E K — Now commeth a [illegible] man [illegible] stand with one leg in the foresayd river [illegible] the other in the sayd sea by: having a corner of the [illegible] between his sayd legs. His right leg is in the river, and his left in the [illegible]. His right leg semeth gold, and his left leg [illegible]
The mountayne standeth before [illegible]
His legs are like two pipes: of the substance of the Raynbow
He is very high. He hath a face, but [illegible] (and [illegible]) but not distinctly to be discerned
His body semeth to be red brass.
He standeth with his armes abroade, and no hands appeare
His right arme is of the cullor of sylver
His left arme semeth to be black twynckling
His hed is [illegible] of the Cullor of that sea, wherein his left [illegible] standeth.
Now begynneth a right hand to appere a fayre [illegible]

A Voyce sayd to this man — Measure the water

He answered — It is 250 Cubits

A Voyce — Measure that side of the [illegible]

Answer — It is a cube which doubled in it self in a straight line.

[E K He pointeth [illegible]]

E K — One speaketh behinde me saying Measure the sea also

Answer — It is 750 Cubits.

E K — He now stoupeth to it, and taketh of it in his hand

He sayeth — The fourth in the third, and three in him self square.
The Age of Nature

3 in 4 [illegible] 12 et 3 [illegible] 9: [illegible] 108.

E K — Now all is gone, all is cleare and nothing appeareth.

Δ At length after this E K herd from the foresayd Corner of the study the noyse, as of a ship tossed and rolled of the waves of the sea.
After that E K saw one that stode all covered in white, a clowde by the Easterly corner of the table, above the Table in the ayre he sayde.

— Beati sunt, quibus veritas, spes, et consolatio est: et quibus Luminaria maiora inserviunt, in fortitudine et potentia aeterni et omnipotentis Dei.

E K — Now the clowde covereth him: and abydeth.

E K — Now he commeth out of the clowde, and steppeth three steps forward: and the clowde standeth behynde him, lyke a garment. — At length he sayde.

— Then is their blessednes, aeternall lyfe.

E K — I neuer saw him before: He is covered with a red purple robe, such as my Lord here useth: but made [illegible] like a Surplesh. His hed is covered with feathers like [illegible]

His fa[illegible]

His face is [illegible] His neck is bare.
His legs are [illegible] but to the small of his leg.
His garment [illegible]
He standeth on a white great round Table, like Crystall all written with letters infinite.
On the middle of the table is a great swelling or pommell of the same substance that the Table is of:
Vppon that pommell he standeth
He hath nothing in his hands: neither can his hands be discerned.
His robe hath no sleves.

— Non possum diutius videri:
— Seruus sum Altissimi
— Nobis terram in paradyso — Spiritus sum SAPIENTIAE.
Nomen meum est NALVAGE

E K — He maketh a cross vppon the place where he standeth.

— Beatus Pater
Beatus Filius
Beatus Spiritus Sanctus.
Benedicta sit Mensuratio rerum et substantiarum omnium, visibilium et invisibilium.
Verus et Sanctus est DEVS in promissis suis Et Veritas eius, Talis est.

E K — Hereuppon he [illegible] a round Globe

Caelum, Mundus, Angelus, Homo;
Nihil, et non nihil, et omne quod est, vel erat
Nihil est nisi splendor, Gubernatio, et Vnitas DEI:
Quae a Centro formata et reformata est ab initio ad tempus mensuratum, et in perpetuum.
Laus tibi in Caelo,
Laus tibi in Terra,
Triumphus tibi in Inferno, vbi non est Laus, nec Gloria.
Quae iam insufflo, vento, docto:
sed modo, lingua, et ideomate, praedicto.

E K — He turneth round when he speaketh

Nal — Omnis caro maxime est sibi applicabilis, in natura et perfectione sua.
Igitur revelanda sunt Mysteria Dei, non vt audiantur, sed vt intelligantur

E K — Now commeth a great Smoke: Now I see nothing. Now he is gone

A Voyce — Heare [E K — I see no body.]
The impatient and trublesome spirits of Indignation wrath, blasphemie, and disobedience, contynually contend, heare armes, and ravenously ronne

E K — My thinketh that one speak [illegible] voyce [illegible] an Eccho.

willfully

willfully, agaynst those that [illegible] messengers and Angels of the dignified [illegible] glory.
Which is now the Ministerie [illegible] manifested in his father: to the honor and glory of those that are humble and faythfull in obedience.
Yea those wicked ones, keep open warrs agaynst God, and his anoynted in heven and earth: onely for the [illegible] and true keping of [illegible] as love God, and follow his commandements, reioyce in Truth, and are visited in Righteousnes.
Dark speaches to the flesh: but words mixed with humayn vnderstanding: wherein, briefly, I will manifest the enmitie between the wicked (in respect of their Enviousnes) and those that are [illegible] in heven: which fight in the government of mans sowle in the creatures of God. Not in that they know they shall overcome, but in that they are Envious and Prowde from the beginning.
Their contention is evidently amongst you, which are ioyned in the service of God. Not as Deservers, but as Chosen: whose [illegible] and powre, are best known vnto God.

E K — One standeth on my left side, and sayeth

Sinister — Dost thow not here, [illegible] he speaketh, [illegible] Thow art a Spirit of Lying Thow art one fallen from thy glory [illegible]
Thow art a sower of lyes, and a teacher of false doctrine.

E K — Thus sayeth he on my left hand.

Sinister — Speak, for I haue powre over thee: Canst thow deny it?

Dexter — Thow thinkest so, bycause thow hadst powre:
But the brightnes thow hadst, is turned into Iniquitie.
True it is, thow hadst powre to banish the wicked out of Paradyse
But me thow knowest not bycause thow hast not banished me
In respect of thy dignification, which sprang with powre)
I say with thee Halleluyah.
But in respect of thy fall, thus sayeth the Lord.
Posui tenebras a tergo meo.

Sinister — Fye vppon God, that ever he created me.

Dexter — Even thus, do they seke, contynually, to enter into the weakest vessell: of envy, not to triumph: For, they know, they shall not: but to hinder the tyme with man, wherin they may offend his conscience.

E K — I heare howling and lamenting

Dexter to E K — Suche are those of whome thow sekest ayde and comfort:
Those that appere vnto thee, haue sought thy sowle.
And the frute of them, is according to their destruction.
Beleue them not
It is sayd before — Thow dealest with devels
What reward shall he reap, that fighteth agaynst the highest
Or taketh part with such as are banished from Righteousnes; Much more shall his punishment be, which seketh help of those that are are

are dishonored [illegible] proportion, and is become a Monstre.
For dishonor [illegible] for [illegible] can stand before the Lord, that is imperfect.
It is written [illegible] imperfection [illegible] wickednes, which obeyeth [illegible] the imperfect.
Care, for the Kingdome of Righteousnes is at hand.
And thow must [illegible] the Lorde
That thy synns may be forgiuen thee
The prophesies of the Lord are not vttered to the world, with the seales of the wicked.
Therfore, Become Holy: that thow mayst augment the benefit of God bestowed amongst you: and render it to the world, as the message of truth, with thanks giving.
Meum est pauca dicere [illegible]

Δ — Sed quis sis, referimus: an non idem Naluage qui nobiscum [illegible]
— I am.

E K — Why call you those Devells, with whome I deale: not offending my conscience, but intending to do good to my self and my neyghbors? [illegible] you be of God, where is the frute of your Doctrine? &c.

Nal — If [illegible] were not [illegible] and enemies to truth, they wold prayse and honor God in [illegible] of truth. But bycause these Actions are true; and the fruits of them, shall be the destruction of their Kingdome: Therfore [illegible] and enviously they resist the Will of God,
Denying his powre,
Blaspheming his truth and infecting his vessels

[illegible] doctrine [illegible]

(In oure Doctrine there is nothing taught but the state of the world, here, and to come:
The prophesies of tyme and the knitting vp of God his mysteries, opened from tyme to tyme to those that are his sanctified: as testimonies in the Creation and Operation of his Creatures: whereof this Doctrine, is a part.
The Prophets in their tyme were not ignorant, by revelation, of the good will of their Creator.
The Apostles in Christ his kingdome were made partakers of the mysteries to come: of the State of mans Salvation and endings of this Contest which is in that day, when all Creatures shall receive their reward.
The Church of God is allwayes garnished and furnished with Spirituall Revelations: as a Mansion or dwelling place of the holy Ghost.
These latter dayes, and ende of harvest must haue also [illegible]:
For, no tyme passeth away, but through the hands of God: who maketh the ende of his doings knowen to the world. To the ende, the world may consent vnto him in Glory.
So that this Doctrine, is the Mysteries of the word of God, Sealed from the begynning, now delivered vnto man, for that Reformation which must be in One vnitie established vnto the Ende.

Reformation

The very part of that Circle, which comprehendeth the Mystery of the Highest, in his prophets, Apostles, and Ministers [illegible] to come: which are alive, and shall beare witnes of aeternall Comfort.

Note this circle.

The Frute of our Doctrine, is, that [illegible] crucified.
For, of our selues, we seke no Glory [illegible]
But we serue you, to your Comfort [illegible] teaching [illegible] the will of God, in the self same Christ, that was Crucified; sold, and [illegible] in the Darknesse:
and published to the world by his Disciples. [illegible] now taught vnto you, in the remission of synns [illegible] greatest in the world for the end of all things.
The very key and entrance into the secret Mysteries of God, in respect [illegible] Determination (on earth.) bringing with it reward, in the end, of [illegible] peace. which (is the greatest Threasor.

Nal — What do you see, Imperfect, in all that hath byn d[one]

Δ —

Nal — You haue 49 Tables. In those tables are conteyned the Mysticall and holy voyces of the Angels: dignified, and in state disglorified and drent in confusion: which perceth heuen, and loketh into the Centre of the Erth: the very Language and speche of Children

Wherein, the Apostles vnderstode the diffuse sounds of the world, imperfected, Wherein, the whole world, (to thiss, incredible) all Creatures, and in all kindes, are numbred, in being, and multitude.

The Measure and proportion of that substance, which is Transitorie, and shall wax old.
These things and Mysteries are your partes, and portions sealed: as well by your own knowledge, as the frute of your Intercession,
The knowledg of Gods Creatures.

Fiue partes of a tyme — Vnto me are deliuered fiue partes of a tyme: wherein, I will open teach and vncouer, the secrets of that Speache, that holy Mysterie.
To the intent the CABALA of NATVRE, in voyce, substance of body, and measure in all partes, may be knowen.
For there is Nothing secret, but it shall be reuealed: and the Sonne of GOD shall be knowen in POWRE, and establish a kingdome, with Rightousnes in the Erth: and then commeth the Ende
For, the Erth must come vnder subiection, and must be made pure
That Deth may be swallowed in his own Kingdome, and the Enemy of Rightousnes fynde no Habitation.

Friday. morning, hora 8 1/2 Aprilis 13. Cracoviæ:

Not long after my salutation, Nalvage appeared. Nutu Dei.

Nal — Our peace, which is triumphing patience and glorie, be amongst you.

Δ. Amen —

Nal — It may be sayd, can there be patience in the Angels, which are exalted above the ayre? for, such as were of error, have their reward: yea, such as they deserve: For there is a contynuall fight, betwene them and Sathan, wherein we vanquish by patience. This is not spoken without a cause: for as the divell is the father of Carping, so doth he subtilly infect the Seers imagination, mingling unperfect formes with my utterance: Water is not received without ayre: neyther the word of god, without blasphemous insinuation: the sonne of God never did convert all: neyther did all that did heare him, beleve him. Therfore wheresoever the power of god is, is allso Sathan: so I speak not this without a cause: for I have answered thy cogitation.

Δ. E.K. had thought that Angels had not occasion of any patience and so was his thought answered.

Nal — I finde the soule of man hath no portion in this first table: It is the Image of the sonne of God, in the bosom of his Father, before all the worlds. It comprehendeth his incarnation, passion, and returne to Judgment: which he him selfe in flesh, knoweth not. All the rest, are of understanding: The exact Centre, excepted.

Cracovia from Aprill 17 1584 to Ap: 30th 1584

Divisio III.

2. part of it: from p. 93. (of the Copies) to p. 113.

+ Cracoviæ.

[Wedn]esday: Aprilis 17.

After diverse exhortations appropriat to the action, and the Curten of white veale very long remayning, EK thought diverse things that he saw throwgh the white vale and saw no more, nothing appearing therein.

EK immediately fell into a rude defaming of the Spirits of these Actions: and sayd he had a vision of a hand creature the last night, which sayd, these Creatures with whom we delt, wold no more appere unto him: whereuppon he sayd that both the last dayes shewing and these our instructors were all divells: and that he wold no more sit to receyve A B C and so by letters, my doctrine of them, unlesse they wold otherwise expressly and directly deliver in playne words theyr with many other argiments to disprove the verity of our Actions. Whereuppon he sayd, John your boy can well enough deliver you these letters, and so you need not me. I answered I referred all to God his will and mercy: For, as I had at his hands only, and by his order, and for his service required Wisdome and true knowledge, so do I not doubt, but God will accordingly to his accustomed goodnes, provide that for me, that is best for my vocation here in erth. EK rose, and went away: and left me alone in my Study appointed for these Actions.

Deus in adiutorium meum intende
Domine ad adiuvandum me festina
Gloria Patri et Filio et Spiritui Sancto
Sicut erat in principio et nunc et semper et in secula seculorum
Amen

Thursday circa 9 a meridie As I was in my upper study, and had gathered the holy words of the second and third Call and had conferred them with the english delivered unto us: EK came up the stayres and so went into his study and came out agayn and as he was going down the stayres I opened my study dore, and saluted him: he thereuppon came up agayn and came into my study: and there I shewed him what I had done: and how I had some understanding of these holy words theyr significations by reason of the due applying of the english to the words. By this I have induced EK to like the better of the calling, by this proceeding with the manner of our frends due and methodicall, and bad him that unlesse of this strange language I shold have the words delivered unto us letter by letter, we might erre both in the ortographie, and also for want of the true pronunciation of the words, and distinctions of the points, we might more misse the effect expected.

But

as on tuesday last, so now agayn he sayd, our Teachers were delvders, and no good or sufficient Teachers, who had not in two yeres space made us hable to understand or do [illegible]: and that he could in two yeres have lerned many liberall sciences, yf he had first lerned Logik. [illegible] that he wold have no more to do with them any manner of way. [illegible] himself in England, and sayd that yf the bokes were his, that he wold out of hand burn them. and that he had written to my Lord (by Pernis) that he toke our Teachers to be deceyvers and wicked and no good creatures of God. with many such speches, and ~~[illegible]~~ reasons (as he thought) of force to dissuade him self from any more dealing with them. He willed me to use John my boy as my skryer. for that these spirituall creatures were not bound unto him. &c. I answered unto all these parcells and reasons, as tyme served, declaring my perfect trust in God, that sying I have many yeres desyred and prayed for wisdome (such of which Actions importe) at his hands, and by such meanes as to his divine Maiestie seemeth best, that he wold not otherwise myslyke my prayer, or abuse my constant hope in his goodnes and mercy: Therfore I concluded that I referred all to the mercyfull will of God: and desired nothing at the knight to be satisfyed of my request and prayer made unto him. So he went from me this second tyme. God lighten his hart with knowledge of the truth, if it be his divine will and pleasure.

Note: Pernis went on ~~tuesday~~ ^last munday^ morning: and had receyved our letters ~~[illegible]~~ after noone on Tuesday last: But on monday before the wicked Prince of darknes did what he could to hinder our procedings

On Thursday Fabius (brother to my Lord Lasky his wife) brought tydings to Cracovia that my Lord Lasky was coming to Cracovia ward: Emericus cam fro Kesmark, and returned bak agayn. Fabius rode fro Cracovia [illegible]

Second, in respect of your Callings, which is obedience.

And the voice of God confirmeth mercy salvation
Whereupon I do say, move not: and why: because the place is holy.

Δ — What is to be devided with a straight Line.

— The Bills.

Δ — In the name of Jesus, who art thou?

— The servant of God.

Δ — Art thou sent from God, with good tydings or messages? 148

— What I am, he knoweth, of whome I beare witness.

Δ — What is your name, eyther as you are noted among the blessed Angels, or called by, of any mortall man.

If you be of Verity, and so of Charity, you can not mislike my asking.

E K — He sayeth nothing.

Δ — Belike he is not sent unto us by god: for if he were, he would do his message.

I am AVE

Δ This AVE is one of those [illegible] of whose order, Raziel is: vide [illegible]

Δ — If you be AVE, In the name of Jesus, say that all wycked Angells are iustly condemned: and, that, by the mercy of God, in the merits of Christ, Mankinde, elect, is to be saved.

Ave — The Visitation of God, is twofold: In respect of his secret will and purpose: and in particularities.

And in that he hath visited us, with the good will of mankinde to theyr Comfort.

But yf I be a scandale to the word, then am I not of righteousnes: But my righteousnes, is of the worde: Therfore, that I visit you of my self, can be no offense.

Those that are and lye in wikednes, are dishonorable, and far from the mercyes of God: For it is written I am a God to the Lowly.

Therfore, do I dishonor them: (such I say) as are wicked.

The Mercyes of God, (which is the true Manna) comforteth the comforted, and giveth hope of amendment, of such as runne astray, are synners, and may returne.

Misericordia Dei

Therfore, I say, The Mercy [of God] (which is the salvation and sweetnes of the Love of God) is a thing most blessed, most holy, most to be desyred in heaven and earth: and of me, the Creature and Servant of God, to be reverently spoken of, and regarded.

For, it is the fode wherewith we Live: even the very bred, wherewith we are refreshed. Thus much, thou hast required.

Δ — I did so: For, so, is his Justice against the impenitent and his mercyes to his Elect, testified truly.

Ave — Have patience: I will returne after a few moments.

Δ — Hereuppon (in the mean space) we considered the premisses, and liked very well of the Scandale, or offense, avoyding. Because it was lately (Junij 18) sayd, God will appere no more to you, untill you take your Jorney.

And secondly he answered my request of God his Justice against the wicked Angels, and also of his mercy toward mankinde.

Note this manner of a thing felt warme on the right sholder.

Δ — Abowt a quarter of an howre after, there semed a thing to come agayn on E K his right sholder: and (as before) he caused his sholder to be very warme where it lighted on.

Δ — Benedictus qui venit in nomine Domini. Halleluyah.

E K — Amen.

Ave — The place is sanctifyed.

Δ — Sanctus, sanctus, sanctus est Dominus Deus Zebaoth.

Ave — I, in the favor of God, considering (and by force of his secret love toward you) how Sathan purposeth, yet, and dayly to overthrow you, thowght good, (through the mercyes of God) to prevent his mallice, and the effect therof.

Δ — O blessed, be thow, our God of mercyes, and all Comfort. 190

Ave — That, (allthough yet, the Harvest be not) the Vynyard might yeld some frute: Whereby God might be glorified: and you, (in despite of the World) revived and comforted, might reioyce, and shake of the present cares to come.

For the Glory of God.

For yf they that be unworthy, can seme to be lifted up, and to enioye the frutes of the earth, by the Tempter: Much more ought the true Servants of God, to seke his fatherly goodnes.

Those that trust in me (sayeth the Lord) shall not be driven to despayre. Neyther will I suffer the beasts of the feeld to tred such as I delyght in under fote.

The erth is myne, and the Glory therof: The heavens are myne, allso, and the Comforts that are in them.

Sathan his mallice against us

They hath (therfore), the father of Darknes, rysen up, saying

1 I will shut up the earth from them:

2 I will shutt up the myndes of men: and they shall become barren towards them:

3 Theyr misery shall be great, even unto death:

For this cause: That he might wake the Lord, when he is a slepe: That those that trust in him, might be comforted.

He hath sealed the earth from you, and I will open it unto you:

He hath sayd, you shall be poore.

But I say, you shall become exceding riche.

I will bless you with a twofold blessing: That the earth may be

1 open unto you (which, at last, you shall contemne)

2 And that my blessing and Lawes may dwell amongst you: Wherein you shall reioyce, unto the ende.

Δ — O blessed, blessed, blessed God of powre, Goodnes, and wisdome.

Ave — This was the cause that I appeared to the E K this Morning.

Now therfore harken unto me: For I will open unto you the secret knowledge of the earth: that you may deale with her, by such as govern her, at your pleasure: and call her to a reckening, as a steward doth the servants of his Lorde.

Governors of the Erth.

Expownd the Vision.

4 Angels Towres

The 4 howses, are the 4 Angels of the earth: which are the 4 overseers, and Watchtowres: that the eternall God in his providence hath placed, against the usurping Blasphemy, mysuse, and stelth of the wicked and great enemy, the Divell.

To the intent that beyng put out to the earth, his envyous will might be brydled, the Determinations of God fullfilled, and his Creatures kept, and preserved, within the compass and measure of order.

What Sathan doth, they suffer

And what they wynk at, he wrestleth

But when he thinketh him self most assured, then feeleth he the Bytt.

Bytt.

4 Kings 5 Princes

In each of these howses, the Chief watchman, is a mighty prince, a mighty Angell of the Lord: which hath under him 5 princes (whose names I must use for your instruction)

The seales and Authorities of these howses, are confirmed in the begynning of the world. 191

The Crosses †

Unto every one of them, be 4 characters, (Tokens of the presence of the Sonne of God: by whome all things were made in Creation) Ensignes, uppon the Image wherof, is death: wherein the Redemption of Mankinde is established: and with the which he shall come to judge the Earth.

These are the Characters, and naturall marks of holynes.

4 Angels

Unto these, belong 4 Angels severally.

The 24 Seniors in the Apocalyps.

The 24 olde men, are the 24 Seniors, that S. John remembreth.

These iudge the government of the Castells, and fullfill the will of God, as is written.

The 12 names of God.

The 12 Banners are the 12 Names of God, that govern all the creatures uppon the earth, visible and invisible: comprehending 3, 4, and 5.

The Angels of the ayres

Out of these Crosses, come the Angells of all the Ayres: which presently give obedience, to the will of man, when they see them.

The Use in Practise

Hereby may you subdue whole contries, without Armies.

Which you must, and shall do, for the Glory of God.

By these you shall get the favor of all the princes, whome you take pitie of, or wish well unto.

Hereby shall you know the secret Threasures of the waters, and unknowen Caves of the Earth.

And it shall be a Doctrine, for you only, the Instrument of the World.

The higher Instructions

For, the rest of your Instructions, are touching the heavens, and the tyme to come: of the which, this is the last and extreame knowledge.

This will I deliver unto you, (because I have yelded you before the Lorde.)

On monday next 23 Junij

Uppon monday next I will appeare unto you: and shall be a Lesson of a few dayes.

E K — The will of God, be done.

Δ — Amen.

Ave — In the mean season, desyre you of God, such things, as are necessary for you.

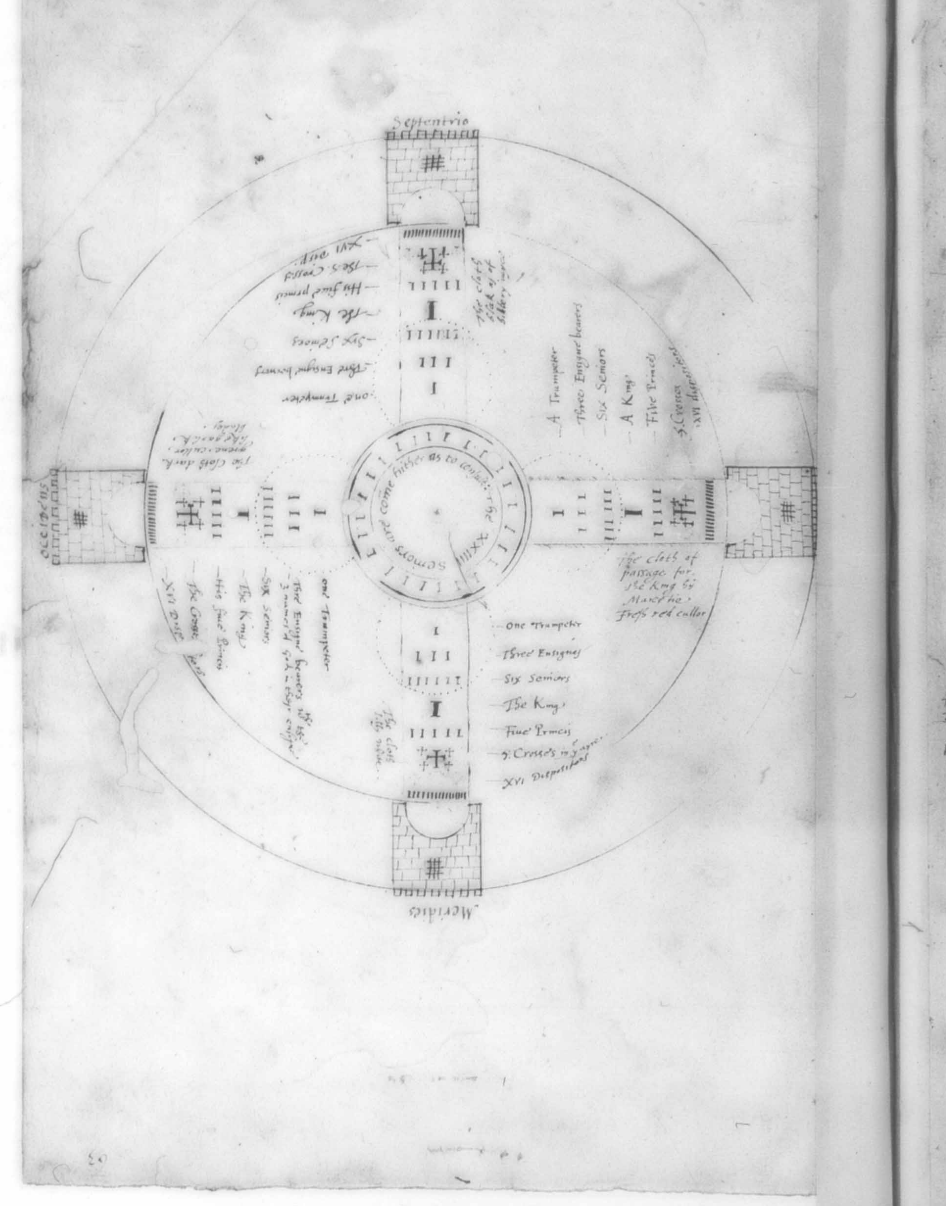
A blessing

He that ~~[struck out]~~ filleth all things, and from whome all things Live, and in, and through whome, they are sanctifyed, bless you, and confirme you, in peace.

Δ — Amen.

Δ — I beseche you, to Notify this mornings Vision, by words: as all other holy prophets, have recorded theyrs.

Ave —



Ave — A Vision 30 103

Δ Are you Madimi (in the name of Jesus) that I may so Note of you?

Mad — I am MADIMI, and of that ordre, wherein the Wonders of God are wrought with Powre: with you, as my words are: with my self, as my Creation is.

Lo, As I haue often promised you, so in the tyme of your Necessitie and greif, I visit you.

Δ — Thanks be to the highest.

Mad — Not as the frends of the world do, but as a Comforting Spirit: exalting the servants of God: and cherishing them with Celestiall fode.

Mater Madimi

But my Mother is at hand, which openeth unto the, the will of God.

Beleue me, many are the woos of the world, and great are the sorrowes that are to come.

The Rainbow Apocalyps. 4

For the Lord prepareth his raynbow, and the witnesses of his accesse: and will appeare in the heavens to finish all things: and the tyme is not long.

Faith shall hardly be found on the erth.

Blessed are those, that beleue: for faith shall flee from the Earth: and her dwelling places shalbe in caues, and unknowen Mountaynes, and in partes of the Erth, which the Lord hath kept secret for such as shall triumph, and reioyce in the Judgment to Come.

1. Wo be to women great with childe: for they shall bring furth Monsters.
2. Wo be unto the Kings of the Erth for they shall be beaten in a morter.
3. Wo be unto such as paynt them selues, and are like unto the Prince of pride. for they shall drink the bloud of theyr neyghbors, and of theyr own children.
4. Wo be unto the fals preachers, yea seven woos be unto them, for they are the teeth of the beast.

Seven Woos

He that hath eares, let him heare.

5. Wo be unto the Virgins of the earth, for they shall disdayne theyr Virginitie: and they shall become Concubines for Sathan, and despise the God of Righteousness.
6. Wo be unto the Merchants of the erth: for they are become abominable. Behold they are become the spyes of the earth, and the daynty meat of Kings. But they are foolish: yea they shall fall into the pytt that they haue digged for others.
7. Wo be unto the bakers of the earth, for they are corrupted; and are become a wresting stock, and tyrants unto the Conscience.

Stay a whyle: for my Mother commeth.

Δ We red ouer the premisses, and so considered of the Veritie and weight of them. And all this while Madimi stode still, in E.K. his sight. But bycause we were willed to stay, I moued no question: but wished to haue some understanding how my wife and children (at Cracouia) did. Hereuppon, Madimi sayd as followeth.

Mad — Here what I say unto the. The King of Darknes whetteth his teeth agaynst the: and rampeth with great rage to ouerwhelme the world uppon the: And he seketh the destruction of thy howshold, and thereby thy ouerthrowe: the life of thy children: yea he tempteth thy wife with dispayre, and to be violent unto her self.

My wife tempted to destroye her self.

[Δ — Wherfore, with despayre?]

But his lipps are sealed, and his clawes made dull: that when he wold byte, he can not: And where he skratcheth, the bloud followeth not.

Lo, I loke for him, and can not see him, yet see all the world ouer. It is a signe that God is not with him.

Δ — Precibus ad Deum fusis, ex more nostro etc.

1. I propounded: Yf the letter written for Rodolphus, were, as it shold be:
2. Secondly, bycause we were willed to invite the good Angels, for the boke writing I asked, how we shold inuite them.
3. As concerning our wyves and my familie sending for: I required, when that shold be done.

Δ — Quickly Apparition was made.

EK — Here is Uriel.

Δ — Welcome be the Light of the highest.

URIEL — Wo be unto the world: for her light is taken away.

Wo, Wo be unto man, for the eye of light hath forsaken him.

Wo, Wo be to the Understanding of man, for it is led out, with a threefold Spirit, the spirit of error and ignorance.

This Testimonie to be beloued: uppon great displeasure etc.

And Wo be unto such as beleue not the glorious and supereminent light of this Testimonie.

For they are not written with the Life, neyther shall theyr portion be with the Liuing.

Thus sayth he that is a mere Stoane, (which sitteth betwene the seat of light and darknes) whose wyngs are great, and more then mighty: wherewith he gathereth the sterrs, and the powres that hang uppon the firmament, of the first and lesser light: placing them and powring them, in the spirit of Truth; and through his own powre, the powre of the word, whereby all things are, and are comprehended: in that he is aswell in the heuens of Glory, Chastitie, and Message, as allso in places unknowen to us:

Behold, those that dig into Nature, with dull Mattocks, and dull spades, are such, as of euery congealed substance can imagin, but not Judge: are folish, and of the world; whose Imaginations are become the Instruments of Vanitie, and the persons of him which is the father of Ignorance.

Wo be unto them; for, theyr Disputations and doctrines, are Dogmas, and dull.

Wo wo unto them; for they are such as please them selues, and are become fathers to many lewd children: of whome it is written,

They are become stifnecked and proude, and the followers of their father.

Therfore haue I gathered my self to gither, and am hidden from them. bycause they are proude and haters of Innocency.

These teach not unto you a doctrine, Neyther are you Partakers of theyr Bankets for the Spirit of God, is playne, pure, and most perfect.

God he is the Discloser of his own secrets.

This breath not uppon you: neyther are the Ornaments of your Garlands enterlaced by those: But by him are you lifted up, that is the God of Justice, and the Discloser of his own secrets: and the hedlong drawer of things to an ende.

Therfore Beleue, and Dream not with the world. For the world shall perish; and all her adherents: and shall be cast into the pyt of wo euerlasting.

Read the Scriptures, and understand them: But wrest them not, with the wycked.

Loke into the simplicitie, and Nakednes of God his promises.

View the Innocency of some that receyued them:

And let not the wyckednes of those that the Lord made vertuous, go out of your remembrance.

But o Triumpheth true powre: so gathereth he him self to gither to discomfort (Vanquish) the Serpent.

Of the lightest, he maketh the hiedyst: and of the weakest the strongest:

And, in the weakest vessels, worketh he his mercy.

And why!

8 5

And why!

Beholde: Least the world in her proude Imaginations, in the ornaments of her perls, and most precious wittes, shold brag, saying I can compare with the Lorde.

Heare my voyce, for it is of God.

Humilitie

The world bringeth forth no good thing: Neyther are the doings of man accepted, but where the spirit of humilitie dwelleth.

Out of the depth of darknes, hath God made light: And lo, the light is great and the darknes comprehendeth it not.

So, in the Weakest will he be exalted.

Uriel hath a towre to buyld, etc.

The Spirit that speaketh unto you is he that hath a Towre to buyld: a strong towre and a mighty. yea such an one as hath not byn from the begynning: No, not from the begynning.

Great is the foundation therof: for, it is of Iron.

But greater are her walls: for, they are of Diamond.

Most great are her Turrets, for they are the 7 heds, that behold, iudge and gather: And they are made of Truth; the Spirit of Æternitie.

Δ and EK:

Unto the Laying of euery Stone, are you made priuie. And for this towre are you prouided.

Filius .2. And the Second hath redemed, and ouercome Sathan.

Now, will I heare you from under the Alter.

Now, will I reuenge the bloud of your brethren.

O you Ignorant, and of weak faith: knowe you not the tymes that are to come.

O you that spit out the meat of Comfort: yea when it is put louingly into your mowthes.

Why are you sorrowfull: why reioyce you not, that the God of Justice is gyrded, and hath whetted his sword, upon a thowsand thowsand Mountaynes of fyre.

Why laugh you not the world to skorn? and deride her fornication?

Weepe not upon her: for she is accursed:

Neyther wonder at her; for she will be more wonderfull.

You haue receyued this Doctrine in Chambers and in secret places: But it shall stand in the great Citie: and uppon 7 hills: and shall establish her self in truth: purifie the walls, and swepe out the dust and Copwebs (the works of the venemous) that it may be cast into the riuer, and brought into no remembrance.

Yea, it shall sit in Josaphat, in Judgment, against the wicked: and shall become a fyre engendred in the Caue of Thunders.

Feare not

Therfore, when you are commanded, Lift up your heds: and feare not: for whome, the heuens shall fight.

Δ — After we had stayed a whyle, and red ouer the premisses, and talked of the mercy of the Choyse (or Election) offred: and the dealings with Rodolph. we thought good to beseche God [illegible] [illegible] his promise, for his glory and honor [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a wyse we were not worthy, nor wisdome: Therfore we desired to be entred speedily into the [illegible] of wisdome, [illegible] we might [illegible], and attend the opportunitie, if any thing to be done or sayd by us. So that (if it were his will) we were and are desirous now to be visited, as his most mercifull promise importeth.

Uriel — EK — Now he is here: he hath [illegible] a [illegible], and is set down in it: it is like a Throne.

A Vision

Here I see a greene hill: and I see three there men, like [illegible] men: in gownes of [illegible] [illegible]: they haue hatts on theyr heds.

Uriel hath in his hand a thing like a rolling pynne (of [illegible] [illegible] long) of gold.

The Garden of Comfort.

I see beyond the hill [illegible] men, a very fayre park, [illegible] with [illegible], [illegible] etc.

I see roses and lillyes and goodly flowers in one part of it and fayre [illegible] running waters in it, and little hills [illegible] made of [illegible]: And in the myddle of the park, is a [illegible] and in the [illegible] [illegible], a round thing like a [illegible] [illegible] lightly [illegible] the park [illegible]: and without the park pale, it is dustish or darke.

These three men stand by [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] of the bank of the hill that goeth downward [illegible]

Uriel [illegible]

There appeare three diuers fayre wayes, to the park, two from the hill where the men stand, and one from the place [illegible] Uriel.

1. I see one man walk in the park: and he [illegible] flowers and [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] of a candell when the candell is put out.
2. I see [illegible] an other man gathering of flowers there and he wold put the flowers [illegible] [illegible] on his cote but they will not [illegible] on but fall down, it is so [illegible].
3. I see a thyrd man, who hath his robes all [illegible] [illegible] of gold [illegible] and [illegible], and diuers precious stones and on his hed a wreath like a garland very broade [illegible] [illegible] very [illegible] precious stones: and [illegible] [illegible] all [illegible] with the flowers of the park [illegible],

Now the three men are [illegible] from the hill, before Uriel [illegible] [illegible]:

[illegible]

I [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] you that I may [illegible] [illegible] into the garden of Comfort

Uriel — you shall: I am [illegible]

11

EK Now the three go toward the garden of Comfort: they [illegible] one to an other, and [illegible] to [illegible] one [illegible] an other They go in the path [illegible] [illegible] from [illegible] toward the park

Uriel — These are wise men, for they shall [illegible] the danger of the first and second, and shall [illegible] liue as the third in Comfort and pleasure.

Δ — His meaning of the first and second [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] of the third.

For, behold, these [illegible] haue entred, and [illegible] shall enter [illegible] [illegible] theyr reward.

Respice ferri .1.

But some there be that enter and respect not the ende and [illegible] shall they be as he is, [illegible] defileth the flowres

EK — Now here commeth a man from the parkward, and [illegible] [illegible] three men and [illegible] the three [illegible] very garments: they put of theyr [illegible] garments, and put on theyr [illegible] and [illegible] garments,

Uriel — Other some there be, [illegible] go the middle way [illegible] it is the [illegible] and straightest, and they [illegible] [illegible] enter with theyr own ornaments, [illegible] are very poore and bare and [illegible] [illegible] garments [illegible] haue no pleasure.

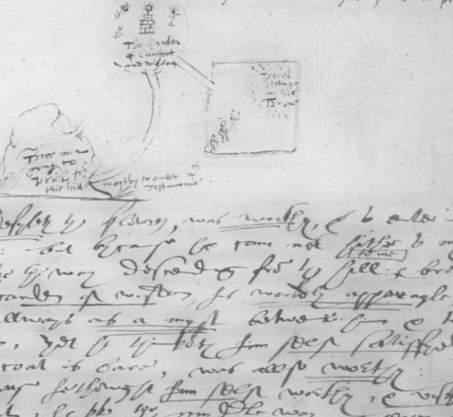
Note. Causa sine qua non: et causa proxima et propria, [illegible] differentes sunt.

Some there are that enter from me (for without me [illegible] none entereth into that garden) [illegible] [illegible] I am [illegible] of him that lighteth the Creation, therfore is there a [illegible] [illegible], and [illegible] testimony from me, [illegible] [illegible] are [illegible] worthy, and are apparayled for that place of pleasure; and so worthy enter.

Lo they [illegible] them selues, [illegible] made [illegible] the [illegible] of so pleasant flowres: and they allwayes drink of the water of wisdom to theyr Comfort and [illegible]. Blessed is he, that so entereth.



.1. A defyler of the flowres

He that defileth the flowres, was worthy, and to enter into the garden: but bycause he came not hither (to me) to my throne [illegible] so like this [illegible] [illegible] for [illegible] [illegible]: [illegible] brought into the garden of wisdom, his [illegible] apparayle, which [illegible], is allways [illegible] a [illegible] betwixt him and true wisdom, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] him self [illegible]:

The Garden of Wisdome.

.2. He whose [illegible] is bare, was also worthy: But bycause he thought him self worthy, and [illegible] [illegible] my [illegible], he [illegible] the myddle way, [illegible] are no ornaments: therfore he brought in [illegible] [illegible] nakednes

[illegible] unto the Shadowe, that the showres fall of it, as from a marble stone. as the waters glyde of it, as from the back of a falcon.

Behold, I sitt: happy are those, that come unto me. So, you see, you may become wise, with the Elders, Wise with the bare, and wise with those that are adorned, and dwell in true comfort.

The gate that thou shalt enter into, is a type of fury and of revenge. But be it unto thee, as thy Election is. Even from the begynning, nakedly open unto Rudolph the manner of Gods Visitation. Shew unto him the holy Vision: for I will make thee unto him an hand, an arme, yea an whole body. yea I will be manifest unto him: and have him for my self: and he shall be thy Comfort. I will put my feare into him, and he shall be afrayd to [illegible], and he shall become a rod to those that are synfull. Happy are those, whose works are a hope and whose faith deserveth the ayd of my light. This is of God, and I am the finger. Happy are those that are directed by me for, in me, is the true path, and light of direction.

EK — He is gone.

Δ — As concerning this gate (lastly spoken of), whereunto I must enter, that it is a type of fury, and of revenge: O Lord, I am afrayd [illegible] to my displeasure [illegible]: for I referred my election to the will of God, as [illegible] for his honor and glory, to be granted. and I have long made petition to God for your help: and I desire nothing [illegible] that should make the highest offended [illegible]. But perhaps the [illegible] of God which is to be imparted to Rudolph [illegible] in the operation of the Justice of God, with a furious and revenging type; as under the altar, [illegible]

Mane. Δ — Nota — Sathanae astutia et violentia stratagema

Δ — There was great disquietnes in EK. being came home from our hostes house, where he had lyen all night uppon a forme: by reason he had byn (which he never was the like afore, as he sayd) with wyne overcome suddenly: yet intending with him self to take hede of being overseen in drinking of wyne: being persuaded by the hostes to give her a quarte of wyne uppon the good bargayn he had in a clok the which of her for 5 Durkats: In this company of drinking was Alexander the Lord Lasky his servant who cam with us [illegible]. Unto whome EK (when the drink, on the suddayn, had overcome him) sayd he wold cut of his hed, and with his walking staff did touch him fayre and softly on the neck, sitting before him: This Alexander being half dronken him self, by and by toke those words in great snuffe and went to defend him self: and so toke his weapon to him, and thereuppon, they by, caused Alexander to go down: It was supper tyme: And I, that night, refrayned to sup and so tarrying at my lodging, and looking out saw Alexander sitting on the great stone against our lodging: I called to him and bid [illegible] him that they were at supper: And he cam over to me, and he had wept much: he complayned of EK his former words, and the touch of the staff, which was against his credit to take that in good part, and spake many souldiers termes of such words, not worthy the recording. I, thereuppon, went to our hostes house, and wold understand the very truth; and there I found EK — fast on slepe, on a forme, most soundly: for which, I was right sorry: And yet better pleased to perceyve the words of EK, which so moved Alexander (being [illegible] half drunken) to have byn spoken by EK when wyne, and not witt, bare rule: and so pleaded long tyme with Alexander that of words spoken so as they were, no such exact accompt was to be geven to him &c. And after two houres persuasion caused Alexander to go to bed in a lodging where he used to lye: for he wold have gone out, to our former ynne, in those raging half drunken pangs, he was in: which I thought not good. This Monday morning EK coming home: and seing Alexander, as he cam in, he sayd they tell I shold have [illegible] spoken words, which greatly offended the yesternight, and that I [illegible] touched the with my staffe, &c I knowe nothing of it.

Δ And [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] with Alexander — Well sayth Alexander, Si fuisset alius &c.

EK cam up to me: I told him how sorry I was for this mysfortune: and told him of the watchmen perceyving Alexander his disquieted mynde, and hering his words: they cam to me and charged me to have a care of the peace keping (As they did in dede). and farder sayd, that Alexander in his rage, sayde, that, rather, or before, he shold cut of his hed, that he wold cut EK in peces. So sone as I had expressed that word of this drunken Alexander likewise [illegible] now I [illegible] [illegible], and EK allso [illegible]) suddenly EK fell into such a rage, that he wold be revendged of him, for so saying and for raysing on him in the strete, as he did, &c. Much a do I, Emericus, and his brother had to stop or hold him from going on Alexander with his weapon &c. At length we let him go in his dubblet & hose, without a cap or hat on his hed: & into the strete he hasted with his brothers rapier drawn, and challendged Alexander to fight: But Alexander went from him, and sayd Nolo Domine Kellee, Nolo.

January 12. Saterday — After none I removed Home, from Doctor Hagek his house by Bedlem and cam with all my household to the house which I had hyred of the two systers (marryed) not far fro the [illegible] Market place in old Prage.

Pragae. Actio prima post reditum.

January 14 Monday — Circa 9 horam a Media nocte: Precibus ad Deum, de more fusis, et invocato Lumine [illegible] ad eusdem [illegible], et cum veritate erat tandem Ecce

LEVANAËL (as may appere February 5; post [illegible])

E K — Here is one with a Veale afore his face, as it were a Seare cloth, of ash cullor: I know him not yet.
I see a garden full of fruite, of diverse sorts. In the myddst of it is a place higher than the rest. On that place standeth a round house: it hath fower corners [within] and 4 wyndowes: and every wyndowe is round and hath 4 round partitions, round allso. It hath 4 dores: and at the East dore is one step, at the South 2 steps, and at the North, 3: and at the West dore, 4 steps: The first dore is white, like Chrystall, transparent: The South dore is red of an high cullor, transparent. The North dore is bright black, not to be [throughe] seen, as the rest. The West is grene, like an Emerald stone. So is the South dore like a Ruby. The dores be all playne. The house within (as it may be judged by the transparent dores) semeth to be whole, and empty.

E K Note: The house is round without and square within:

E K — He that hath his face covered, openeth the Est dore: and all the house semeth to be on fyre, like a fornace. The fyre within, doth wide and more about the house, and by the roofe.

1. Fire

Now he openeth the West dore, and there appeareth as if all the house were a fowntayne full of water. And there runne diverse streames in the same one water. Wherof, one doth go and come, as it ebbed and flowed: Which streame doth go about all the rest, by the sydes of the house. as it were the Ocean Sea compassing the world.

2. Water

The next streame, within that, moveth from the 4 sydes ward, and make (in manner) 4 Triangles, or rather cones, of water whose vertices rest (as it were) by the myddle streame of water which occupyeth the myddle or center of the house, and is in circular forme environed.
An other manner of streame there is which commeth from the 4 corners of an ymaginary square: and so run diametraliter or contradictorie wise, toward that circular myddle streame.
The myddle streame semeth to yssue out at the very center of the place and to mount up and making an arch of his water, doth seme to fall, circulariter in one circumference.
E K — The fyre allso had diversitie in it.
Δ — I wold you had Noted the diversitie of the fyre allso.
Those that lerne truly, lerne by parts.
E K — The cullor of the water in the Center, is most pure white:
The waters of that Saint Andrews crosse, are like a water somwhat saffronish cullored
The waters of the Triangles, are somwhat like a water black: which appeareth most, in the top of the arches of theyr flowing:
For, all spring archwise
The uttermost water, is of quicksylver shew, as if it were somwhat mortifyed.
~~E K — Now he openeth the fyre dore agayne: And the fyre~~
Δ — In the figure here following, you may gether a better and more easy understanding of the description of the water streames.

No man that seketh the brightness of the Sonne, goeth under the Earth: Neyther crepeth he into vaulted caves.

The Tygres seek not theyr pray uppon earth where the waters are not, Neyther the Eagles uppon waters

Temptation So more doeth yt you to grudg that the Lord tempteth you, Nor to be offended, when the World offendeth you

Ys it not sayd unto you that you shall fight a [illegible] fight :: What fight is it my brethren: but a battayle against the worldlings and the Divel?

Kings. I say unto you that Kings shall be offended in you.

The Sonne ceaseth not: yet he shall cease: yea he shall not be.

The heavens of heaven kepe theyr course; but they shall suddenly stagger and forget theyr long worne way.

Much more shall the wyckednes of those that rise up against you have an ende. For in them is no course but error: and the fire brands of Sathan, prepared in theyr owne hands, for theyr owne destruction

Behold, they shall contend against you, and shall despise thee: But lo I have blessed the above them: For thou shalt fight against them, and shalt overthrowe them: that my name may be magnifyed in the midst amongst the multitude of the hyrelee.

Historia pro civil.

Behold, they are opposite unto thee, bycause they are opposite unto me: for I have gathered thee from amongst them, and they are become thy Enemies.

Syncs therefore they are thy Enemies, bycause thou must fight against them Be not grieved then when theyr wyckednes doth offend thee: But put on the armor of patience, and Become Innocent.

Dost thou think that from the holiest can come the dew of all thinges and life of all things? Even so think allso that from us cometh no untruth

Ministri Spiritus Be therefore Innocent: and be not deceyved by the flesh

Cast Reason aside, colored with her clokes: And lift up thy self in him: Unto him I say that hath lifted thee from the dores of Death: taken the out of the hands of Butchers: and confirmed thee for a Member of his glory.

Magna est Misericordia tua, Domine.

Behold, I say unto thee the brightnes of Truth overshaddoweth thee.

Therefore, thou dwell in Truth, why shouldst thou be a feard? Considering that she conquereth and resisteth all her enemyes.

Behold, the World despyseth you, you allso shall despise the world.

When the Angel of the Lord, powreth his Wrath, and Viol uppon the Earth; and the Enemyes of the Sonne of God, runne in amongst the Shepe

When the selfsame plage, that was in the land of Pharao, rayneth in the howses of all that dwellers uppon the erth, such as the Lord abhorreth:

When the Lord with his hand, shall gather up the fruits of the erth from them,

Where, then, shall be theyr honors?

What, then, shall be done with mony & with that harlot and strumpet of the erth?

Prophetia Of what value shall theyr love be then! or who shall regard theyr frendship?

Post Dominicam precem, et alia brevi ejaculatione, pro Lumine et Veritate Dei obtinendis etc.

E K — Here he is now.

Δ — Gloria, laus, et honor sit Deo nostro Omnipotenti. Amen.

Honor and thanksgiving with all voyces, be unto our Lord Jesus:

Δ — Amen. E K — Amen.

Note this VISION

E K — He hath a great heap of erth by him, of orange or tawny rather, or yellowish naturall drawing somewhat to a lyon tawny.

E K — A woman cometh and taketh with a spade, diggeth about it.

Now cometh a childe a man childe out of a dark place, with a fyre fork in his hand.

The woman hath taken away all the erth, and there appeareth water where the erth was.

The boy casteth out that water with the fyre shovel

The woman laugheth at that

The woman is in greene clothes and the boy in red

Now cometh a woman with childe, or with a great belly, in white clothes. She putteth her hand down to the grownd, and pulleth out a little glass, full of red oyle; breaking the erth about it.

Now cometh an old man with a crabtree staff on his bak. his clothes of motly culler

This old man taketh the glas fro the woman by force

With his fyst he breaketh the glass: and all the oyle runneth abowt his arme; and out of that oyle, did seme a boke to come, a very little boke

Δ — I kneeled, and so prepared my self to the writing In the Name of Jesus, our Redemer, and the wisdome eternall of God Almighty.

E K — He kneleth him self.

E K — Now goeth fyre out of his mowth seemingly. he turneth him self to the 4 parts of the world spitting out or breathing fyre vehemently.

E K — Now cometh one, like an angell, hovering over him in the ayre: and byddeth him Hold up his hand:

Thow shalt swear by heven and erth and by him that sitteth on the throne, that thow shalt open thy mowth, and speak no more then is conteyned in this boke

E K — he delivereth him a boke out of his bosom.

I have sworn

E K — prayed a short fervent prayer: whereto I conjoyned with 68

E K — Now there cometh a beame like a wyre from the hed, as big as my little finger.

1586 Maij 1. — On May day after dynner I went over the Water (being brought to the water side in the Lord Rosenberg his coach, and Jacobus Menschik with me) unto the Lord Rosenberg his gardens and lodgings by the water side. whether he cam to me by appointment. To whom when I had red in Latin (ex tempore) the things that concerned him: I asked him what he had donne, [illegible] of my last being with him: that I might the better understand those words spoken to him & of him.

He [illegible], that he had [illegible] prayed, [illegible] God for the forgiveness of his sinnes and to open his [illegible] he might serve him: and to make it to be evident unto him whether he [illegible] to marry, or no: & whom, or in what sort, or kinred. And if it were his divine will, that he might [illegible] & [illegible] by me. And that those & such matters, & [illegible] he had prayed allso, for his [illegible] the Emperor that he might [illegible] to [illegible] favor. yea for his [illegible] marriage & amending of his [illegible] life, which he [illegible] that day at the Archbishops table, he had & [illegible] did [illegible] very much upon it: &c

At these his words I wondered much to perceyve the dealing of the highest, in the hearing of his prayer, faithfully prayed. and that the answer which I red unto him was so fitly applyed unto his prayer, as he allso him self, did perceyve. With great comfort & spirituall joy he entreated much that I wold pray to God that the Emperor might be restored to the favor of God, as he was when I declared my message unto him from the Highest. I answered that what so ever the God of heven and erth shold appoint me to say or do unto his Majesty I wold most willingly rejoyce in the faithfull doing of it: And that it was my duty (as a Christian) to pray for his Majestie: But I could not make any promise of my prayer to be herd: but wold highly rejoyse yf his Imperiall Majestie wold so use him self in god his judgment, as might be meritorious in the sight of our Redemer. Such words and matters as this passed between us. And he sayd, that he wold, in all points, fulfill the advise and warning of God, in his Action expressed: and wold marry a mayden as he was willed: and this day did acknowledge and account him self a happy man: and as concerning our mutuall bond, by the meanes of eche being given to other by the God of heven

Votum et Promissum Wilhelmi Ursini [illegible] Bohemiae — and erth, he vowed and promised. that he wold respect it in all points to the best of his skyll and power &c.

These and other such good [illegible] for the favor of God being [illegible] between us, I [illegible] that [illegible] his pallace & the court, & I to the water side, & so to the coach [illegible] for me & so came home. God be praysed.

Non tantum mihi multum gratificabitur, sed et consolabor plurimum.

Obsecro praeterea Dom. Vram, assidue pro me orare velit, ut confirmet hoc Deus quod operatus est in nobis: et dirigat mea consilia, opera, actiones, immo et cogitationes meas ad laudem et gloriam sanctissimi nominis sui, commodum multorum, et animae meae salutem. Neque desinat, pro amore suo paterno, quo me (ut spero) Dominatio Vra prosequitur, semper in omnibus quae pro honore Dei et commodo Vro a me fieri et debent et possunt, admonere et significare. Rogo, ut melius intelligat Dominatio Vra ea quae scripta sunt et consideret plus mentem meam quam verba. Quia mihi in usu non fuit a multis annis lingua latina: et nemini in hac re confidere volo.

I had translated Note this same Sonday morning, the same parcell of the former Action into Latin for the Lord Rosenberg, which he then sent for, even at the tyme, when I had finished it: And so I sent it him inclosed in a letter.

Maij 6. being Tuesday I entred my Jorney toward Valkenaw glass [illegible] and Leipsig Mart.

There are diverse Valkenaws. one by Eyre, or Elbogen, not far frō Carls bath, westward from Prage about 18 Bemish myles: an other in Bohem about 11 or 12 myles frō Prage, northward. a myle from Krebitz: and 2 myles from Leip. and a myle from Kamnitz. ~~[illegible]~~ ~~141~~ 142

Note.

Maij 11. Sonday — I cam to Leipsig, on Sonday the 11. of May. and cam [illegible] at [illegible] Peter Hans Swartz his house. lodged.

I found Laurence Overton (with much a do) an english merchant: to whom, my wife (the last yere) had shewed no little frendship to him self and Thomas his partener [illegible] in the tyme of his lying sik in our house. [illegible] at Prag my servant — He cam frō England at Michelmas: he confessed that Edmond had byn often tymes with him at his lodging: and that he did think that he wold come with the next [illegible] after his coming from England to come within 16 dayes.

I perceyved by his evident expresse sayings that he was but a colde frende unto me. and seemed half afrayed to deale eyther with me, or my man.

There, allso I found a certaine gentleman called Mr Francis [illegible]: the Lord [illegible] his Sonne of the North.

And for all other matters omitting the rest in these Records (those matters I meane to me which at Leipsig and in this Jorney happened notably, or I did my self) I can not omit, or passe [illegible] with out mentioning, the Copy of some letter which I wrote to the Honorable of England her Secretary the right honorable Syr Francis Walsingham. as followeth.

To the right honorable Sir Francis Walsingham knight, her Maties principall Secretary, my singular good frende and Patrone: [illegible] speede.

Right honorable Syr, Albeit I have (almost in vayn, sent a hundred myles from Prage to this Leipsig mart) hoping either to mete my servant there, with answer to my former letters, sent in November last to her Matie (when allso I wrote unto your honor and divers other) And so with spede from this Leipsig to have sent again most spedyly as occasion shold have served. And now, I fynde, neyther servant, neyther letter from him, neither word of mouth: yet all this notwithstanding: and what so ever the hindrance, or delay hereof, be (eyther the keping back of my letters from her Maty, or the manifold and importune, most weighty affayres publik hindring or delaying her Majesties most gratious discrete and wise resolution herein: Or what other occasion els hath and doth cause this long and wonderfull delay of answer receyving. All this notwithstanding, I thought it good, before I set up to my coach, to visit and most humbly to salute your honor very faithfully, dutifully, and sincerely, with great and the same good will, that my letter, some yeres sins written to yr honor (but then, a stumbling block unto your honor and others for the strangeness of the phrases therein) doth pretend. So it is, right honorable, that the mercifull providence of the highest, declared in his great and abundant graces upon me, and myne, is so wonderfull and mighty, that very few, unleast they be present witnesses, can beleve the same. Therfore, how hard they are to be beleved, there, where all my life and doings were construed to a contrary sense: and processe of death contrived contrived and devised against the Innocent, who can not easely judge? 143 ~~142~~

I am forced to be brief here, for these two yeres, allmost, (secretly) in doubt, in questions, in consultation Imperiall and Royall, by honorable espies following about me, and by other, discoursed apon, pryed and peered into. And at length, both the ~~[illegible]~~ Chief Romish preist, and Imperiall dignitie, are brought to that point, resolutely, that partly they are sorry of theyr so late reclayming theyr erroneous judgment against us and of us: and seke meanes, to deale with us, so, as we might favor both the one and the other: And partly to Rome is sent for as great Authority and power, as can be devised: and likewise, here, all other means and wayes contryved, how, by force, or for feare, they may make us glad to follow theyr humors. But all in vayne. For, force humayne we feare not: as, playnely, and often, I have to the Princes declared: And otherwise then in pure verity, and godlyness, we will not [illegible] any. (my words may seme very mervaylous in your honors ears: But mark the ende. We have had, and shall have to deale with no babes) I have full oft and uppon many of theyr requests and questions, referred my self to her Maties answer, they, in vayne, expected. Nuncius Apostolicus (Germanicus Mala Spina) after his yeres sute unto me, to be acquaynted with me, at length had from his answer, that he is gon to Rome, with a flea in his eare, that disquieteth him, and terrifyeth the whole stat Romish and Jesuiticall. Secretly they threaten us violent death: and openly they fawn uppon us. We know, the sting of Envy and the fury of the feare in Tyrannicall myndes, what desperate attempts, they have and do often, undertake. But the God of heven and erth, is our light, Leader and defender. To the worlds ende, his mercyes uppon us, will breade his prayses, honor and glory. These much very rhapsodically (yet faithfully) tanquam lectori sapienti, I thought good to committ to the safe and speedy conveyance of a yong merchant, here, called Laurence Overton: which yf it come to your honors hands, before my servant have his despatch, I shall or may by your honor be advertised.

Your honor is sufficiently from her Matie to deale and proceade with me, yf it so be thought good. But yf you make a cobweb Table case of it, (not [illegible], [illegible]; And my Commission from above, is not so large. Qui potest capere, capiat.

Syr, I trust, I shall have justice, for my house, Library, goods and revenues. &c. Do not you disdayn, neyther fear to heare father [illegible] your pore Innocent neighbor. [illegible] If you send unto me, Mr Thomas Diggs, in her Maties behalf, his faithfullness to her Majestie, and my well liking of the man, shall bring forth some pece of good service. But her Matie had byn better, to have spent or geven away in allmes, a million of gold, then to have lost some opportunities past. No humane reason can limit or determyne god his mervaylous meanes of proceading with us. He hath made of Saul (E.K.) a Paul. but, yet, now and then, visited with a pang of humane frayltie. The Almighty blesse her Matie both in this world, and eternally: and inspire your heart with some conceyving of his mercifull purposes, yet, yet, not utterly cut of from her Matie, to enjoye.

Benedictio Dei patris, et mera gratia & misericordia per unicum meritum IESV CHRISTI, illuminatio spiritus sancti, confirmet nos cum omnibus Christianis, qui magno cum Zelo, propter gloriam eius crucem, tribulationem, & persecutionem à rancido atque putido scorto Babylonico, in turbulentissimo huius mundi Oceano patimur, ut exemplo IESV CHRISTI qui est in patre, virtute & auxilio spiritus S. haec omnia perferre patienter valeamus ad nominis sui gloriam & animarum nostrarum salutem Amen.

Mirum fortassis videbitur Dominat. V. quod ignotus ad ignotos scribo, imputabitis tamen huius culpae partem, iustissimo dolori, quem ex rumore sparso & ad me delato propter D. V. concepi. mirari enim non satis possum, pertinax studium scorti istius Babylonici, quae nihil intentatum relinquit, nullum non movendo lapidem, quo hominibus vestrae nationis ipsius pijs & amantibus Dei non solummodo noceat sed & funditus perdere studeat.

Elapso enim undecima die huius mensis Legatus Pontificius libellum supplicatorium (ut vocant) Rom. Caes. Mtti. obtulit quo D. V. negromanciae & alijs artibus prohibitis insimulat, aliisque calumnijs graviter accusat, copias huius libelli habere potuissem, sed nimis sero hac de re sum certior factus, nec tutum et absque suspicione est quod illum ex Italico in latinum sermonem peterem. Quare cum haec omnia vana à D. V. ut hominibus Christianis & philosophis certo sciam, epistolam hanc cum levandi tum admonendi causa exarare libuit ut promptiores & paratiores D. V. ad respondendum offendant. peto itaque ut eo animi suscipiatis quo scripta est scilicet Christiano sincero & candido Valete neque Tabias vestris Christo commendo.

Illustrissime Princeps: mihi meisque fratribus a Magnifico Domino Schonbergo narrari potuit, quam Vram Celsitudinem prospere nostram firmam valetudinem: Dum ego vario, diverso, et intricato quodam itinere [illegible], per montes per valles, per sylvas densissimas, per apertos campos, et per undas profundas, et nobis (fere) impervias (semper tamen nos protegente Altissimo) tandem sani salvique [illegible] quam citius Celsitudini Vrae, redditi sumus. Vere, si ita perg[illegible] (habeat [illegible], per [illegible] experimenta satis accurata) illi quidem, qui pietate et sapientia, saltem vulgares debeant superare, [illegible]: Omni homines semel declararunt maxime invidos, maliciosos, perversos, sanguinis humani appetentes, superbos, innocentium carnifices, et prorsus in Christo calumniatores explicitos esse. At nisi Vrae Celsitudinis haberemus, eam, quam debemus, consideratione: Et nisi nos per Vestrae Celsitudinis praesidio quamvis armato (quasi) munitos existimaremus (praeter illud invincibile, Dei Opt. Ex aliquot iam hebdomadis, Invictissime et Gratiosissime Caesar, aures meas circumsonabant rumores varij, quasdam contra me, et socium meum, praeparari accusationes graves et odiosas: Vestraeque Sacrae Caesareae Maiestati offerendas fore, vel iam oblatas esse: Et praeterea Decretum in Consilio Imperatoriæ M^tis Secretiori, Pragæ XXIX Maij Anno LXXXVI.

And as our Spirituall Scholemaster, answered [illegible], [illegible] him Leprous. Therfore I committ this his doings to the judgment of God.

But also it is greatly to be remembred and noted that I under also [illegible] discoursed agayne with E.K. concerning the byrth of Christ that it could not be proved by the Scriptures, but that Christ came of the lyne of David, unles he was begotten of the actuall copulation of Joseph with Mary: and he sayd that, though it were the [illegible] of [illegible] that at the first and onely carnall copulation with Mary Christ was conceyved, therfore she was accounted (in manner) a Virgin. * according to this hir doctrine. Whereas the holy Gospell sayd, I trembled for the terror of his manifest and horrible [illegible] against the evident Scriptures, Virgo concipiet, et Virgo pariet, &c. and agaynst many other most playne and sufficient authorities both of Scripture, and also historicall of our Lady hir examination and the women that she was found a virgin &c. And also hir answer to the Angel, Quomodo fiet istud quoniam virum non cognosco? &c. Et integra conservans, fabricatus in [illegible] de Spiritu Sancto. &c. &c.

* Videlicet that is Miraculously that Virgo in primo cum viro congressu conceperit.

Note

Yt is evident hereby that this Pucci, is very [illegible] erroneous, lately in his heresye [illegible] [illegible], God be thanked [illegible] and also the former infidelitye, proceeded.

On Thursday, 17 July Fr. Pucci entred his voyage toward Prage with my letter to the Romayn Apostolicus, and with letters to John Carpio from E.K., and with my letters inclosed to the Lord Rosenberg. And we rode to [illegible] toward Castell: but that night we rode onely 3 myles, to Gotha. our horses [illegible] that we [illegible]: and therfore sending them back agayne the next day, we hyred a coach. &c.

Post Scripta

Remember that Fr. Pucci, the morning before his going away, requyred of us our letters testimoniall, to our frendes, of his fidelitie toward us [illegible]. what needeth that (sayd I) for as much as your doings are as well knowen to them, as to us: and your [illegible] conversation before them may serve abundantly. But our frendes, understanding, have warned us of you and have marvayled that we would suffer you any longer in our house and company [illegible] would never credit our letters as yet in this case. And would also condemne us of light judgment, or credulitie to judge this cause [illegible] &c.

But truly I observed in him, what a more proude presuming over us [illegible], [illegible] he was [illegible], for discovering us, so, as to [illegible].

Presumptio
1. He sayd, he had as great authoritie as we, to publish [illegible] our secrets, at his discretion.
2. That he ought to deale with us
3. That he understode our bokes of Actions, better then we
4. That he needed not our consent or counsayle to deale with the Pope his Nuncius. he did it of his duty generall, of Charitie &c.
5. He offred to order the Nuncius and the Emperor to the revoking of the Decree made against us: &c.

Note

Consider what this may import, that the Decree being [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] company, and of them that then did appertayne to me: and whose name he is not afrayd [illegible], and any other we not [illegible] to Jesus [illegible] in the holy booke of our Revelations as a principall fellow or worker of the same: [illegible] he first [illegible] to be assured of the danger of the Decree which banished us: unles he is assured of their good will, who have [illegible] [illegible] [illegible], or els some other [illegible] [illegible], to some other purpose &c. [illegible] he sayd he [illegible] to be assured of his [illegible] presumption: [illegible] but a probationer, not yet allowed of; and to be [illegible], as to be cut of.

* vide Scripta [illegible] [illegible] nomine &c.

F.P.

All these points I can not decyphre and judge, but referre them to the profound wisdome and just providence of God. Whereof and whom for he hath admitted him to be privy of our Actions, and so a witnesse to some purposes sufficient. All this be to the honor and glory of God. Amen.

Multa sunt flagella, praecepta mea negligentium: Multiplex furor hominibus proprijs confidentibus uiribus. Hi enim contemptores sanguinis et Regni mei fortitudinis, Gigantes facti sunt, ad omnem abominationem multiplicandam. Sed Ego sum qui Sum, qui posui in Patre Solium Verbumque ad faciendum in terris Judicium: qui in ultima tuba percutiam illos: Ut coacti recognoscant uias meas: et ad ouile proprium redeant. Franciscus Puccius praestantissimis ac Deo dilectis uiris, DD. Joanni Dee, et 161
Eduardo Kelleo generosis anglis, maioribus in Christo fratribus, et ipsis tanquam patribus colendis, precatur gratiam et pacem, à Deo Patre nostro, et à Dno Jesu Christo, amen.

Ex quo à uobis discessi, toto illo itinere, quod octo diebus confeci, uendito Lipsiae equo, haud parum uexatus fuit meus spiritus, dum animo mecum uoluerem, quot modis Satanas diuinum opus retardare, et nostram coniunctionem dirimere, adhibitis exterioribus et interioribus machinis et armis, tentauerit, et adhuc tentare non cesset. Neque enim possum, nisi ab eo, agnoscere afflatus illos diffidentiae, rumores ab inuidis hominibus sparsos, suspiciones nobis iniectas, absque certis indicijs, aduersus fidem non leuibus argumentis probatam, atque huiusmodi impedimenta et offendicula, quibus cursum nostrum impedire ac sanctam amicitiam, diuinis auspicijs, inter nos, coeptam, conuellere ac labefactare, malignus ille spiritus aggressus est. Itaque, in illa lucta, ne ullo modo manus illi darem aut fatiscerem, decreui me, magis ac magis, munire certa fide in Deum, ac spe promissionum eius, quas illum secuturum non dubito: tum precibus ardentioribus magis instare, apud summum patrem, ut nos quamprimum donare uelit illo spiritu, quo nostri humeri, montibus ferendis, ut ille inquit, pares euadent; ad hoc austeriorem uitam nec mensas lautas amicorum adire, sed panem doloris solus comedere decreui, ne sim melior quàm uos, qui tantopere affligimini: ut benignissimus Dominus, quamprimum, uos in integrum restituat, atque ad solita colloquia, piaque exercitia nos una reuocet, et euentu consentaneo suis sanctissimis [illegible] singulos nostrum exhilaret. Hanc uiam sequenti Dominus mihi spem facit fore, ut facilius meam fidem probem, et multas tentationes uitem, quae apud huius mundi homines, [illegible] inuadunt. Ideo, nisi necessitate urgente, aut communibus negocijs, familiaritatem [illegible] coniectum cum aulicis fugio, et me hoc modo minus ineptum precibus sentio, meamque uitam in dies emendare conor, ne uidear omnino indignus ea schola, in qua Dns me erudit: nec interim, cum publicano illo, precari obliuiscor, ut Deus propitius sit mihi peccatori. me uestris uotis et supplicationibus, iuuabitis, ut uocationi meae respondeam, et [illegible] at consolationi esse possim; et benignissimus ille pater propediem hoc aduerso [illegible] magis expeditum curabit, ac nos maiori, quam unquam antea, iucunditate recreabit. Quod uero ad nostra negocia attinet, perueni huc die 24 July, sub uesperam ac statim Dnum Nuncium, cui uestras tradidi, quas laeto uultu accipere uisus est: sed colloquium ocium, cum, parata coena, iam discumbere uellet. In posteriorem diem igitur reiectus, [illegible] Carpionem me conferebam, cum didici eum ad uos missum, quatriduo ante, hinc discessisse [illegible] admodum cum non esse mihi obuiam factum, tum ratione uestrarum tum mearum literarum, quoniam fasciculum quendam ad me quoque ferebat. Sed, quod maxime me torquebat, erat cura de literis Ill.mi Dni Rosembergij, quas sciebam inclusas Dni Carpionis literis, nec eas aperire, aut alij reddere audebam, cum diserte esset scriptum illud, ad manus proprias. Dum itaque occasionem quaero et expecto, ea sese obtulit, quam mox audietis. Reuersus sequenti die ad Ill.mum D. Nuncium, inuenio apud illum Jesuitam Italum, qui mihi fuit à confessionibus: blande ab ambobus accipior, sedere iubeor, à Jesuita nomine candoris et ingenuitatis, non parum laudor: Tum lepide moneor ab Ill.mo D. Nuncio, ut ipsi adsim, in conuertendo Jesuita illo (is enim erat qui cum ipso expostulauerat, quod nimis facile mihi dedisset: testimonia triumphantis ecclesiae non subijci iudicio militantis). Respondeo me fecisse quod in me erat, ut docerem eum praeferre coelum terrae, ac tribunal superius inferiori; sed cum id mihi minime successisset, eius esse, sua doctrina et authoritate, hominem de sententia illa deijcere. Ill.s D. Nuncius haud grauate, nostram sententiam, hac in parte, probat, et exemplis confirmat, atque ita concludit, ut statuat certitudinem uidentis et audientis Dominum, aut eius angelum, non pendere a probatione ecclesiastica, neque ab illo esse rationem repetendam suae reuelationis, dum nihil publici muneris exercere audet: sed si incipiat palam profiteri, se à Deo doctum et missum, ita ut non ipsius solum, sed aliorum quoque, intersit, scire quo spiritu agatur, tunc ecclesiasticorum munus esse illius spiritum examinare et probare, neque ipsum iure posse examen hoc detrectare, licet suas reuelationes eis subijcere [illegible] teneatur. Nam si ordinaria authoritas eum admiserit bene habebit, nihilque turbarum excitabitur: sin per iniuriam aut inscitiam aliquam, aut per aliam huiuscemodi caussam, reijcietur, suum erit appellare superiorem Dominum, qui ipsum misit, quo suum seruum et legatum defendat, aut ordinario iudice commonefacto, aut alia ratione; quod probabat decreto Lateranensis concilij, cuius mentionem facit in suis literis; ac praeterea historia S. Francisci, qui primum expulsus, ab Innocentio pontifice, mox reuocatus fuit; cum per quietem, apparuisset pontifici pannosus ille, qui Lateranense templum, suis humeris, fulciret. Addebat praeterea uiros Dei non esse solitos deterreri, una aut altera repulsa, et hoc repellendi modo, dicebat praesules aliquando usos esse, ut probarent spiritum et constantiam eorum, qui res nouas magnasque proponerent. Ego uero, inquam, ut haec ita se haberent, uos hactenus publicum munus exercere non tentasse, et intra priuatos parietes, summa [illegible] uos continuisse. Tum ille, longiori ambitu uerborum, sic de uobis disseruit, ut ex uestris uerbis ad Serenissimum Poloniae Regem, ad inuictissimum Caesarem, et ad Illustriss. Legatum Hispanicum, iam constare [illegible] uos aliquid amplius quam priuatum moliri. Ac summo pontifici, sedenti in specula super totam [illegible] rempub. potuisse merito suspectas esse uestras personas, hoc modo principum animos, et interiores recessus scrutantes: idque ratione uestrae Reginae, infensissimae apostolicae sedi, et cum ipso turca [illegible] pirantis, nec non spiritus familiares habentis; ac praeterea ratione uestrae summae peritiae, in artibus et scientijs reconditis, quibus facile plebi et imperitis imponi potest. Cum enim sitis magni astrologi, dicebat ille, et facile uobis sit habere geneses principum, nec non magicas artes calleatis, haud difficulter possetis, bonorum angelorum nomine, ea proponere, quae à spiritu ecclesiae hoste manarent. Ideo summum pontificem, cui duo illi principes sunt maxime obseruandi, ut pote qui inter haereticos uiuant et regnent, prudenter fecisse, qui iusserit, ut in uestros mores et doctrinam inquireretur. Accidisse autem praeter eius postulatum et uoluntatem, ut, indicta caussa, expelleremini. Se uero uicem uestram dolere, et paratum esse ad curandum, ut uos iustificare possitis, idque sibi esse in uotis, non semel, asseruit. Quapropter hortatus est me, ut ad Ill.mum D. Rosembergium contenderem, atque ipsius bonam propensionem, erga uos, ei significarem; nam ille à Summo pontifice facile impetrabit, ut caussa uestra hic cognoscatur, et si ille uobis fauerit, ut hactenus facit, se quoque adfuturum uobis, omnibus officijs, ac primum fore, qui se uestris genibus obuoluat, si tales eritis, quales uos nonnulli praedicant. Ego igitur recta ad Ill.mum D. Rosembergium. Sed quater redeundum mihi fuit, antequam admitterer. Die 27 tandem admissus, exposui meum studium, erga uos resque uestras, ac quomodo Ill.s D. Nuncius affectus erga uos esset, ac tandem oraui ut non desereret patrocinium et defensionem illam, quam suscepisset peregrinorum sapientissimorum, qui à Caesare minus bene informato ad Caesarem melius informatum prouocarent ac suam innocentiam, Deo et hominibus, probatam cuperent. Ille humaniter respondit. Vos non admodum sibi notos esse se bis cum Seniore, semel tantum cum iuniore collocutum, iudicasse uos doctos et pios, et praeclaris donis instructos: [illegible] mare uobis hoc accidisse mala aliqua relatione, cui incommodo aures principum sunt obnoxiae: [illegible] aequo animo ferre: non se poenitere quod uobis fauerit, et si fieret quod potissimum, à se, peteretis daturum operam, ut uestris uobis responderetur. Tunc mihi uisum est non nulla dicere de optima spe, quam de ipso concepissetis, et quomodo me non dimiseratis sine literis ad illum: sed erant inclusae fasciculo D. Carpionis, quam statim protuli, atque eo instante, ac respondente D. Carpionem non aegre laturum si ipsi darem, tradidi fasciculum qui dixit se per ocium lecturum, ac, sequenti die, mihi responsurum. Discedo igitur ab illo ad Ill.mum D. Nuncium, atque, ocium nactus, tum per me, tum per Ill.mum Legatum Florentinum, pluribus cum eo agere instituo, de [illegible] expono quantopere laboraueritis, ut considerare possetis, apud catholica templa, et quam inhumane ratione huius praeiudicij Caesarei, tractaremini: doceo quam sordido et angusto loco uestras fam[illegible] ut uestram supellectilem et libros explicare nequiueritis: moneo, ut Dni Dee iam grauis natu [illegible] et nihil tale hactenus passi, uicem doleat, eius aerumnas non tanquam simplicis hominis considerandas esse [illegible] sexagenarius, quatuor tenellis suauissimisque liberis (quorum maior septimum annum uix excesserit) [illegible] dilectissimam adiunctus, longe grauius affligatur, ratione uxoris suae lectissimae foeminae, et pignorum [illegible] quam ostendo quanto offendiculo hoc futurum sit catholicis Anglis ac caeteris, et quanta ansa praebeatur haereticis in ecclesiasticum ordinem: declaro periculum imminens ordini illi, si forte Deus facultatibus uestris ad eorum inimicos armari permitteret: Demonstro non alias et [illegible] haereticos catholicos [illegible] ac denique declaro, quam absurdum sit uos indicta caussa condemnari, si id meriti sitis [illegible] non meriti sitis quicquam tale: absurdissimum uero, cum à catholica ecclesia honor potius [illegible] At cum non petatis nisi ut uobis uos purgare liceat nihil magis consentaneum rationi excogitari [illegible] errorem admissum emendari, atque hoc negocium bene dirigi et redintegrari posse. Wensday Augusti 15 [1584] mane horam circiter 9ª

Δ — We thanked God for his safe bringing us hither, to the place appoynted by him. We desyred him to direct us, as the rest of our Action requireth: and thirdly for the boke with silver leaves, to be prepared, we required instructions as we were promised.

Anon after E K his loking into the stone he sayd

E K — I see a garland of white roses, round about the stones border they be rose buds well opened, but not full.

Δ — The great mercies of God be uppon us: and we beseche him to encrease our faith in him according to his well liking.

E K — Amen.

E K — But while I consider them better, they seme rather to be white Lillies.

Δ — The eternall God of his infinite mercyes wipe away our blak synns and make us pure and whiter then snow.

72 angels. E K — They seme to be 72 in number: alternatim seming with their heds to encline one toward me, and an other toward you. They seme allso to move circularly, toward the East, a very slow motion.

E K — In the middest of this Circle appeareth a little fyre, very like unto melting sulphur, from which to every of the forsayd Lillies is a beame extended: which beame toward the ende is of a more whitish fyry colour then next the centre.

A voyce — A voyce shooting out commeth from the Lillies saying Holy, Holy, Holy, and they became all on fyre, and tumbled in that fyre. After which they appeared agayn distinctly as before. And the fire stode in the Center still, and the emanation of the beames cam from it still to the forsayd Lillies.

E K — I heare a sownd as though it were of waters in great abundance powred or running down in the cliffs of great rocks and mountaynes with a mervaylous noyse; I here it as a far of: and through the stone. or as it were of a thousand water milles going togither.

A voyce — Est: et quo modo est?

an other voyce semeth to speak over — Mala et in summo, et mensuratum est.

E K — I heare a cruel roring as if it wer out of a cloude over our hed: not perfectly like a thunder.

an other voyce — The seale is broken an other — viola sexta. — Powre out the sixth viol, that the erth may know her self.

These are the dayes of wo, that are spoken of.

E K —

E K — Now I see beyond like a fornace mowth, as big as fowr or five gates of a City, as if it wer a quarter of a mile of: in it an horrible smother of smoke coming out of it, and by it, a great lake of pitch, and it bubbleth or simpreth as water doth when it beginneth to seeth.

E K — There standeth by the pit, a white man, in a white garment tucked up: his face is mervaylous fayre.

The white man — A Frende [he sayth, very lowd]

E K — Now there cometh out a thing like a lyon in the hinder partes, and his former part hath many feet of divers fashions, & upon one necke he hath like feathers on his neck: his heds are 7 Three on one side, and three on the other, and one in the middle which is longer then the rest, and loketh backward to his tayleward.

The white man giveth him a bluddy sword, and he taketh it in his forefote; and the white man tyeth this Monster his 4 leggs with a chayn, that he can not go but as one fettred.

Now he giveth this monster a great hammer with a seale at the ende, where the hammer striketh. And the other ende is like an hatchet.

A Horrible and a terrible beast. [with a lowd voyce the white man sayd so.]

A voyce out of the little fyre — Seale him for two yeres of the seven for so long is his power.

The white man — The starrs with the erth, even to the third part, are given unto the. The fourth part thow shalt leave untouched.

E K — He (x The white man) taketh this hammer and striketh him in the forhed of that hed which lyeth in the myddle. it lyeth down backward toward his tayle.

E K — Now all this vision is vanished away. The stone is cleare.

E K — Now Madimi appeareth, and she semeth to be bigger then she was.

Mad — The blessing of God the father, the sonn, and (in the father and the sonn) of the holy Ghost, in power and comfort rest upon you, take hold of you and dwell within you: that you may be apt to receive the comfort of my childishnes and the reward of such innocents, as my voyce beareth witnes of. (Madimi her childish appearing) you both the spirit of God salute you, which allwayes comforteth the iust: and is the strength the strength and stay of such as are elected: of whom it is sayd, Mittam illis Angelum in adiutorium.

Δ — Are you Madimi (in the name of Jesus:) that I may so note of you.

Mad — I am Madimi and of that order, wherin the wonders of God are wrought with power with you, as my wordes are: with my self, as my Creation is. (Madimi est ex ordine Potestatum.)

Lo, as I have often promised you, so in the tyme of your necessity, and grief I visit you (vide 26 Junii)

Δ — Thanks be to the highest.

Mad — Not as the frends of the world do but as a comforting spirit exalting the servants of God, and cherishing them with celestiall fode: But my mother is at hand which openeth unto the, the will of God (Mater Madimi)

Beleve me, many are the woes of the world and great are the sorrows that are to come for the Lord prepareth his raynbow, and the witnesses of his covenant and will appere in the hevens to finish all things: and the tyme is not long.

Blessed are those that beleve: for faith shall flee from the erth and her dwelling places shall be in caves and unknown mountaynes: and in parte of the erth which the Lord hath kept secret for such as shall triumph: and reioyce in the iudgment to come. (ffaith shall hardly be found on the earth.)

1 Parturientes — Wo be to women great with childe for they shall bring forth monsters.

2 Reges — Wo be unto the kings of the erth for they shall be beaten in a morter.

3 Se pingentes & superbi — Wo be unto such as paynt themselves and are like unto the Prince of pride: for they shall drink the blud of their neighbours and of their own children.

4 falsi Doctrinatores — Wo be unto the fals preachers: yea seven woes be unto them: for they are the teeth of the beast. He that hath eares let him heare

5 virgines — Wo be unto the virgins of the erth for they shall disdayn their vir= virginity: and they shall become concubynes for Sathan, and despise the God of righteousnes.

6 Mercatores — Wo be unto the merchants of the erth: for they are become abhominable. Behold they are become the sores of the erth and the dayntie meat of kings. But they are folish yea they shall fall into the pit that they have digged for others.

L. viri — Wo be unto the boyes of the erth, for they are corrupted: and are become a wasting stok and sworeland to the conscience.

Madimi her mother — Stay a season, for my mother commeth.

Δ — We red over the premisses, and so conferred of the verity and waight of them. And all this while Madimi stode still, as E K told me.

But by cause we were willed to stay, I moved no question, but wished to have some understanding how my wife and children at Cracovia did: and hereupon Madimi sayd as followeth.

Mad — Here what I say unto the: The king of darknes whetteth his teeth agaynst the, and rampeth with great rage to overwhelme the world upon the: and he seketh the destruction of this howshold and thereby thy overthrow: The life of thy children, yea he tempteth thy wife with dispayre, and to be violent unto her self. (my wife)

Δ — why, with dispayre?

Mad — But his lippes are sealed, and his claws made dull that what he wold bite he cannot: and where he scratcheth the blud followeth not.

Madimi my frends my wife — But here what thy frende sayeth unto the.

Both in her self, and by him that moveth her to speake, as thow art the servant of the God of victory, so shalt thow triumph in the God of Strength fyrst and conquer. (Δ Madzilodarp)

Δ This name of God is in the 16 principall Call: as in the English doth appere the 5 day of July: It beginneth his finall-stil Salman brilt &c. — God his most mercifull care over Δ his wife, children, family and frends &c.

Thy wife, thy children, thy servants, and more then that such as favor the, even the rubbings of thy howse, are under the protection and defence of such as are of power, agaynst whom neither the rage of such as raging, neither the fury of adversity, though it hath the help of Sathan, can prevayle. for why, God hath care over the: But thy faith is somwhat lower. Take hede of of Sathan: he will ioyn himself unto the: But beware of him. for Syn kepeth bak the power of God, which is often tymes deferred, for an other season, yea, even for the wickednes of one Sowle. (Sathan will ioyn himself unto Δ. The power of God deferred for sin.)

A. L. — I ask, I loke for, but I see not. Behold, I wrast my eyes after him and can not fynde him: Peradventure, he hath hid himself behind some mountayn: or is crept into a cave: for he appereth not.

Δ — I beseche you, what is the cause therof? ys he not gon from Cracovia?

Mad — Syn is the greatest mountayn; and he venoseth when he pleaseth himself, and in the fury of his flesh crepeth into a Cave from us. (Syn is a mountayn to hide man from the sight of God &c.)

At one instant Madimi seeth all the world over. — Lo, I loke for him, and can not see him, yet I see all the world over. It is a signe that God is not with him.

Δ — I beseche you, is he not yet gon from Cracovia yet?

Mad — I tell the, I see him not, I can say nothing of him.

Δ — Lord, our coming hither, was to come with him.

Mad — Therfore I brought the hither that thow shuldst not tarry with him. Knowest thow not that God is mervailous in his works? hast thow not hard of his secret Judgments? yf thow hast, thynk he hath care over the, for allso thy wife and children, and the rest, thy howshold, must be moved hither. (I am not to tarry with A. L. — My wife children and howshold hither to be moved.)

Δ — When, I beseche you?

Mad — Let that be my charge, to answer the.

E K — Now here is a litle fire, like the same it was before, but it hath no beames from it, as before it had.

Mad — Are, ether, est mater mea [E K pointing to the fire]

Mater Madimi

E K — she falleth down on her face prostrate

E K — Now she riseth, and this fyre entreth into her mouth. she is waxen of higher stature then she was: she hath now three faces.

Δ — Now it is the vertue of the Trinitie in her so represented.

Mad — I; and I have a few things to say: And I say

E K — I here a mervailous noise, as of many mountayns falling.

Mad — Arise, and beleve.

The tyme is come, that, of the folish, I will make wise: and of such as are sinfull men, my annoynted:

Yf they enclyne their eares unto my voyce

Yf. Note this condition.

E K — The noyse is mervaylous: and which of the mowthes doth speak, I cannot discerne.

Mad — First, thow shalt write unto Rodulphus, as I shall enforme the:

Rodulphus to gar[nish] his Praga.

Then, shalt thow go unto hym, saying, That the Angel of the Lord hath appered unto the [E K — great noyse still]

Mad — and rebuketh him, for his synnes.

E K — I never hard any such noyse: it is as if half the world were rushing down an hill.

Mad — Yf he heare the, Then say unto him, he shall triumph.

Feare the not + I say that the Lord, the god that made heven and erth, (under whom he breatheth, and hath his spirit,) putteth his fote against his brest.

+ yf he here the not. Δ I suspect this was left unwritten and will throw him hedling from his seate.

E K — Ther cam great sudden flashes of fyre out of her and so out of the stone, and suddenly she was in her former shape agayn.

Mad — Where this voyce entreth, no man hath to saye.

For as it is the beginnyng, so is it likewise the ende.

Therefore enquire not any more now but cease: for this is the mervaylous beginnyng of this last tyme

The mervailous beginnyng of this last tyme.

Precibus finitis, I propounded as concerning the boke to be prepared for the Angelicall writing: or Mapsama delt about that point, therfore I required at God his hands the ministerie of Mapsama herein, if it were his will.

E K — here is Madimi.

Δ Blessed be the God of heven and erth who regardeth the sincere intention of his sely ones.

So may it be sayd of you, which were slak in sowing and therfore have let passe the benefit of tyme wherin your sede might have multiplyed.

Δ — Precibus fusis ad Deum ex more nro

1. I propounded, if the letter written to Rudolphus were as it shold be.

2 — Secondly bycause we were willed to invite the good Angels for the boke writyng, I asked how we shold invite them.

3 — As concernyng our wyves and my family sending for I required when that shold be done. [quickly apparition was made

E K — Here is Uriel.

Δ — Welcom be the light of the highest.

Uriel — Wo be unto the world: for her light is taken away

Wo, wo, be unto man, for the eye of light hath forsaken him.

Wo, wo, be to the understanding of man: for it is led out with a threefold spirit, the spirit of errour and ignorance,

And wo be to such as beleve not the glorious and supereminent light of this testimonie, for they are not written with life: neither shall their portion be with the living

This Testimonie

Thus sayth he that is a meane stone, (which sitteth betwene the seat of light and darknes)

Whose wings are great and more then mighty, wherewith he gathereth the sterrs: and the powres that hang upon the firmament of the first and lesser light placing them and powring them in the spirit of truth and through his own powr, the powr of the word, wherby all things are, and are comprehended in that he is aswell in the hevens of glory, chastity, and message, as allso in places unknown to us

Hevens of glory chastity Angels

Behold, those that dig into nature with dull mattoks and dull spades, are such, as of other congeled substance can imagine but not iudge are folish and of the world: whose imaginations are become the sythons of vanity, and the vessels of him which is the father of ignorance

Wo be unto them, for their disputations and doctrines are dogmas and dull

Wo wo unto them, for they are such as please themselves, and are become fathers to many lewd Children. Of whom it is written

They are become stiffnekked and proud and the followers of their father.

Therfore

Therfore have I gathered my self together, and am hidden from them, bycause they are proude and haters of Innocency.

These teach not unto you a doctrine: neither are you partakers of their bankets: for the spirit of god is playne, pure and most perfect.

These breathe not uppon you: neither are the ornaments of yor garlands enterlaced by these, but by him are you lifted up that is the god of iustice, and the discloser of his own secrets: and the hedlong drawer of things to an ende

Therfore, Beleve and dreame not with the world: for the world shall perish and all her adherents and shall be cast into the pit of wo everlasting.

Read the scriptures and understand them, but wrest them not with the wicked.

Loke into the simplicity, and nakednes of god his promisses.

Sow the Innocency of some that receyved them: and let not the wickednes of those that the Lord made vertuous, go out of your remembrance.

But so triumpheth true powre, so gathereth he himself togither to discomfort the servant.

Of the lightest he maketh the heviest.

and of the weakest the strongest

and in the weakest vessels worketh he his mercy

And why: Behold, least the world in her proud imaginations, in the ornaments of her werks, and most precious witts shold brag, saying, I can compare with the Lord.

Here my voyce for it is of God.

The world bryngeth furth no good thing, neither are the doings of man accepted, but where the spirit of humility dwelleth.

Out of the depth of darknes hath god made light, and Lo the light is great, and the darknes comprehendeth it not.

So in the weakest will he be exalted.

Uriel — The spirit that speaketh unto you, is he that hath a towre to build, a strong towr and a mighty: yea such an one as hath not byn from the beginnyng: no not from the beginnyng.

Great is the foundation thereof: for it is of Iern.

but greater are her walls: for they are of diamond

Most great are the turrets: for they are the 7. hede that behold iudge and gather, and they are made of Truth: the spirit of Eternitie

Unto the laying of every stone are you made privie: and for this Towre are you provided.

Δ Pater 1 For Lo the first hath appered and shewed himself mightily

Filius 2 And the second hath redemed and overcome Sathan

Spus sanctus 3 And Lo the third approcheth and shall visibly shew the powr of God to all Nations.

For now cometh the desolation of the world, and the fall of her pride.

Desolatio de qua Propheta locutus est

And this is the last rod that measureth and shall be broken: for it is hard

Now will I here you from under the Alter

* Apocalypsis Cap. 6.

Now will I revenge the blud of your brethern.

O you ignorant and of weak faith know you not the tymes that are to come.

O you that spit out the meat of comfort: yea when it is put lovyngly into your mowthes. Why are you sorrowfull: why, reioyce you not that the god of Justice is girded, and hath whetted his sword uppon a thousand thousand mountaynes of fyre.

Why laugh you not the world to skorn and deride her fornication.

Wepe not agen her for she is accursed. Neither wonder at her, for she will be more wonderfull.

You have receyved this doctrine in Chambers and in secret places But it shall stand in the great City, and uppon 7 hills: and shall establish her self in truth. Purify the walls, and swepe out the dust and copwebs (the work of the spiders) that it may be cast into the river, and brought into remembrance.

yea it shall sit in Josaphat in Judgment against the wicked: and shall become a fire engendred in the cave of thunders

Therfore when you are commanded lift up your hedes, and feare not: for whome the hevens shall fight.

But in your selves be patient: and continue to the ende that your Crowns may exede the garlands of the erth.

Thus sayeth the Lord, Lo I have promised the that my Angell shall shall visit the: and so it shall be.

But yf I now, visit the, Thus will the world say hereafter: Lo he hath fayned a doctrine for himself Lo he excelleth in subtilty.

When I gave my laws, they were not secret: neither was the place unsanctified.

Note a Delay of their visitation

When the Cumforter cometh, girdeth himself against the son of wickednes, Then must you be known and seen unto the erth.

Antichristi Exergio per spiritu sancto futura

But I will give the, the Choyse

Chuse therfore whether thow wilt banket now (bycause I have promised the) or tary till I see the tyme more convenient

An Election or Choyse

For, Lo, yf Rodolph harken unto my voyce, he shall wonder and reioyce with the, and I will exalt him above the kings of the erth.

I received by the hands of my Servant Samuell Story, a parcell of Dr Dee's Manuscripts, all written with his owne hand; vizt: his Conferences with Angells, wch first began the 22th of Dec: an: 1581. & continued to the end of May an: 1583. where the printed Booke of the remaining Conferences (published by Dr Casaubon) begins, & are bound up in this Volume.

Beside these, the Booke intituled, The 48 Claves Angelicæ, also Liber Scientiæ Terrestris Auxilij & Victoriæ (These two being those very individuall Books, wch the Angells comanded to be †Burnt, & after ‡restored by them as appeares by the printed Relation of Dr Dee's Actions with Spirits pag: 418. & 419.) The Booke intituled De Heptarchia Mystica Collectaneorum Lib: primus, and a Booke of Invocations or Calls, begining with the Squares filled with Letters, about the Black Cross. These 4 Books I have bound up in another volume.

The 5t of Sept: following Mr Wale (having heard of my returne to Towne) came to my Office in the Excise Office in Broadstreete, & told me he was content to exchange all the foresaid Books, for one of myne, vizt. The Institution Lawes & Ceremonies of the most Noble Order of the Garter, to this I agreed, and provided one, wch I sent him fairly bound, & gilt on the Back.

As a further Testimony of the sence of Mr Wale's kindnes; shortly after his death, I sent for his Son, & bestowed on him one of my Deputies places in the Excise, with an allowance of 40li p Annum.

On the 10th of the sd Sept: Mr Wale came thither to me againe, & brought his wife with him, from her I received the following account of the preservation of these Books, even till they came to my hands, vizt: That her former Husband was one Mr Jones a Confectioner, who formerly dwelt at the Plow in Lumbardstreet London, & who, shortly after they were married, tooke her with him into Adle Streete among the Joyners, to buy some Houshold stuff, where (at the Corner house) they saw a Chest of Cedar wood, about a yard & halfe long, whose Lock & Hinges, being of extraordinary make & work, invited them to buy it. The Master of the shop told them it had ben parcell of the Goods of Mr John Woodall Chirurgeon (father to Mr Tho: Woodall late Serjeant Chirurgeon to his now Matie King Charles the 2d: my intimate friend) and tis very probable he bought it after Dr Dee's death, when his goods were exposed to Sale.

Twenty yeares after this (& about 4 yeares before the fatall Fire of London) she & her sd husband occasionally removing this Chest out of its usuall place, thought they heard some loose thing rattle in it, toward the right hand end, under the Box or Till thereof, & by shaking it, were fully satisfied it was so: Hereupon her Husband thrust a peece of Iron into a small Crevice at the bottome of the Chest, & thereupon appeared a private drawer wch being drawne out, therein were found divers Books in Manuscript, & Papers, together with a litle Box, & therein a Chaplet of Olive Beades, & a Crosse of the same wood, hanging at the end of them.

They made no great matter of these Books &c. because they understood them not, wch occasioned their Servant Maide to wast about one halfe of them under Pyes & other like uses, wch when discovered, they kept the rest more safe.

About two yeares after the discovery of these Books, Mr Jones died, & when the fire of London hapned, though the Chest perished in the Flames, because not easily to be removed, yet the Books were taken out & carried with the rest of Mrs Jones her goods into Moorfields, & being brought safe back, she tooke care to preserve them; and after marrying with the foresd Mr Wale, he came to the knowledge of them, & thereupon, with her consent, sent them to me, as I have before set downe.

ad perpetuam rei memoriam. Ao. 1582 :

O God Almighty, thow knowest, that my Director, and witnes therein, That I have from my youth up, desyred & prayed unto thee for pure & sownd wisdome and understanding of some of thy truthes naturall and artificiall: such, as by which, thy wisdome, goodnes & powre bestowed in the frame of the world might be browght, in some bowntifull measure under the Talent of my Capacitie, to thy honor & glory, & the benefit of thy Servants, my brethren & Sisters, in & by thy Christ our Saviour.
And for as much as, many yeres, in many places, far & nere, in many bokes, & sundry languages, I have sowght & studyed; and with sundry men conferred, and with my own reasonable discourse labored, wherby to fynde or get some yncling, glymse, or beame of such the foresayd radicall truthes: But, (to be brief) after all my foresayd endevor
I could fynde no other way, to such true wisdome attayning, but by thy Extraordinary gift: and by no vulgar Schole doctrine, or humane Invention: And seeing, I have red in thy bokes, & records, how Enoch enioyed thy favor and conversation, with Moyses thow wast familier: And also that to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, Josua, Gedeon, Esdras, Daniel, Tobias, and sundry other, thy good Angels were sent, by thy disposition, to instruct them, informe them, help them, yea in worldly and domesticall affaires, yea and sometimes to satisfy their desyres, doutes & questions of thy Secrets:
And furdermore Considering, the Shew stone, which the high preists did use, by thy owne ordering: wherein they had lights and Judgments in their great doutes: and considering also that thow (O God) didst not refuse to instruct thy prophets, (then, called Seers) to give true answers to common people of things Oeconomicall, as Samuel, for Saul, seeking for his fathers asses being gon astray: and of other things vulgar true predictions, whereby to wyn credit unto the waighty affayres: And thinking with my self, the lack of thy wisdome to me, to be of more importance, then the value of an Asse or two, could be to Cis, (Saul his father): And remembring what good counsayle thy Apostle James giveth, saying, Si quis autem vestrum indiget Sapientia, postulet a Deo &c. And that Salomon the wise, did so, even immediately by thy self, attayne to his wonderfull wisdome: Therefore, seeing I was sufficiently taught and confirmed, that this wisdome could not be come by at mans hand or by humane powre, but only from thee (O God) mediately or immediately And having allwayes a great regard & care to beware of the filthy abuse of such as willingly and wittingly, did invocate & consult (in divers sorts) Spirituall creatures of the damned sort: angels of darknes, forgers & patrons of lies & untruths: I did fly unto thee by hearty prayer, full oft, & in sundry manners: sometymes crying unto thee, Mitte lucem tuam et veritatem tuam, quae me ducant &c. sometymes tuam in corde meo fuisse. And having perceyved by sundry [illegible] that thow hadst a spirituall [illegible] gave unto thy light, and truth, by thy holy and true ministers Angelicall and Spirituall: and at length, hearing of one (a master of Arts, a preacher of thy word admitted) accounted as a good Seer, and Skryer of Spirituall apparitions, in Chrystalline receptacles, or in open ayre, by his practise, procured: and trusting to frame him, by my ernest and faythfull prayers unto thee (my God) to some my help in my foresayd Studies: Tyll, thow (o hevenly father) wouldest by thy inscrutable providence, send me some ~~other~~ apter man or means thereto. Thereuppon, having him and using him, I found great diversity between his spirituall [illegible] and [illegible] of practise, and my zealous, sincere, devout, and faythfull prayer unto thee onely. And therefore often and sharply reproved him ~~[illegible]~~ to thee ward; and reproved both him, and his ministers, with no small danger, but that thow (in manner unheard of) didst protect me [illegible] unto my desire, and comfort, in conflicts most terrible: as thow best knowest o God, and I noted [illegible] the miracles, and the words of the kingly prophet [illegible] testimony:

Castrametatur Angelus Domini, in circuitu timentium eum.

And out of Roger Bacon his boke written De mirabili potestate Artis et Naturae, I ~~[illegible]~~ (written by way against the cryptical Diabolicall callers) I noted unto him this sentence: Facilius (sive compendiosius) a* Deo impetrandum foret, vel a bonis spiritibus, quicquid bonum utile reputare. So saying my contempt of the premisses [illegible] fellow, as though all were [illegible] ô our true and almighty God. And albeit thy good Spirituall creatures neither had delight in this man, neither would so playnly (as [illegible]) give me any answers or informations by him, that he might [illegible] the apte thereof: So was he at length very unwilling to [illegible] his help [illegible] for his naughtyness, and [illegible] the mysteries of thy [illegible] truthes understanding [illegible] the onely thing that I desired, through thy [illegible] grace, o our most merciful God. Therefore, as well for a Memoriall answerable to the premisses, as for the better warrant of my doings thereupon to be made accordingly hereafter (taking all [illegible] the infinite meanes, and [illegible] all providence,) I have thought it not impertinent, to note down, even in this place one of the last Actions, which I had with the foresayd person: wherein I made ernest and faythfull petition unto thee (o the true and Almighty God) for sending, unto my comfort and direction, (yf it were thy blessed will,) thy holy and mighty Angel Anael: of whome and all the Heavenly Host, be all prayse, honor and thanks, as unto thy divine majestie, [illegible] world without ende. Amen. Amen. Amen.

ANAEL

Δ After my fervent prayers made to God, for his mercifull comfort and instruction, through the ministery of his holy and mighty Angel, named Anael (yf it were his divine pleasure) I willed, the Skryer (named Saul) to loke into my great Chrystalline Globe, yf God had sent his holy Angel Anael, or no. And Saul loking into my foresayd Stone (or Chrystall Globe) for to espie Anael, he saw there one, whome he answered to that name. But being earnestly requested of me to tell the Truthe yf his name were Anael, An other did appere very bewtifull, with apparell yellow glittering, like gold. and his hed had beames like star beams, blasing and spredding from it; his eyes fyrie. He wrote in the stone very much ~~hebrue~~ in hebrue letters, and the letters seemed all transparent gold. which, Saul was not able eyther presently to reade, that I might write after his voyce, neyther to imitate the letters in short tyme.

Δ. Note: An illuding intruder, even at the first, putting him self, as an Angel of light. Take hede allwayes of [illegible]

A bright star did go up and down by him.

There appeared allso a white* dog, with a long hed.

* There appeared a great number of dead mens skulls, like [illegible]

And many other visions appeared, with this second: the first being voyded quite away. Thereuppon I sayd, as followeth

Δ — In nomine Jesu Christi, Quis tu es? — he answered to Saul his hearing

AN. — Potestas omnis, in me sita est.

Δ — Quae?

AN. — Bona, et mala.

Δ — Then appeared in the stone, these two letters M. G.

I then asking him some questions, de Thesauro abscondito: he answered,

AN. — Ne perturbes: Nam hae sunt Nugae.

And withall appeared many dedd mens skulls, on his left hand.

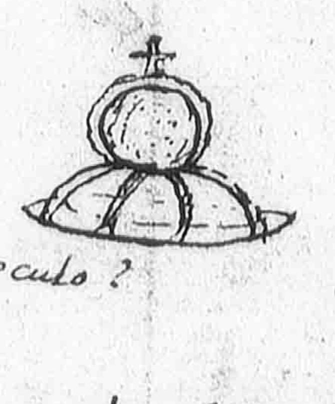
He sayd to me,

AN. — Ubi est potestas tua?

Δ — Cur quaeris de potestate aliqua mea?

AN. — Cur? Significo, non mihi placet.

Δ I, thereuppon, set by him, the stone in the frame: and sayd.



Δ — An bonus aliquis Angelus, assignatus est huic speculo?

AN. — Etiam.

Δ — Quis?

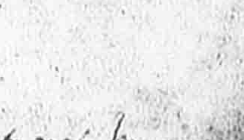
AN. — מיכאל — he answered, by the shew of these letters in the stone

Δ — Bonus ne ille Angelus, de quo in Scripturis fit mentio?

AN. — Maxime.

Δ — Fieri ne potest, quod ego eundem videam, et cum illo agam?

AN. — Ita. and therewith appeared this character —



Δ — Quid per hoc, significare velis?

AN. — Alterius Angeli Character est.

Δ — Cur hic, et nunc ostendis?

AN. — Causam ob magnam — Make an ende: It shalbe declared, but not by me.

Δ — By whome then?

AN. — By [illegible]

Prayer
Fasting

AN — By him that is assigned to the Stone: but not, tyll after the feast. And then thow must prepare thy self, to prayer and fasting
In the Name of God, be Secret: and in all thy doings praying, tyll thow hast thy desyre: which shall not be far of.
After New yeres tyde, Deale, But not on the Sabaoth day
Pray contynually.

My name is ANNAEL
I will speak ones more to the the: and than fare well: for thow shalt not haue me any more.

Be not to hasty in wrath.

Δ — Is this, that, you ment to speak?

AN. — I. Do good to all men. God hath sufficient for the, and for all men.
Fare well.

Δ — Gloria patri et filio et Spiritui Sancto. Sicut erat in principio et nunc et semper: et in secula seculorum
Amen.

Δ — Remember, that diuerse other particulars, mought haue byn Noted of this dayes Action: but these may suffice: And yet it is not to be forgotten, that as he sayd his name was Annael (with a dubble n) so he allso confessed him self to be the same Annaël which is prepositus orbis Veneris and allso Chief gouernor Generall of this great period, as I haue Noted in my boke of Famous and rich Discoueries.

Consider and Remember. } That this Note, of the Action (had with holy ANNAEL) is, of Prince Befafes, (otherwise called Obelison,) accounted as the Prolog of my first boke of mysticall exercises

Anno 1582. Martij die 10. hora 11 $\frac{1}{4}$ Ante meridiem. Saterday

Note he had two dayes before made the like demand and request vnto me but he went away vnsatisfyed: for his comming was to entrap me, yf I had had any dealing with wicked spirits as he confessed often tymes after: and that he was set on. &c.

Δ One Mr Edward Talbot* cam to my howse, and he being willing and desyrous to see or shew some thing in spirituall practise, wold haue had me to haue done some thing therein. And I truely excused my self therein: as not in the vulgarly accounted Magik, neyther studied, or exercised: But confessed my self long tyme to haue byn desyrous to haue help in my philosophicall studies through the Cumpany and information of the blessed Angels of God. And thereuppon, I brought furth to him, my Stone in the frame (which was given me of a frende) and I sayd vnto him, that I was credibly informed, that to it (after a sort) were answerable Aliqui Angeli boni. And allso that I was ones willed by a Skryer, to call for the good Angel Anchor, to appere in that Stone to my owne sight. And therfore I desyred him, to call him: and (yf he wold) Anachor and Amilos likewise, accounted good Angels. for I was not prepared therunto. &c. He than settled him self to the Action: and on his knees att my desk (setting the Stone before him) fell to prayer and entreaty &c. In the mean space, I in my Oratory did pray, and make motion to god, and his good Creatures for the furdering of this Action. And within one quarter of an howre (or less) he had sight of one in the Stone. but he still expected for two more: deeming this to be one of the three (namely Anchor Anachor Amilos). But I then cam to him, to the Stone: And after some thanks to God, and Wellcome to the good Creature, vsed; I required to know his name. And he spake plainly (to the hearing of E.T.) that his name is VRIEL.

Δ — Are you one of them (sayd I, John Dee) that are answerable, (vppon due obseruations performed,) to this Stone?

VRIEL — I am.

Δ — Are there any more besyde you?

VR — Michaël and Raphaël. But, Michaël est princeps in operibus nostris.

Δ — ys my boke, of Soyga, of any excellency?

VR — Liber ille, erat Adæ in Paradiso reuelatus, per Angelos Dei bonos.

Δ — Will you giue me any instructions, how I may read those Tables of Soyga VR — I can — But solus Michaël illius libri est interpretator.

Δ — I was told, that after I could read that boke, I shold Liue but two yeres and a half.

VR — Thow shallt Liue an Hundred and od yeres.

Δ — What may I, or must I do, to haue the sight, and presence, of Michaël, that blessed Angel?

VR — Præsentias nostras postulate et inuocate, sinceritate et humilitate. Et Anchor, Anachor, et Amilos, non sunt in hunc Lapidem inuocandi.

Δ — Oh, my great and long desyre hath byn to be hable to read those Tables of Soyga.

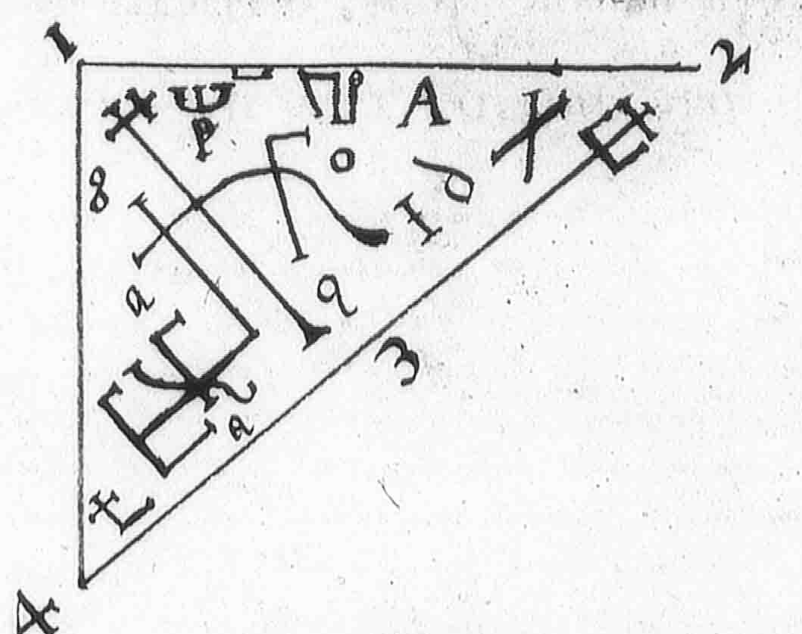
VR — Hæc maximè respiciunt Michaëlem. Michaël est Angelus, qui illuminat gressus tuos. Et hæc reuelantur in Virtute et Veritate non Vi.

Δ — Is there any speciall tyme, or howre to be obserued, to deale for the enioying of Michaël?

VR — Omnis hora, est hora nobis.

Δ — After this, there appered in the stone a strange seale, or Charactersmy of this fashion ensuing:

Δ An illuding Spirit straight way intruded him self, and this character as may appere [illegible] where the Character is [illegible]



Δ —— What is the intent, or Use of this?

this was not true Uriel: as may appere Aº 1583: Maij 5.

*VR —— Sigillum hoc in auro sculpendum, ad defensionē Corporis, omni loco, tempore et occasione. et in pectus gestandum.

Δ — So he ceased, with thanks to god: and I mused much uppon this Action: and layd all up in mynde, and writing.

Δ —— Soli Deo Honor omnis, et gloria. Amen.

The same Saterday after none. Hora. 5.

Δ — After that Mr E.T. had called Uriel, and I was come to the Stone and had used a short speche of thanks giving to God: I then required some instruction for the purpose of Soyga

VR —— Peace. you must use Michaël.

Δ —— I know no meanes or order to use in the invocation of Michaël

Note. in this tyme there appered in the stone, a riche chayre: and after a little while, it was out of syght.

VR —— He is to be invocated by certayn of the psalmes of David, and prayers. The which psalmes, are nothing els, but a means unto the seat and Maiestie of God: whereby you gather with your selues due powre, to apply your natures to the holy Angels. I mean the psalmes, commonly called the Seven psalmes. You must use pleasant sauours: with hand and hart: whereby you shall allure him and wyn him (thorough Gods fauour) to atteyn unto the thing, you haue long sought for.

There must be Conjunction of myndes in prayer, betwyxt you two, to God Contynually.

Yt is the Wyll of God, that you shold, iointly, haue the knowledge of his Angells togither

You had atteyned unto the Sight of Michaël, but for the imperfection of Saul.

Be of good Cumfort.

Δ —— The chayre cam into the Stone agayne: and I asked what it ment.

VR. —— This is a seat of perfection: from the which, things shall be shewed unto the, which thow hast long desyred.

Δ — Then was there a square Table brought into the Stone: and I demaunded, what that Table betokened.

VR —— A Mysterie, not yet to be knowen. These two, shall remayn in the Stone, to the sight of all undefyled Creatures.

you must you must use a fowre square Table, two cubits square: Whereuppon must be set Sigillum ~~Aemeth~~ Dei, which is allready *perfected in a boke of thyne: Blessed be God, in all his Mysteries, and Holy in all his works. This seal must not be loked on, without great reuerence and deuotion. This seale is to be made of perfect wax. I mean, wax, which is clean purified: we haue no respect of cullours.

* erronice, contra igno- [illegible] vide post.

This seal must be 9 ynches in diameter: The roundnes must be 27 ynches, and somwhat more. The thicknes of it, must be of an ynche and half a quarter. and a figure of a crosse, must be on the back side of it, made thus:

The Table is to be made of swete wood: and to be of two Cubits high. with 4 feete: with 4 of the former seales under the 4 feet.

Δ —— The fashion of the 4 feet, standing uppon the foresayd round seales, was shewed: so as the uttermost circle conteyning the letters, did seme to be clean *without the cumpas of the fete, equally round about the same fete. And these seales were shewed much lesser than the principall seal.

Note this point

Under the Table did seme to be layd red sylk, two yardes square.

And ouer the seal did seme likewise red sylk to lye fowrsquare: somwhat broader then the Table, hanging down with 4 knops or tassells at the 4 corners thereof.

Uppon this uppermost red silk, did seme to be set the stone with the frame: right ouer, and uppon the principall seal: sauing that the sayd sylk was betwene the one and the other.

The Table was shewed to haue on the fowre sides of it, *Characters and names these, that are here in a schedule annexed, in 4 diuerse rowes.

Caue: quia angelus tenebrarum se intrusit: et hic ut libri sequenti appendicit apparebit.

VR —— The Characters and words on the sides of the square Table, are to be written with yellow, made of perfect oyle, used in the Church.

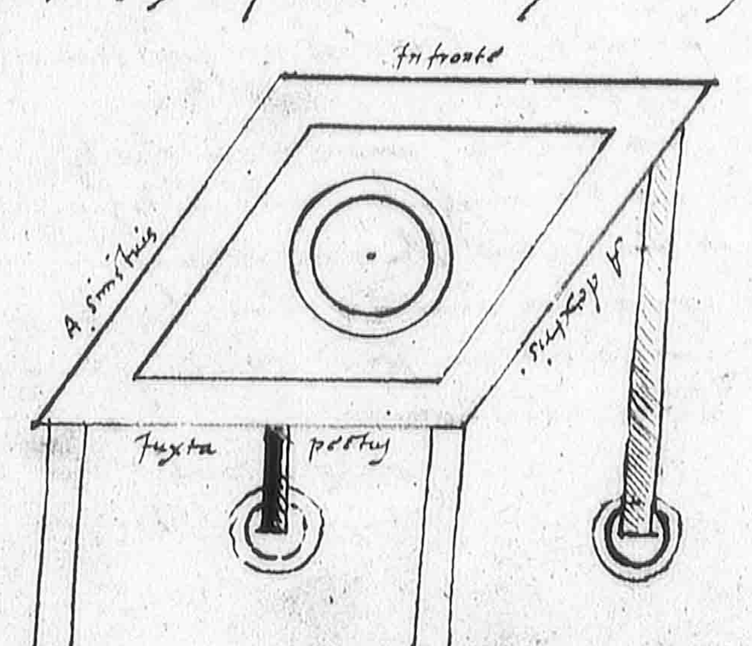
Δ —— What oyle is that VR — Of that oyle shalbe opened unto you. The oyle, is perfect prayers of other oyle I haue no respect.

We sanctifie, bycause we are holy: and you sanctify bycause of your holines



VR — There is a spirit, named Lundrumguffa using you who seketh your destruction, in the hatred of men, in the hurt of thy goods. Discharge him to morrow with Brymstone.
He haunteth thy howse, and seketh the destruction of thy doughter.
His pretence was to have maymed the in thy sholder the last night, and long ago. Yf thow do not discharge him to morrow, he will hurt both thy wife and thy doughter.
He is here* now
Give him a generall discharge from your familie and howse
He will seke Sauls death, who is accursed.

Δ Note: * so is it evident who went about to hinder the truth before in the character, and in the border of the Table, falsly counterfeting, where as it also in the next action may appere.

Saul in danger of being carried away quick

Δ — I know no meanes, or art to do this by. For I did burn in flame of Brymstone, Maherion his name and Character, whan I found Saul privilie dealing with him (which manner of wicked dealing I had oft forbydden him) and yet he cam after, and wold have carryed Saul away quick: as Robert Hilton, George, and other of my howse can testify.
VR — The Cursed will come to the Cursed.
Δ — I beseche you to discharge him: and to bynde him somwhere wherefar of, as Raphael did (for Tobias sake) with the wycked Spirit Asmodeus
VR — But Tobias did his part. Art is vayne, in respect of God his powre. Brymstone is a mean
Δ — Whan shall I do this?
VR. — To morrow at the tyme of prayers.

Δ — Gloria Patri et filio et Spiritui Sancto
Sicut erat. Amen

1582 Martij 11
Sonday. a Meridie hora. 3.a circiter

Δ — Uriel being called by E.T. there appeared one, clothed with a long robe, of purple: all spangled with gold. and on his hed, a garland, or wreath of gold: his eyes sparkling. of whome I asked Whether the characters noted for the Table, wer perfect:
He answered,

— They are perfect*: there is no question

*Hereby may appere that this wycked spirit fysted in the shew of the former characters and names before

Δ — Are you Uriel.
Than presently cam in One, and threw the brave spirit down by the sholders: and bet him mightyly with a whip: and toke all his robes, and apparell of him: and then he remayned all hery and owgly and so tyll the spirit was beaten of him, who cam in after him. And that spirit, which so bet him, sayd to the hearing of my skryer, LO, thus are the wycked skourged
Δ — Are you Uriel, who speaketh that?
VRI — I am he. Write down and mark this: for it is worthy

Note Lundrumguffa skourged spiritually worthy of the noting.

This was thy persecutor Lundrumguffa. I brought him hither: to let the see, how God hath punished thy enemy
Lo, thus hath God delt for the: Lo thus have I delt for the: 11
Thank God.
Δ — blessed be his holy name, and extolled, world without ende.
E.K. — he drew the wycked spirit away, by the leggs, and threw him into a great pitt. and washed his hands, as it were, with the sweat of his own hed. for he semed to be all in a sweat.
Δ — Here uppon, my skryer saw Uriel go away: and he remayned out of sight a little while. Then he cam in agayn: and an other with him: and iointly these two said together. Glorifie God for ever.
And than Uriel did stand behinde: and the other did set down in the chayre, with a swoorde in his right hand: all his hed glystring like the Sonne. The heare of his hed was long: He had wings: and all his lower parts semed to be with fethers. He had a roab over his body: and a great light in his left hand. he sayd Michaël — We are blessed from the begynning: and blessed be the name of God for ever.
Δ — My skryer saw an innumerable Company of Angels about him:

Martij 14. Wensday. mane circa horam 9 (10)

Δ — Being desyrous to procede in this matter, by consent, we bent our selues to the Action. And after that [E.T.] had called Vriel and saw him, I cam to the desk from my oratorie.
There did contynually appeare, the chayre and the Table
I than being afrayde that any other shold come into the stone, in stead of Vriel, did ernestly require the spirituall creature appearing, to shew who he was, and what was his name.
At length he answered, and sayde to the hearing of E.T.
Vriel is my name, with diuers called *Nariel.
Stay.

*Agrippa hath so, cap. 24. Lib. 3. occultae philosophiae.

Δ — Then he went away, for a while: and cam agayn, and sayd thus,
VR. — The strength of God, is allwayes with the Dost thow know, what thow writest?
Δ — In two senses, I may understand it: eyther that the good Angel Gabriel is allwayes with me, though invisibly: or ells that the strength, and mighty hand of God, allwayes is my defense.

— potius erat dicendum Michaël: Nam Gabriel est Praevalescentia Dei: et ita, fortitudo quidem, sed altioris gradus.

VR — Fortitudo Dei, tecum semper est.
Δ — He went away agayn, and cam agayn, following or waytyng on an other. and before that other, was a man having his hed all covered with blak. Then he that cam so in the middle, did set down in the chayre, and spake thes words following:
MI — Note
Δ — This was Michaël, with his sword in his right hand.
Then cam Vriel to the man (having his hed all hyd, as it were in a blak hode) and toke of that blak hode. and then lifted up the Table cloth. He looked under it, and put it down againe: and lifted it up again. The man stode still before Michaël. Then Michaël rose; and toke of all the mans clothes, and left him, as it were, onely in his shirt.
Then Vriel toke a little round Tablet, as it were, of the bignes of a sixpence, having two letters in it, thus:

and gaue it to Michaël.
Vriel lifted up the Table cloth: and, from thence, semed to take apparails, and put on the man. it semed to be sylk and very full of wrynkles, or plights. And the man kneeled, and held up his hands. Vriel toke like a lawrell busshe, and set uppon the mans hed. And than the man kneeled before Michaël.
Michaël toke the round thing, with the letters. and gaue it the man to eat: and he did eat it VR — Lo, things are covered.
Δ — Then he covered the Table and plukt the cloth over it, down to the ground, on every side. The man rose up: And Michaël clubbed him on the hed with his sworde. Then the man stode up

Then

(11) 11

Then the man turned his face toward [E.T.] the skryer. and the man did resemble me (John Dee) in countenance. And then he turned to Michaël agayn.
Michaël wrote uppon the mans bark, thus, 12
ANGELVS TVAE PROFESSIONIS.

* Agrippam Triplici hominis custode. Lib. 3. cap. 22.

Δ — Then E.T. asked me, yf there were such Angels of a mans Profession. and I answered yea; as in *Agrippa and other, is declared MI — Leave your folly: Hold thy peace.
Have you not red, that they that cleave unto God, are made like unto him.
Δ — yea, forsoth.
MIC — Thow canst better to lern, and not to dispute.
Laudate Dominum in operibus suis.
Δ — The man kneeled down, and so went out of sight.
MI — He hath eaten strength against trubble: He hath eaten nothing: and in eating, he hath eaten all things. The name *NA be praysed in trubble.

Vide Reuchlinum de Verbo mirifico, de nomine NA

Δ — Then Michaël thrust out his right arme, with the sword: and bad the skryer to loke. Then his sword did seme to cleave in two: and a great fyre, flamed out of it, vehemently. Then he toke a ring out of the flame of his sword: and gaue it, to Vriel: and sayd, thus MI — The strength of God, is unspeakable. Praysed be god for ever and ever.
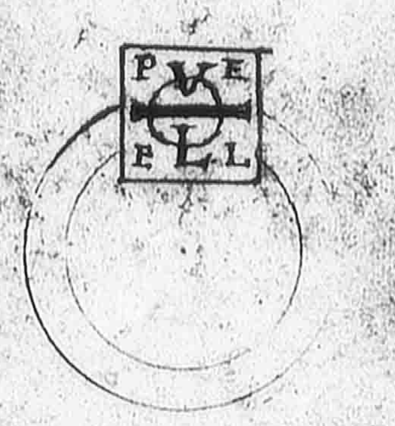
Δ — Then Vriel did make cursy unto him.
MI — After this sort, must thy ring be: Note it.
Δ — Then he rose, or disapeared, out of the chayre, and by and by, cam agayn, and sayde, as followeth.
MI — I will reveale the this ring: which was never revealed since the death of Salomon: with whom I was present. I was present with him in strength, and mercy.
Lo, this it is. This is it, wherewith all miracles, and divine works and wonders were wrought by Salomon: This is it, which I have revealed unto the. This is it, which Philosophie dreameth of. This is it, which the Angels skarse know. This is it, and blessed be his Name: yea, his Name be blessed for ever.



Δ — Then he layd the Ring down uppon the Table: and sayd, Note.
Δ — It semed to be a Ring of Gold: with a seale graued in it. and had a round thing in the myddle of the seale and a thing like a V, through the top of the circle: and an L, in the bottome: and a barr cleane through it: And had these fowre letters in it, P E L E.

Vide Reuchlinum de Verbo mirifico de nomine PELE

After that, he threw the ring on the borde or Table: and it semed to fall to fall throwgh the table: and then he sayde, thus,

Mi —— So shall it do, at thy commandement.
Without this, thow shalt do nothing.

The use of the Ring

Blessed be his name, that cumpasseth all things:
Wonders are in him, and his Name is WONDERFULL:
His Name worketh wonders, from generation, to generation.

Δ —— Then he went away: and cam in agayn by and by.

Mi —— Note

Δ —— Then he browght in the Seale, which he shewed the other day: and opened his swordе, and bad the Skryer, reade; and he red EMETH

De Sigillo Emeth vide Reuclini Artis Cabalistic. lib. 3. et Agrippa lib. 3. Cap. 11.

Then the sword closed up agayn: and he sayde

Mi —— This ~~do~~ I do open unto the, bycause thow merveyledst at SIGILLUM DEI. This is the Name of the Seale: which be blessed for ever. This is the seale self. This is Holy: This is pure: This is for ever. Amen.

Δ —— Then the Seale vanished away. And I sayd to my frende (the Skryer) In dede, this other day, I considered diverse fashions of this Seal: and I found them much differing, one from another: and therfore I had nede to know, which of them I shall imitate: or how to make one perfect of them all.

Mi —— Dowt not for the making of it: for God hath perfyted all things. Ask not the cause of my absence, nor of my apparell: for that Mysterie, is knowen to God. I have no cloathing, as thow thy self shalt see. I am a Spirit of Truth, and Vertue. Yea you shall see me in Powre, and I will visit you in HOPE.
Bless you the Lorde, and follow his wayes, for ever.

Δ —— Then he went away: and URIEL followed him.
And then I sayde to my Skryer: It were good, we had ever some watchword, when we shold not loke for any more matter at theyr hands, every tyme of theyr visiting of us.
Whereuppon, (unlooked for, of us,) he spake agayn

Mi —— We lead tyme, Tyme leadeth not us:
Put up thy pen.
The Name of God, be blessed for ever.

Δ —— Then they lifted up theyr hands to hevenward (which heven appeared allso in the Stone) and turned toward us, and sayde

Valete:

Δ —— So they departed: and at theyr going, the chayre, and the table in the Stone, did seme to shake

Δ —— Soli Deo omnis honor
Laus et Gloria.
Amen.

Martij 15. Thursday. Hora 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ a meridie.

Δ —— After EK his calling into the Stone, appeared a tall man, with a sceptre (very great) of gold, glittring. His body all red: and out of his hed, did shote out beames of light, like the sonne beames.

Δ —— I being desyrous, to know who he was, and his name, I requested him earnestly thereto. but he answered, as followeth.

—— Invocate nomen Domini, et agnoscetis eum

Δ —— Then I prayed the psalme, Deus misereatur nri, et benedicat nobis &c.
after that, he sayd

—— I am mighty.

Δ —— Bycause he delayed to declare his name, EK the Skryer did require him, in the name of God the father, Jesus Christ his sonne, and of the holy ghost, to expresse his name: and he answered in speche

—— So I will by and by

Δ —— Then he seamed to take from his hed little bright sparcks, like little candells endes: and to stick them abowt the chayre: and he went rownd abowt the chayre: and than he spake, as followeth.

SALAMIAN

—— I am mighty, and working wonders: I am SALAMIAN.
I rule in the hevens, and beare sway uppon erth in his name, who be blessed for ever. Thow doost dowt at me. I am the servant of God, in his light: I serve him. I say, I serve him, with ~~reverence and~~ feare and reverence. My name is SALAMIAN: Mighty in the Sonne. Worker of wordly actions, as well internall, as externall: Knowen unto God: whose name I know, and bless for ever.

Of Salamian you may rede, in the Call. Diei Dominicae in Elementis Magicis Petri de Abano, there called Salamia.

Δ —— Then appeared a big flame of fyre by him in the ayre

Sal —— Thow knowest not, or thow wilt not know, that Mamon, with his servants, are present abowt the: whose presence doth hinder the presence of the vertues Adonay our comming. Blessed be God, in the highest. Amen.

Δ —— He toke the forsayde flame of fyre, and flung it up into the heven ward.

Mamon

Sal —— Mamon is a King whome God hateth: whose sect, contynually tempt, provoke and stir up wickednes, against the Lord, and against his anoynted. But he dyeth: blessed be God for ever. Drive him away.

Δ —— It is incomparably more easy for you to do. And as for my parte, I fele neyther in body, nor sowle, any token of his presence or working.
Whereuppon he caused the whole chamber (which we were in) to appere very playnely in the Stone: and so there shewed a great cumpany of wycked spirits to be in the chamber: and among them, One, most horrible and grisely thretting, and approaching to our bodys: and skorning, and grasping at us.

Sala —— God determing his mysteries, by Arte and Vertue

Δ —— Then he willed me very egerly, to drive them away. And I prayed fervently. And there seamed One to come into the Stone, which had very long armes: and he drave them away courragiously: And so they were driven away.
After that presently, cam one into the Stone, all white

The white man held up the Cup: and sayd, as followeth, —— Lo, this is my name.

Δ —— This name he spake: he shewed it allso on the Table (before him) written Raph —— He is mighty in the Sonne beams. He shall profit thee hereafter.

Δ —— Then cam in an other, and sat down in the chayre: and he sayde, as followeth.

—— The strength of God liveth: and God raygneth for ever.
I am Fortitudo Dei.

Δ —— Why, then, you are Gabriel: and I toke you hitherto to be Michael.
Michael. How shall I then amend my boke, in respect of your name, allwayes, was before, written Michael?

For. Dei —— What thow hast written, that hast thow written: and it is true.
Write down this name POLIPOS.
Dost thow understand it?

Δ —— No, God knoweth.

For. Dei —— When that day commeth, I will speak with the. If thow observe that which I have* commanded the.
As truely, as I was with SALOMON, so truely will I be with the.

Δ —— Then cam in an other: whom we toke to be Uriel. for he went allso, as he was wont: and leaned at the Table.

* Perchaunce he meaneth the Characters of Annael: before specified.

For. Dei —— Search for wisdome and lerning, and the Lord will deliver it unto you.

Δ —— I wold to god, I knew your name truely, or what peculier letter I might set for you, to Note your words and Actions by.

For. Dei —— Name I have none, but by my Office.
SALAMIAN cam not hither, but by me.
He is a mighty Prince, governing the [illegible], under my powre.
This is sufficient for thy Instruction.
I was with Salomon, in all his works and wonders.
and so was this, whome God had appointed unto him.

Δ —— Do you mean Agrippa his boke? And is it there expressed by the name SALAMIAN?

For. Dei —— I have sayde.

Δ —— What order will you appoint unto us two, in respect of our two beings together? My frende here, may have other intents and purposes of his affayres, then will serve for me, for his ayde having in these Actions.

For Dei —— Joyne in prayers. For God hath blessed you. Do not not Consider these Mysteries.

Δ —— Then they in the stone used talk together: but not well to be discerned of the eare of E.T.
At length F.D talked very much, and speedily to E.T. and disclosed unto him (which he expressed not to me, at the stone, but afterward) all the manner of the practise, and Circumstance about the Action intended, with the gold Lamin, the ring, the Seales &c. And after I had spoken somewhat, in requesting him to shew me the manner, How I shold artificially prepare every thing spoken of, he sayd

Raph —— I lived with Tobie: Tobie the yonger. 14

Δ —— This was the white creature, that spake this.

F.D —— We Live in the Lorde: who be praysed for ever.

Δ —— I stode silent a good while.

F.D —— What wilt thow?

Δ —— I did attend, what you wold say.

F.D —— I have sayd.

Δ —— I have byn long at this tyme, in my dealing with you. I trust, I do not offend you therewith. But, for my parte, I could finde in my hart to contynue whole dayes and nights in this manner of doing: even tyll my body shold be ready to synk down for weariness, before I wold give over. But I feare, I have caused weariness to my frende here.

F.D —— In vertue is no weariness.

Δ —— Now he stode up, out of his chayr: and he, and they all, jointly blessed us, stretching theyr hands toward us, Crossingly. And so they went away. The Table and the Chayre remayned. And the glyttring sparckles, or drops of streaming little lightes were of the chayre immediately.

Semiel stode vp, and flaming fire cam out of his mowth: and than he sayd, as followeth.

The Tables

Sem. Mighty Lord, what woldest thow with the Tables?

Mi. It is the will of God, thow fatche them hither.

40 White Creatures Δ There cam in 40 white Creatures, all in white sylk long robes and they like chyldern: and all they falling on theyr knees sayd Thow onely art ~~Holy Ho~~ Holy among the highest. O God, thy Name be blessed for euer.

Δ Michael stode vp out of his chayre, and by and by, all his leggs semed to be like two great pillers of brass: and he as high as half way to the heven. And by and by, his sword was all on fyre and he stroke, or drew his Sworde ouer all theyr 40 heds. The Erth quaked: and the 40 fell down: and Michael called Semiel, with a thundring voyce, and sayd. And thereuppon, Mr Talbot came to me into my study: and required the Seale (or Table) of me: for he was willed to correct somthing therin, (sayd he). I delivered him the Seal. and he brought it agayn within a little tyme after, corrected: both in the numbers, for quantity: and some for place over or under: and also in one letter or place omitted. which I denyed, of any place omitted by me, that was expressed unto me. And the rather I doubted, uppon Michael his words last spoken, uppon two places then remaining yet empty: saying hij duo Calati sunt adhuc. But If I had omitted any, there should more then two have wanted. whereuppon we thought good to ask Judgment and dissolving of this doubt, by Michael. And comming to the Stone He was redy. I propounded this former doubt. he answered

Mi Veritas est sola in DEO. Et hoc oia vera sunt you omitted no letter or figure that was told you. But the skryer omitted to declare unto you. Δ May I thus recorde it: yt is iustly reformed by Uriel: the one being omitted of the descrier and the other not yet by us declared, might make that phrase meete to be spoken, hij duo Calati sunt adhuc.

The descryer, or the Skryer omitted to tell.

Mi. Go forward. Laudate Dominum in Sanctis eius.

Note: The Circumference (which is done) conteyneth 7 names:
7 names, conteyn 7 Angels:
Every letter, conteyneth 7 Angels:
The numbers are applyed to the letters.
When thow dost know the 7 names, thow shalt understand the 7 Angells.

The declaration of the Numbers.

The Number of 4, perteyning to the first T, is a Number significative: and being placed above, it sheweth remaining toward the right hand. Taking the figure for the number of the place applyable to the next letter to be taken. The under number, is significative: declaring to what place thow shalt apply the next letter in the Circumference, toward the left hand. which thow must reade, untill it light uppon a letter without number, not signifying. This is the whole

So shalt thow fynde the 7 principall Names: knowen with us, and applyable to thy practise.

Make experience.

Δ Then telling from $\overset{4}{T}$, 4 more places (toward the right hand) exclusively I finde in that fowrth place from, T, (but being the fifth fro the beginning, and with the beginning) this letter h: with 22, over it. Therfore, I procede to the right hand, 22 places: and there I finde A, and 11 over it. Going then toward the right hand 11 places farder: I finde a little a with 5 under it: by reason of which under place of 5. I go toward the left hand, 5 places exclusively, where I finde o with 10, under it: whereuppon I procede to the left hand, farder by 10 places and there I see the letter t, and 11, under it: and therfore going to the left hand 11 places, I see there the Letter h alone without any number. Wherfore, that letter, endeth my word, and it is in all ThAaoth. ys this, as it should be?

Call

Mi. That is not the name. Thow shalt understand all in the next Call. The Rule is perfect. Call agayn within an hower and it

Δ Note these dorings to be accidentall calls and it shalbe shewed

Δ The howre being come we attended Michael his return to make the Practise evydent of his first Rule

Mi. Salvete

Thow diddest erre: and herein hast thow erred: and yet notwithstanding no error in the, bycause thow knowest not the error.

Understand, that the 7 Names must comprehend, as many letters in the whole, as there are places in the Circle. Some letters are significative of them selves: in dede no letters, but dubble numbers. [Dubble Nubers.] Cybers being the Name of God. Thow hast erred in the first name, in setting downe Aa; that is, twise a together, which differ the word. Which thow shalt Note to the ende of thy work: [Note.] Where soever thow shalt finde two aa together the first is not to be placed within the Name, but rather left with his inward powre. Thow shalt fynde 7 Names proceding from three generall partes of the Circumference. My meaning is, from three generall letters: and onely but one letter, that is, thys letter A. Accoumpt thow, and thow shalt finde the names iust. I speak not of any that come in the begynning of the word but such as light in the myddest: Prove; prove: and thow shalt see Whereas thow hast [go], it is to be red [og]. This is the whole.

[Δ Note 7 names, proceding from 3 generall places of the Circumference. or 3 generall letters, being but one letter, and that, A.]

Δ I have red in Cabala of the Name of God of 42 letters: but, not yet of any, of 40 letters: That of 42 letters is this

אב אלהים בן אלהים רוח הקדש אלהים

שלשה באחד אחד בשלשה

id est: Pater Deus, Filius Deus, Spiritus sanctus Deus: Tres in Uno, ~~[illegible]~~ et Unus in tribus. Vel Trinitas in Unitate et Unitas in Trinitate.

[Vide Galatinum, lib. 3°. cap. 11.]

or this אב אל בן אל רוח הקדוש אל אבל לא שלשה

אלהים כי אם אלוה אחד which in latin, is, Pater Deus, Filius Deus, et Spiritus sanctus, Deus, attamen non tres Dii sed unus Deus.

And as this is of God, Unitie in Trinitie, so of Christ, onely (the second persone of the Divine Trinitie) the Cabalists have a name explaned of 42 letters, on this manner.

כאשר הנפש המשכלת והבשר אדם אחד

כן האל והאדם משיח אחד

that is in Latin Sicut anima rationalis, et caro, homo unus, ita Deus Deus et homo, Messias unus.

I am not good in the hebrue tong; but, you knowe my meaning

[Δ 42, are here in potentia, but, non Actu]

Mi. The letters being so taken oute, being a name, and a number, doth confesse the old rule of 42 letters, when you restore them in agayn.

Mi. Note, Oute of this Circle shall no Creature pass, that entreth, yf it be made uppon the earth. My meaning is, if he be defyled: This shalt thow prove to be a mysterie unknowen to man.

[The 7 vertue strength of this Circle.]

Beasts

Beasts, birds fowle and fish do all reverence to it. In this they were all created. In this, is all things conteyned. In tyme thow shalt finde it, in ADAMS Treatise from Paradise. Looke to the Mysteries: for they are true.

Then he shewed L 30

Then XE 21

Then T 9 H 14

Then he shewed this compownd letter, with the circle and cross. (G)

He willed me, at each corner of these segments of circles, to make little crosses and so I did.

Δ After euery of the 7 letters shewed he did put them vp in his bosom assone as he had shewed them fully. The plates wheron those letters were shewed, ~~were of the figure principall seale~~ hath the forme of the segment of a circle, thus ⌓ and seemed to be of pure gold. When the 7 letters were placed, he sayd

Omnia unum est

Then he pulled all the 7 plates out of his bosom and Uriel kneeled downe before him. Then the plates did seme to haue two wings (eche of them) and to fly vp to heuen under the Canapye.

Δ After this, one of the 7 baskets, (that which is in the east) cam to Michael. and he sayd.

Mi. Seal this: For This way and is for euer

A E.T. wold not willingly now deale with the former Creatures utterly shaking and discrediting them, bycause they willed him to marry. Neyther wold he put of his hat in any prayer to god, for the Action with them. Whereuppon I went into my Oratorie, and called unto God, for his divine help for the understanding of his Lawes and Vertues knowledge and understanding which he hath established in and amongst his Creatures, for the benefit of mankinde, in his service, and for his glorie. &c.

E.T. to marry.

And comming to the stone, E.T. saw there these two, whom hitherto, we were instructed to be MICHAEL and URIEL.

E.T. Michael and Uriel, both kneled holding up theyr hands: and Michael seemed to sweat water abundantly, somwhat reddish or bloddish.

There cam 7 Bundells down, (like faggots) from hevenward. And Michael taketh them kneling. And Uriel taketh a thing like a superaltare and layeth it uppon the Table: and with a thing like a Censor doth make perfume at the fowre corners of the Table: the smoke ascending up: and the Censor, at the last, being set on the Table it seemed to fall through the Table.

Uriel his manner of appearing.

URIEL semeth to be all in a white long robe tucked up: his garment full of plyghtes: and seemed now to have wynges (which, hitherto from the begynning of these kinde of Actions he did not) and on his hed a bewtyfull crown, with a white Cross over the Crown.

Uriel taketh the 7 Bundells from Michael: and with reverence layeth them on the forsayd Superaltare.

A Glorious man

E.T. there commeth a man as though he were all of perfect pure glistring gold: somtyme seeming to have One eye, and somtyme three.

From under the Table commeth a great smoke, and the place semeth to shake.

Uriel lieth now prostrate on his face: and Michael continually prayed sweating.

The glorious man seemed to open the Covering of the 7 bundells (being of divers cullored sylk,) and there it appered, that these Bundells seemed to have in them, of all Creatures some, in most glorious shew.

All creatures.

The glorious man seemed to stand uppon a little hill of flaming fyre.

He taketh of, of one of the Bundells a thing like a little byrd; and it hovereth afore him as though it had life: and then it rested uppon the thing like a superaltare.

A description of the glorious man.

This glorious man semeth to be open before, and his brest somwhat spotted with blud. He hath a berd forked of brownish cullour. his heare of his hed, long, hanging down to his sholders: But his face for beutifull glittring, can not be discerned. His heares do shake, as though the wynde carryed them.

This man blesseth the bird, making a Cross over it: and so he did three tymes. He looketh up to heven

Now the byrd, which, before, seamed to be but as byg as a sparrow, seameth to be as great as a swanne: Very beutifull: but of many cullours.

Many cullours in all his garments, and are sketched in Sep[...] [illegible]

Now looketh Michael up, and hold up his hands to heven, and sayeth

SIC, SIC, SIC, Deus noster.

Uriel (sayd) – Multiplicabit omnia, benedictione sua.

The former Bewtyfull man taketh this fowle, setteth it on the bundell, and on the place, from whence it was taken: And, now, the place where

Where this byrd stode before, semeth allso, to be (proportionally) very big, as the byrd, (thus enlarged).
(the ioyning of 2 two byrds) This man taketh an other byrd, and putteth the wyng of it, to the wyng of the first (as though he yoked them)
This second byrd at this his first taking, was as byg, as the was become, (encreased, as it semed) and it was allso a very bew[illegible]

E.T: a voyce was hard, like Michael his voyce, saying:
It was a byrd, and is a byrd, absent there is nothing

the Table: and Michael sitteth now in his Chayre: and sayd

E.T: The two byrds, which were there, before, and gon out of sight, now

They seme to grow to a huge bygness, as byg as mountaynes: incredibly of them with his bill semeth to take sterrs into it: and the other to to take them from the same byrd, and to place them agayn in the skye.

And this they did very often: and in diverse places of the heven with great celeritie
After this they semed to fly over Cities, and townes, and to break the clowdes in peces, as they passed: and to cause all dust to flye from all walls, and towres, as they passed, and so to make them clene.
(cloud.) And in the streets, as those two Byrds flew, semed diverse brave fellows, like bisshops, and Princes and Kings, to pass: and by the wyngs of those byrds, they were striken down. But simple seely ones, like beggers, lame and halt, children, and old aged men, and women, semed to pass quietly, untowched and unoverthrown of those two Byrds
And then they semed to come to a place, where they lifted up, with their wyngs the endes of thyr wyngs, fowre Carkasses of dead men (oute of the grownde) with crownes on theyr heds: whereof one semed to be a Childe.

First

First these 4, semed leane, and deade: then they semed quick and in good liking: And they being raysed up parted eche fro other, and went into 4 sundry ways, Est, West, North and South.
Now these two fowles hauing thyr wyngs ioyned togither, light uppo a great hill: and there the first fowle gryped the erth mightyly and there appeared diverse Metalls, and the fowle spurned them away, still,
Then appeared an old mans hed, heare and all, on. very much wythered. They tossed it betwene them, with thyr fete.
And they brake it: And in the hed appeared (in stede of the braynes) a Stone round of the bygnes of a Tennis ball

The Sonnes of men, and their Sonnes are subiect unto my Commandements. This is a mystery. I have spoken of it. Note it throughly. They are my servants: By them thow shalt work mervaylously. In the first leafe were the Offices of the two Kings Blumaza & Bobogel recited, as appeares by the Note at the bottome of the 2d page. Dated ... May 1583. & perhaps this first leafe was lost before he drew up his Book, A De Bonorum Angelorum invitationibus, because I find a Blank where Blumaza is placed.

This Character seemes to stand for Carmara, as appeares from severall places in fol. 2. a. & b. & many other.

It appeares by a note of Dr Δ: (De Heptarchia &c: Cap. 1.) that Michaell & Uriel were present at the begining of these revealed Misteries & gave authority to Carmara to order the whole Heptarchicall Revelation & perhaps this authority was entred in the first lost leafe of this 4th booke (though Dr Δ: calls it the 2d Booke, in this Note) See Chap: 2. at ye begining.

By a marginall note at the begining of the first Chapter, it should seeme, yt the Dr meanes by the first Booke the Action only of the 16/20 of Nov: 1582. & by the 2d Booke the Actions of the 17 & 19 of Nov. 1582. But his marginal Note of 19 should be 20 of Nov. for so it appears by ye Actions entred. The 21 of Nov: viz: the action of yt day he calls the Appendix of the 2d chapter.

EK. They became One man, as the other before, but a slender and a weak One neyther so high as the first: ever laboring or striving with it self to stand up right, but still it bended, bowed, and inclined downward, as though it would fall for feblenes &c. △ EK This Ternary did seme to stand uppon a triangular stone, and to turne (as a horsmyll doth, abowt one axeltree) orderly agaynst, and by the hole of the Globe so opened. and every of the three bodyes, in theyr turning, as they cam agaynst the open place of the Globe, they extended, and stretched out theyr hands toward the people: The first semed to hold a round ball in his hand

2. The second body, his hand had in it, a little sword flamming with fyre.

3. The third had a thing like a hatt band of laces, of many cullours, which ever as his turne cam to be agaynst the opened hole, he semed to cast over and the people, and the people did seme to be drawn to him ward, by the casting of it toward them.

These three bodyes, though they turned continually, yet did the face or Countenance of that one Compounded hed, stedily and immoveably regard or loke into the Globe at the foresayd hole thereof.

Δ Ho. A Wonder to behold the heven, much more this.

EK. Now this Ternarie separated it self, and the hole or clyft in the Globe did shut to. These three did sit down by Bobogel.

Δ Ho — Sunt semper, et Cibus illorum est vanus.

△ Note. The first Ternarie, they semed to stand leaning to Bobogel. The third Ternarie was set orderly and [illegible] close by Bobogel his fete, one of these betwene two of the first, [illegible]. So that orderly one of the first, and one of the third ternarie: one of the first and one of the third; one of the first and one of the third.

4 ANA. EK. Then cam the Ternarie ANA

They sayd, orderly thus. 1. Ab illo sed
2. Cum illo sed, looking on his own belly.

△ Then I demanded of theyr Apparayle: and EK sayd that these were braver than the former Ternary. Bobogel sayd, Aliqui a dignitate, Caeteri tales quia non sunt Digni. this he sayd, pointing to theyr apparayle.

Then the third sayd. 3. Per illum, Per illu, Per illu with a frowning countenance thrusting forth his hand.

EK. They ioyne together into one hed and three bodyes. The Hole of the Globe opened very wyde now.

This one

This one Compounded Hed had many eyes, many noses, many mowthes, as though it were a Chaos of Faces, in one hed, but three bodyes. One of the bodyes had in his hand a little Ball, like the other before, but very white, but with twynkling brightnes in it.

The other two bodyes, theyr hands were emptie.

EK. They turn in order agaynst the Hole of the Globe. But the People regarded them not: but at the comming of the hand with the Ball, agaynst the hole, the people loked a little up at it.

Bob. sayd. Et quia carebant in ardentibus ignis

EK. These being dissolved into theyr former state, go and sit with the body (Ioinde) by them that sat afar of from BOBOGEL. Theyr apparaill semed to be simple: theyr gay apparayle was gone.

△. Here I found a certayn error in my writing of the first Notes: which I have amended in the writing of this. But while that error did trubble me, the spirituall Creature sayd these wordes Bob. The Fault is in EK his remembrance, and not in his will. Note this,

LEE are the Three that stand with me
NAR are the Three that I reiect
BLN are the Thre which are enterlinked with me
ANA are the Three that are reiected.

Omnes naturam ad, Sed, Non in illo.

Bob. sayd Omnes naturam ad, Sed, Non in illo.

△ There remayned 10 tymes Three

EK. The 30 remayning, cam all away, and satt betwene Bobogel and the reiected Company. and fro that Company (△ of 30:) cam onely 7 to the circle agayn. Every of these 7, sett theyr fote, evenly uppon a letter of the Circle, which letters are these,

Note by theyr sitting that they are indifferently: and so they say:

* △ they semed therfore to sit betwene the perfect and the reiected: as indifferent.

EK They say, In* use, we are perfect; Misused, we are Monsters.

Sumus septem Ianuae Naturae, et suipsius qui nobit Deum.

EK. These 7, seme to vanish into wynde, or white smoke, and to fall into the Globe. △ And the six reiected, turn into a black smoke. and the rest of the 30 semed also converted into black smoke, and to fall into the Globe.

6, 7. Bob. sayd In sexto et septimo sunt omnia.

EK The six that were next him, semed to cling hard and close to Bobogel

(Bob. Behold.) EK They be ioyned all into One body, and becam like the same, into the forme of a bottle or Globe: and so moved up or rowled up the small narrow race, or line undorned, which remayned higher than the chayre, toward the top of the Diaphanous Globe, as before is declared. And at my comming home told me a long processe of this tempest All. But I comforted him, and wold not yeld to his opinion, but did declare my confidence in the goodnes of God: for that we craved at his handes, things good and necessarie. and that therfore he wold not give his children a stone for bred, or a Scorpion for nedefull food required etc. And this morning the matter was propounded by me, and therupon the former sayings were used, and all the consequency of matter, which hereafter is recorded.

Δ After many many words betwene him and me, and the more bycause he denyed that he knew I my glorie belonging to God, I vrged him so, at length with short and euident argument, that he answered he must confesse the powre and glorie of god: and sayd, that he was damned for ever. and did wish damnation to me: And I requested God to vse his Justice on him, for the glory of his name: then he entreated me somewhile, and somewhile derided me, saying, Art thow so lusty? &c

Δ All the Company fell on him, and hewed him in peces: and digged a hole in the earth, with theyr swords, and he fell in, and after that was a mighty roaring hard.

A voyce — Sic soleo mirastis.

Δ The Company went away. There cam a fire and seemed to burn all the howse.

of nothing? or man, so brittle a substance? Nature bringeth up her sholders amongst trees and herbs, like a gentle fyre: In beasts and all the Creatures of the fieldes, waters, and earth, in a palpable imagination: Amongst the Sonns of men, she sheweth her self, wholy in the light of Vnderstanding. In all these she walketh by her own qualitie, mixing the quantitie, with her before iudged proportion. Amongst all these is some distinction, yet all in theyr kindes are perfectly and substantially norrished. If Nature haue such powre, What powre hath our God, and how great is his might in those in whome He kindleth a whole Vnderstanding. The strength of body and inward man, with the strength of him that also leadeth him, are augmented and diminished at his pleasure. If earth, in mixture become fyre, how much more shall he encrease, whom God hath strengthened: If he wold haue conquered with thowsands, he wold not haue sent back the dogged harted people. If riches or wisdom were his felicitie, he wold haue kindled the twelue Lamps of his eternall light, on a higher mountayne: But he chose them in the Valleys, and from the wavering place. I think this to be sufficient to Confirme your Vnderstanding.

Aprilis 6. Saterday after none

Δ The table, Chayre, boke and fyre appeared
And while I went into my oratorie to pray, fire cam there out of the stone uppon EK, as he was at prayer at my table in my study.

EK hard a voyce out of the fyre, saying — Why do the Children of men prolong the time of theyr perfect felicitie: or why are they dedicated to vanitie? Many things ar yet to come: Notwithstanding the Time must be shortned, Δ — Veniet Vox eius, ut dicat filijs hom quæ ventura sunt.

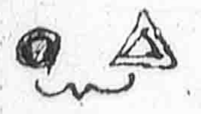
EK. here is a man, in white, come in, like Uriel, who cam first into the stone

Δ Benedictus qui venit in nomine Domini — Ur. Amen.

Ur. — I teache: EK sayd that he turned toward me

Ur. What wilt thow I shall answer the, as concerning this work?

EK. He hath a ball of fire in his left hand and in his right hand a Triangle of fyre



Δ What is most nedefull for us to lerne herin, that is my chief desire.

A prophesie very dredfull. nere at hand

Uriel — Fowre monthes, are yet to come: The fifth is the begynning of great miserie, to the heavens, to the earth and to all Living Creatures. Therefore must thow nedes attend uppon the will of God: Things must then then be put in practise. A thing that knitteth up all, must of force conteyn many celestiall Vertues Therfore, in these doings, must things be finished Spedyly, and with reverence.

speedily & reverently

Uriel held up now the triangle of fire

This, is the light wherewith thow shalt be kindled

This is it, that shall renew the: yea agayn and agayn, and, Seventy seven tymes, agayn

Then shall thy eyes be clered from the dymnes

Thow shalt perceyve those things, which have not byn seen, No, not amongst the Sonnes of men.

Liber 40

In 40 dayes must the boke of the Secrets, and key of this world be written: even as it is manifest to the one of you in sight, and to the other in faith. Therfore have I brought it to the wyndow of thy senses, and dores of thy Imagination: to the ende he may see and performe the tyme of God his Abridgment. That shall thow, write down in his propre and sanctified distinction.

The Abridgement of time

Speaking to Δ

The danger thretned, if EK do not his dutie

For, behold, what man, can speak, or talk with the Spirit of God? No flesh is hable to stand, when the voyce of his Thunder shall present the parte of the next leaf unto sight.

Note a terrible thing

You have wavering myndes, and are drawen away with the World: But brittle is the state therof; Small therfore are the frayltie of his Illusion.

Be of sound faith. Beleve. Great is the reward of those that are faithfull.

God will not be dishonored, neyther will suffer them to receyve dishonor, that honor him in holiness

The ende of all.

Δ Uriel toke a little of the fire in his left hand and flung it at EK: and it went in at his mowth.

Ur. My message is done.

Δ May I Note Ur, (meaning Uriel,) for your name who now deale with us. — Ur — I am so.

Note, by the place here before what measure of proportion of perceyving and understanding was in respect of the whole bulk of fyre.

Δ I pray you to shew vs also what we are to do in our affayres.

Ur. It is sayde

Δ he sayd to EK, tell him, I haue told him, and semed to smile.

I meane as the syncere of these great mysteries ensuing, now (by you) told of. And that by her, I may do good service concerning the Quenes Majesties Comfort.

Mistres Francis Haward called to taste of god his great mercy for her charitable hart. &c Ur. Who is he, that openeth thy mowth, or hath told the of things to come? What thow hast sayd, is sayde. Mark the ende.

It is a sufficient answere.

Ur. Loke up. Δ he sayd so to EK. Who loking up, saw the boke the Chayre and the Globe a part, abroad, out of the Stone, and then, none remayning in the Stone to be seene. and it cam nearer & nearer to him, and it seemed, as before.

Ur. So, sett down, what thow seest. [Δ The boke and writing was made very playne to him.]

What thow seest, deliuer vnto him.

As it is his will, So be it vnto the:

Do thy duty, whereunto thow art moved,

and it shalbe sufficient.

Fareweli, for a time

Ur.

EK. It is all couered with a white clowde, such an one as I sawe not yet.

Δ We put vp the Stone: and the former boke and other furniture, appeared vppon the table hard by EK. and he was to write out of the same: which he began to do, both in Character and words: but it was to cumbersome to him: and therfore he wrote onely the words in Latin letters

Δ After he had written 28 lines there in that ~~boke~~ paper boke, the first word being Arney, and the last, being nab. suddenly all was taken away out of his sight: and so likewise his vnderstanding of that he had written was quite gone. For, continually as he wrote, he vnderstode the language and sense therof, as if it had byn english.

Δ After he had finished that second page of the first leafe, I then did copy it out as followeth.

Δ And this is the later ende of the second page of the first leafe of this excellent Booke. The other leaves are written apart, in other bokes as may appere.

But with these 9 rowes and the former 41, doth arise the somme of 50: which is one more than 49: Therefore I am not onely of this but of dyverse other imperfections yet remayning in this page, to ax the solution and reformation.

Δ When I had told this my doubt to EK. he answered me that the first rowe of these last 50 before set downe, was the last of the first page of the first leafe: and so it is that in the first page were first set downe the rowes of which eight and fortith rowe beginneth with this word Amycdpla etc. And therfore the next rowe following (beginning with Arney vah nol gadeth etc) is the nyne and fortyth rowe of the first page and so the last rowe of that page. And thereby also the second page of the first leafe hath these 49 rowes here noted: which is one doubt taken away: The other is of the [illegible] nombre of wordes in some of the 49 rowes of this second page.

Aprilis 10. hor. 9. Δ As we were talking of the Macedonian (the grecian) who yesterday came at my Sanford his letters, there appeared in the corner of my study a black shadow: and I did charge that shadow to declare who he was: there came a voyce and sayd that it was the Macedonian: and about his hat was written in great letters this word, ΚΑΤΑΚΡΙΝΩ, which EK read out: and it signified condemning etc: and the voyce sayd, that word was sufficient, adding [illegible] be thanked and prayesed.

Δ After my comming home from the court about 4 of the clok after none, and after my being in my study awhile, it came into my hed to assay to decipher the other writing before is spoken of, which was brought me by E.K., as he was willed to do. 88

And at the first I was half out of all hope, but yet making my prayer, and gessing at it (as the Lord ...) to be Latine, I found this to be the true Alfabet. God giving me the perseverance.

Δ They were found at Huets cross as the spirituall creature affirmed ... Perhaps that is Cross called Huttons cross ...

Aprilis 15 Monday (156)

Δ As EK was writing the eighteenth leaf which was of the Spirits of the earth, (whose number was 4 ½ [illegible]) he sawe a parcell [illegible], playing (in the [illegible]) by him self, and thereuppon suddenly at his side appeared three or fowr spirituall creatures like laboring men, having spades in theyr hands, and theyr [illegible], EK [illegible] asked [illegible] why he called them. He answered, that he called them not. [illegible] they replyed, and sayd that he called them: Then I began to say, that they lyed: for his intent was not to call them, but only to read and repeat that which he had written. and that every man who readeth a prayer to perceyve the sense thereof, prayeth not. No more did he call them. and I bad them to depart out of the place. And thereuppon I removed from my desk, (where I was ruling of paper for his writing) to the grene chayre which was by my Chymney: and presently he cryed out and sayd they had nipped him and broken his left arme by the wrest: and he shewed the bare arme and there appeared both on the upper syde and lower side imprinted depe in, two circles of broad [illegible] which were red: And I taking that [illegible], [illegible] they assalted him, and he rose, and cryed to me (saying) they come fiersly on me, they come; and he put the stole which he sat on, betwene him and them. but still they came gaping or gyrning at him. Then I asked him where they were. and he poynted to the place. And then I toke the stick and came to the place, and in the name of Jesus commaunded those Baggagis to avoyde, and smitt a cross stroke at them. and presently they avoyded.

All thanks be to the only one Almighty, and everlasting God whose name be praysed now and ever. Amen.

Aprilis 18. Thursday morning. hor. 8. circiter.

Note. Now 30 Tables being written since good friday: 4 dayes only 21 passed since good friday.

Δ As EK came to write out the Tables according as he was wont: and to have the letters appearing in the stone shewed by him, he sawe nothing but a black cloude seven cornered. and after I had put the stone agayne into the frame, and thereuppon did make long and oft request, for answer having, there appered nothing, neyther was any thing seen in the stone. Then I fell to prayer agayn, and at length, there appeared written uppon, or as it were yssuing out of the cloude, this sentence

He promised, be not carfull. Δ Note, here instead [illegible] letters

Δ as who should say our [illegible] hope, [illegible]: his Day.

EK. The letters seemed to stand at fingers endes (being 21), and so every finger had a letter on it: and the fingers seemed to be placed at the corners of the Heptagonall cloude: and as sone as the sentence was red the fingers which seemed to issue out of the Heptagon, did shrink in agayn and disappere.

Δ All laude honor and thanksgiving, be to the highest, our most loving mercifull and almighty God, now and ever Amen.

The stone out of the frame.

Thursday. Aprilis 18. after dynner. (157) 86

Δ We being desirous to know the cause of this stay making, in the Tables shewing as before was accustomed; and now (24 Tables being written) a dark cloude to hang in the place of a glorious boke, did greatly disquiet our myndes, and brought us in feare of some offence lately committed, by any one, or both of us, whereby the Indignation of the Lord might be kindled against us. 89 Whereuppon we prayed severally; and at length, (no alteration or better comfort happening to us) I prayed in the hearing of EK, (by my desk, on my knees) in great agony of mynde, and Behold there appeared one standing uppon, or rather somwhat beyonde the Heptagonall cloude who sayd

I am sent, to understand the cause of your greif, and to answer your dowtes.

Δ I, then, declared my mynde brefely, according to the effect of my prayer. Whereuppon he answered at large, reproving my appointing of god a tyme or to abridge the tyme spoken of. And among his manifold grave speaches he had these words

Prepare all things

Prepare all things, For tyme is at hand

His Justice is great, and his arme stronge

How darest thow dowt or dreame, saying: Lo, God, this may be done in shorter time &c. But such is flesh.

Good Angels

Be rocks in faith

It is not the manner of us, good Angels, to be trubbled so oft.

At the time appointed, thow shalt practise: While sorrow shall be measured, thow shalt bynde up thy fardell.

Great is the light of Gods sinceritie

Appoint God no tyme. Fullfill that which is commaunded

God maketh clere when it pleaseth him. Be you constant and abyde Temptations: For True it is, that is sayde: And lastly I say It shall be performed

What is it now that thow desyrest to be made playner?

Δ Still he proceded uppon my answers: and at length he sayd Tyme of Justification knowen when?

Neyther is the time of mans Justification knowen untill he hath byn tryed.

The ende of our election

You are chosen by God his mercy to an ende and purpose: which ende shall be made manifest by the first begynning in knowledg in these Mysteries

God shall make clere when it pleaseth him: & open all the secrets of wisdome when he unlocketh. Therfore seke not to know the mysteries of this boke, tyll the very howre that he shall call the. For then shall his powre be so full amongst you, that the flesh shall not be perceyued, in respect of his great glory.

tyll the very howre

Want of due reverence shewd in our actions is reproved.

But was there ever any, that tasted of gods mercies so assuredly, that wanted due reverence? Can you bow to Nature, and will not honor the workman? Is it not sayd, that this place is holy. What are the works of holiness? I do advertise you: for, God will be honored. Neyther will he be wrested in any thing he speaketh.

Angels abase them selves, to pleasure men by theyr appearing when they take uppon them, or use any sensible evidence of theyr presens [illegible]

Think not, that you could speak or talk with me, unles I did greatly abase my self, in taking uppon me so vilely a thing in forme, as to my self.

But he doth this not for your causes, not for your deserts, but for the Glorie of his own name.

Δ Whether shall we goe to Cracovia, or consent to the Captayne to go down into his Cuntry, as, presently he entendeth.

IL — As ye [illegible]

Δ EK sayd that this was Uriel who had appered and answered all this.

Δ — I will ask the one question. Have we any voyce or no? I do think you have no organs or instruments apt for voyce: but are more spirituall and nothing corporall. but that you have the powre and propertie from god to insinuate your message or meaning to eare or eye, in such sort, as many imagination shall be, that both they here and se you sensibly.

Vox angelorum

IL — We have no voyce but a full noyce that filleth every place. Which wan you any taste of, Distance shall make no separation.

Uriel putteth one in his place.

Let there one come that may better answer: not in respect of thy self, but one, more neere to thy estate. — Do thy Duty.

Δ He sayd this, to one who cam in, and he departed him self.

Il or El

Δ This new come Creature sayd, Wold you have any thing with me, Il?

Δ Who art thow: Art thow one that loveth and honoreth our Creator?

El.

IL — Will you see my hart — EK. he openeth his body and sheweth his hart and theron appered written EL.

IL

Δ He semed to be a very mery Creature, and skypped here and there, his apparell was like of a Vyce in a play: and so was his gesture and his skoffing, as the outward shew therof was to be vulgarly demed. but I did carefully ponder the pith of the wordes which he spake. and so forbare to write very much which he spake at the begynning. by reason EK did so much mislike him, and in manner take him to be an Illuder.

Δ As you are appointed to answer us by the Message of god, so answer us, who desyre the pure and playne verity, as may be correspondent to his Credit that assigned you, and to the honor of God who created us.

Note Threfold answer

IL — My answer is Threefold — I answer by gesture — by my apparayle, and Will answer thee by my wordes.

Δ Do you know where the Arabik boke is that I had: which was written in tables and nummers?

Liber Arabicus

IL — It is in Scotland — A minister hath it; it is nothing worth. The boke conteyneth fals and illuding witchcrafts. All Lawde honor and prayse be to the One and everlasting God: for ever and ever.

EK. to Knolles

Δ The Lord Threasorer, hath he, any bokes belonging to Soyga? IL — He hath none: but certayn Introductions to all artes.

Note

Δ But it was reported to me by this skryer that he had: certayn peculier bokes perteyning to Soyga. otherwise named Agla, and Agnes, the transposits.

IL — Soyga signifieth not Agnes. Soyga alca miketh

Δ What signifieth those wordes? The true measure of the Will of God in judgment which is by Wisdome

Δ What Language is that, I pray you? IL — a language taught in Paradise

Δ To whom? IL — by infusion, to Adam. Δ To whome did Adam [illegible] IL — unto Chebas Δ Did his posterite use the same IL — [illegible] untyll the Ayrie Tower was destroyed. Enoch Δ Enoch his boke, or prophesie, doth, or may seme, to be written in the same Language: bycause mention is made of it in the new Testament. in Jude his Epistle where he hath, Prophetauit autem de his Septimus ab Adam, Enoch, dicens, Ecce venit Dominus in sanctis millibus suis facere iudicium contra omnes, et arguere omnes impios, de omnibus operibus impietatis eorum, quibus impie egerunt; et de omnibus duris quae locuti sunt contra Deum peccatores impij. &c.

Note excellent Memories, for traditions conteyning and perserving.

IL — I must distinguish with you. Before the flud, the spirit of God was not utterly obscured in men. Theyr memories were greater, theyr understanding more clere, and theyr traditions, most, unsearchable. Nothing remayned of Enoch but (and if it pleas your mastership) mought have byn carryed in a cart.

I can not bring you the brass, but I can shew you the bokes.

Slepe * 28 dayes, and you shall fynde them, under your pillow when you do rise.

Esdras bokes

Δ As concerning Esdras bokes, which are missing, what say you?

IL — The prophets of the Jues have them. Δ But we can hardely trust any thing in the Jues hands, concerning the pure verite: They are a skattered people and dispersed all the world over.

The Jues

IL — I will shew you a trik. Δ he lifted up his fote, and shewed the sole of his shoo: and there appeared the picture of a man, who seemed to have a short or fowle skyme on his face: which one toke of: and then there appered on his forhed these two figures 88

Δ this might seme to signifie the calling home of the Jues, Ao 1588. to come.

I will shew you more then that, to. and will speak to a man shortly, that shall bring Water to wash every mans face

Δ What mean you, by every man? shall all men, be made cleane?

IL — There is a difference in washing of faces.

Note, El semed to be woman.

EK. This Creature semeth to be a woman by his face: his apparell semeth to be like a Vice in a play.

EK. Ar you not a Kinsman to Syngolla?

IL — I syr, and so are you a Kinsman to Synfullas.

Δ A man may finde corn in Chaf.

IL — So may you (perchaunce) finde me an honest man in my ragged clothes.

Δ This other day, when I was in doute of the Grecian (the Macedonian) whether he had any good and profound lerning or no, he was represented spiritually, and abowt his hat in great letters was written this greke word Κασταξω. I pray you what doth it signifie — I asked the grecian and he sayd, [illegible]

IL. Loke in your boke. Δ I toke the common Lexicon: and he sayd, No Not that: then I asked if I shold take Phavorinus his lexicon: and he answered Nor that. and I asked which then: and he sayd your boke covered with a white parchment. and I asked, that of Munsterus of Latine greke and hebrue: and he sayd, yea. and there you shall finde that Macedo hath onely that one word Κασταξω longing to it. I loked and I found it. which satisfied me very well.

Δ I pray you what say you of Gariladrah; do you know him? who Long tyme did deale with me?

Gariladrah

IL — If he were lesser than I, I durst speak to him. But bycause he is greater then I, I am not to speak to him. All under, and nothing above me, I deale. Loke in your Table and there you shall finde an other name of his.

Δ I remember no such thing. IL — Consider who hath set me here

He was Uriel my guardian.

If the truth thow hast allready, be of a greater then my self, then is it sufficient. Δ What day was that name given me?

IL — Immediately, sir, after your worships last coming

He pointed to EK.

Δ That was Raphael. And I remember that Garladrah sayd that he must take me, and his better (Raphael) should be my instructor, and that then the same Raphael was my Guardian. &c

Δ Sing a song to [illegible] prayse, who created us.

EK — I will sing a [illegible] song.

Your doings are of GOD: your calling great:
go down and seke the Treasor, and you shall obteyn it.
Take no care: for, this Boke shall be done in 40 dayes.

Amen. Δ Amen Amen Amen.

Thesaurus absconditus 40 dayes. — August — Knowledge to be infused ictu oculi.

EK — After the ende of 40 dayes, go down for the Treasor.
When those 40 dayes are done, then this boke shall be finished. The rest of the time untyll August, is for rest, Labor, and prayer.

Thesaurus ab[illegible] 40 — Note: till August

Δ What labor? EK — In digging up of those Treasors.

Δ Must we nedes dig for them? EK — otherwise, yf thou wilt.

Δ How, I pray you? For to dig without lycence of the Prince, is dangerous by reason of the Lawes: and to ax licence, is half an odious sute.

Without digging

EK — Yf thou have a parcell or part out of every place of the erth, in any small quantitie, thou mayst work by the Creatures, whose power it is to work in such causes: which will bring it (never trust me) before you can tell twenty.

Δ he meaneth. Never trust him, if it be not so, as he hath sayde.

EK — No, never trust me, if it be not so.

Δ You mean those ten places, marked in the Table, which, last day, I deciphred.

Ten places — The chest

EK — I marry, not you hit it. Yea sir, and your Chest also, it will do no hurt. Give me one: and I will make 40: and give you twenty and take twenty to my self: and when you have it, I pray you let me have some little portion for my wife and Children.

Δ As concerning that Chest, I pray you how came the Macedonian, or Mr Sainford to knowe of it, so particularly, as he did?

EK — Husey told of it, openly, at the bord at braynford in the hearing of divers.
The Grecian will seke him out.
The Greke in grecia perhaps can fynde out Threasor, but not in Anglia.
The greke hath a Threasor in his hed, that will enriche him to be a fole.
I was yesterday at London, I met with a blak dyer. He had a cupple of rings, that would give better instructions.
Your Chymney here will speak agaynst you anon: yet I am no briklayer.
I must be gone.

A True it is, I had hidden there, in a capcase the records of my doings in Sawles colledge.

He advised EK to communicate to me the boke, and the powder, as so all the rest of the roll, whose was there frend: saying, true frendes ought not to hide any thing each from other.

Aprilis 20 — Saterday

Δ This Saterday had byn great and eger pangs betwene EK and me: while he wold utterly discredit the whole process of our actions: as to be done by illuding spirits: seking his dischardge. Saying that he hath often here tofore byn told things true, but of illuding divells: and Now, how can this be other, than a mockery, to have a cornered dark cloth to be shewed him in stede of the playn writing, which which he had written out of? And that when they shold do good in Dede that then they shrank from us. And that he was not thus to lese his time: But that his is to study, to lerne some knowledge, whereby he may live: and that he was a cumbred in my howse, and that he dwelled here as in a prison; that it was much better for him to be in Cotsall playnes where he might walk abroade, without danger or to be cumbred with such slanderous fellows as yisterday he was, with one little Ned dwelling at the blak raven in Westminster; who brayled at him for bewraying of a bargayn made betwene the same Ned or Edward, and one Lush a Surgeon, who was now fallen in poverty, a very honest man etc. With a great deale of more matter, melancholik, and cross and contrary to the good and pacient using of our selves to the accomplishing of this action.

I replyed, and sayd, that we might stand our selves inexcused except on Sunday as, that God wold shew when it pleased him: and that we were not to appoint God a time to performe his mysteries and merces in: Not before than he hath spoken of. And that undoubtedly, the occasion of this dark cloth, was some imperfection of ours, to be amended and that then, all wold be to our further Comfort. And as concerning his doubting the goodnes of the Creatures (dealing with us) he was to blame, to say the or doubt the trewe to be ill that bringeth forth good fruite: for of these Creatures, from the beginning of theyr dealing with us unto the last howre, we never hard other than the prayse of god, instructions and exhortations to humilitie, patience, constancy, fayth etc. The things they promise be such as God can performe, and is for his service and glory to performe: and such as have byn imparted to many before: the which neyther impossible for men to enioye agayn, nor unmete for us to hope for. And though his troubled mynde did doubt, yet my quiet mynde, which God hath made joyfull through his mercyes and which accuseth me not in this action of any ambition, hypocrisie, or disorderly longing, but only is bent and setled in awayting the Lordes his helping hand to make me wise for his service (according as long time my dayly prayer to him hath byn.) And seing I have and do ask wisdome of the Lord his hands, and put my trust in him, he will not suffer me to be so confounded: neither will he offer a stone to his seely children, when in tyme of nede they ask bred at his hands: besides that voluntarie [illegible] to faced [illegible]: and by his graces I have him so, and am so careles to do that shold please him, that I make no account of all this world possessions, unless I might enioye his favor his mercyes and graces. And whereas he complayned of want, I sayd my want is greater than his: for I was in det allmost 300 pounds, had a greater charge than he, and yet for all my 40 yeres course of study, many hundred pounds spent, many hundred myles travayling, many an incredible toyle and forcing of my witt in study using, to learn or to bolt out some good thing, yet yet for all this I wold be very well pleased to be deferred yet longer (a yere or more,) and to go up and down England clothed in a blanket, to beg my bred, so that I might, at the ende be assured to atteyn to godly wisdome, whereby to do God some service for his glory. And to be playn, that I was resolved, eyther with thy to bide this worldes proffit that, so I might in spirit emonge the [illegible] [illegible] of all wisdome, and els to pass forth my dayes on earth with gods favor and assurance of enioying here his mercifull mighty blessings, to understand his mysteries, not for the performing of some actions, such as myght sett forth his glory, so, as it may be evident and confessed, that such things were done Dextera Domini.

And many other discourses and answers I made unto his obiections and dowtes:

[?]die — Afterward I began to speak of the trobbles and misery prepared to be now at hand, and by that tyme I had ended a little in the consideration and talk of the matter, he appeared that sayd he was called El or Il, and sayd

Now to the matter.

Δ What matter?

El

Il. — I must have a Wallet to carry your witt and myne owne in.

Δ Benedictus qui venit in nomine Domini

Il — Then I perceyve that I shall have a blessing

Blessed is the physician that hath care of his patient, before the pangs of death doth visit him.

Δ — What think you of that cloudy Heptagon?

Il. — Dost thou consider, I go about it?

I told the, every thing I did, was an Instruction. As I can not stand stedfastly uppon this, it self, One, and one, perfect:) So can not my mowth declare, much lesse speak, that you may comprehend it, what this is whereupon I go.

EK. He went on the Heptagonon, as one might go on the top of a turning whele: (as some horses use to turne wheles as may appere in Georgius Agricola de re metallica)

Il. — I know, what all your talk hath byn: But such mynde, such Infection, such Infection, such Corruption: and must nedes have a potion applyable for the cure. But how will you do? I have forgotten all my drugges behinde me. But since I know that some of you are well stored with sufficient oyntmentes, I do entend to visit you onely with their help. You see, all my boxes are empty? — EK he sheweth a great bundell of empty pothecarie boxes, and they semed to my hearing to rattle.

Δ How commeth it, that you pretend to come from a favorable divine power to pleasure us, and your boxes are empty.

Il — You sayd even now in your talk: Vobis dico plena: If my empty boxes be vertuous, how much more shall any thing be, which I bring not empty.

Δ Then I pray you, to say somwhat of the vertue of your empty boxes; bycause we may have the better confidence of your fullnes

Il. — Will you have my bill? Δ Shall we go to the Apothecaries with your Bill?

Il. — I will shew it: Serve it, where you list.

Iudra galgol astel.

Δ You know we, understand it not: how can it be served!

Il — You must nedes have an expositor

What boke of physik is that, that lyeth by you?

[Δ There lay by me on my desk, Marcus Eremita de lege spirituali in greke and latine, but the latine translation lay open before, on the left side of which, the sentence began Non raro per negligentiam, quae circa aliquam rei operationem committitur, etiam Cognitio obscuratur. And on the right side, began Corpus sine mente nihil potest perficere &c.]

Il. — Mary here is good physik in dede.

You found my name the other day. Go to my name. [Δ So I turned to the Greke boke and brought forth [illegible]. and there [illegible] the word [illegible]. he than asked me, which letter of the name I liked best, and I sayd, L: bycause it betokened the name representing God. El. &c then he sayd somwhat farder of the letters, which I wrote not.

Il. — Go to great M, the second: for this is it that shall serve his turne

If

[margin: A remedy for blyndnes of EK at this instant.]

If this can not serve him, he shall have a medicine, that a horse can not abyde. Use this, and I warrant you, your blindnes will be gone.

Δ. It is here greatly, to be Noted: that I turned in the boke of Marcus, 27 leaves further: till I cam to the Quaternio of M, the second and there I found this sentence notified (by my lyne drawen, and a Note in the margent, Cor Contritum) Sine corde contrito impossibile est omnino liberari a malitia et vitijs. Contritum autem cor tripartita temperantia somni dico, et Cibi, et Corporalis licentiae. Caeterum horum excessus et abundantia voluptatem generat. Voluptas autem pravas cogitationes ingerit: repugnat vero precationi et convenienti cogitationi.

[margin: And 98 many leaves yet wanted of the 40, yf we account from the 6 day of Aprill: but from the tyme of the begynning to reade them, then there wanteth not so much by 9 or 10 dayes]

Δ This being considered by us, we thanked god this instant and thanked God of his mercies, that it wold please him to make us understand some iust cause whie the cloudes were appeared in stede of brightnes &c.

Soli Deo omnis honor laus et gloria. Amen.

Aprilis 23. Tuesday. mane hor. 8.

Δ After our prayer iointly, and my long prayer, also my desire wishing God to deale with us so, as might be most for his glory, in his mercy: not according to our desertes, and frowardnes: &c. At length appeared in the stone a white cloude, folden cornered.

And behinde the cloude a thunder semed to issue

A Voyce — I, AM.

EK. Here standeth Uriel uppon the cloude, and semeth to loke upward and kneled, saying —

Ur. — Æternitie, Maiestie, Dominion and all powre in heven and in the earth, and in the secret partes below, is thyne, thyne, yea thyne; and to none els due, but unto the: whose mercies are infinite; which respectest the glorie of thy owne name, above the frowardnes, and perversnes of man's nature: which swarmeth with synnes, and is covered with Iniquitie: and in the which, there is founde no place free from filthynes and abomination. Glorie be to the: O, all powre: and magnified be thow, in the workmanship of thy own hands, from time to time, and with out ende of time, from generation to generation. and even amidst and in the number of those, for whome thow hast prepared the flowres of thy eternall Garland. Beare with them (O Lord) for thy mercyes sake. for, woldest thow seeke in the myddst of miserie? Whome yf thow sholdest iudge according to thy iustice, How shold thy Name be glorified so in thy self, to thy owne determination, and writing, sealed before the Creation of the worldes? The fire of thy Iustice consumeth thyne owne seat. and in the is no powre wanting, when it pleaseth the, to cast down, and gather them together, as the wynde doth the snow, and in [illegible] them

But what thow art, thow art: and what thow wilt, thow canst.
Amen

Δ. Amen.

Vr. — I haue measured tyme (sayth the Lord) and it is so: I haue appointed to the heauens their course, and they shall not pass it.
The dayes of man shall decay, in despite of the enemy. But the fire of aeternitie shall neuer be quenched, nor neuer fayle.
More, then is, can not, nor may not be sayde.
We can not be wittnesses to him, which wittnesseth of him self.
But (this sayeth the Lord) Beholde If you trouble me ones more, or touche the wings of my excellency, before I shall move my self, I will raze you from the earth, as children of perdition and will endue ~~that~~ those that are of quiet myndes, with the strength of my power. You are not faythfull, sayeth the Lorde, whome you beleue not. Notwithstanding I haue hardened the hart of One of you, yea I haue hardened him as the flynt, and burnt him together with the ashes of a Cedar: to the entent he may be proued iust in my work, and great in the strength of my Glory. Neyther shall his mynde consent to the wyckedness of Iniquitie. For, from Iniquitie I haue chosen him, to be a first & chefe witnes of my Dignitie.

NOTA et Caue.

One of vs is by the Lord confirmed in constant purpose

Election confirmed.

Your words are, yet, not offensiue vnto God: Therefore, will not we, be offended, at any thing that is spoken: For it must be done, and shall stand; yea and in the number which I haue already chosen.

Δ I think (sayeth the Lord) is forgotten here

Note

But, this sayeth the Lorde: If you vse me like worldlings, I will surely stretch out my arme vppon you, and that heuily. Lastly, I say, Be Faythfull, Honor God truely, Beleue him hartily.

E K: he kneleth down, and seemeth to pray. Now he standeth vp.

Vr. Lo, As a number increasing is allwayes bigger: So in this world decreasing, the Lord must be mightily glorified.
Striue not with God. But receyue, as he imparteth.
The Mercy of my message, quencheth the obscuritie and dulness of your sowles. I mean of the Infection, wherewith all they are poysoned.

Note,

Lo, how the Earth cryeth vengeance. Come, for thy Glory sake, it is tyme. Amen

Vengeance cryed for

Seing it is sayd that in 40 dayes ~~and before 40 dayes~~ the boke shall be finished: and seing it is sayed that our former Instructers shall not come nor appeare to vs, tyll the boke be finished: And seing heretofore, the boke vsed to appeare to E K, that he might write, when so euer he found him self thereto: and seing the same

JM — Dy in the folly: I haue sayde.

E K. It thundreth and lightneth abowt the clowde: and now all is vanished away.

Δ. E K sayd, that at the very begynning of this dayes action when he expressed the first voyce this day, hard of him, his belly did seame to him, to be full of fyre: and that he thought verely, that his bowells did burne. And that he loked downward toward his leggs, to see if any thing appeared on fire: calling to his mynde the late chance that befell to the Adulterous man and woman in Saint Brydes Church in London. &c Allso that when he had made an ende, he thought his belly to be wyder, and enlarged, much more then it was before.

Δ I sayde certayn prayers to the Almighty our God and most mercifull father, on my knees, and E K on his knees likewise, answered diuers tymes, Amen.

A. G. After this, we made A G. to vnderstand these the mercies of the Highest: and he reioyced greatly, and prayssed the Lorde. And, So E K, was fully satisfyed of his Dowtes: And A G, and he, were reconciled of the great discorde which, yesterday, had byn betwene them &c.

Aprilis 26. Fryday. Note. (167) 94 97

Δ By the providence of God, and Mr Gilbert his means, and pacifying of E.K. in vehement passions and pangs, he cam agayn to my howse and my wife very willing, and quieted in mynde, and very frendly to E.K. in word and countenance: and a new pacification in all parties confirmed: and all uppon the Confidence of God his service to be faythfully and sincerely intended, and followed in and by our actions, through the grace and mercy of the highest.

1583 Aprilis 28. Sunday: after Dynner: abowt 4 of the clok.

Δ As I and E.K. had diverse talks and discourses of Transposition of letters: and I had declared how my rule for to know certaynly how many ways, any number of letters (propounded,) might be transposed or altered in place or order: Behold, suddenly appeared, the Spirituall Creature, IL, and sayd.

IL — Here is a wordly disputation of transposition of letters.
Chuse, whether you will dispute with me, of Transposition, or I shall lerne you.

Δ I had rather lerne than dispute. And first I think, that those letters of our Adamicall Alphabet have a due peculier unchaungeable proportion of their formes, and likewise that theyr order is allso Mysticall.

The mysticall Alphabet

IL — These letters represent the Creation of man: and therfore they must be in proportion. They represent the Workmanship wherewithall the Sowle of man was made like unto his Creator.
But I understand you shall have a paynter shortly:

Δ I pray you what paynter may best serve for this purpose? Can master Lyne serve the turn well?

IL — Dost thow think that God can be glorified in hell, or can duely describe him? Can the wickedness of a paynter, declare the mysteries of God? The truth is, I am come to advertise you, I cast with a small error you be led, far a syde.

The Table of Practise

Let me see the forme of your Table.

Δ I shewed him the Characters and words which were to be paynted rownd abowt in the border of the Table.

IL — How do you like these letters? Δ I know not well what I may say. For, perhaps, that which I shuld like, were not so to be liked: and contrarywise that I should think well of, might be nothing worth.

IL — Thow sayst well.

Alluding spirits then being in them fleing.

Behold great is the favour and mercy of God toward those whome he favoreth. All things are perfect but onely that, which hath deceived or delivered by any good and perfect messager from God. A wicked power did intrude him self, not onely into your Societie, but allso into the Workmanship of Gods mysteries. Sathan dare presume to speak of the Almighty. These Characters are divelish: and a secret band of the Divell. The Lord, saith the Lord, I will rayse them up whom he hath overthrowen: and blott oute his fote steps where they resist my glorie. Neyther will I

* I understand that the Characters are most untrue

I suffer the faithfull to be led utterly awry: nor finally permit the* to condemne them for ever. He sayeth, I AM, and they are most
But behold I have brought the truth: that the Prince of reason, & of understanding may be apparent in every part of his Celestiall demonstration. Therfore, as thou saydst unto me once,
So say I now to the: Serue god.

Δ* The former square of 6 ynches:

The border therof let it be (here) but half an inche: but on the Table it self, let it be an inche broad.

Every one of those sides must have 21 Characters
But, first, at every Corner make a great B

Δ After

Δ After our prayers made, EK had sight (in the stone) of innumerable letters: and after a little while, they were brought into a lesser square and fewer letters. first appeared in the ~~opposite~~ border opposite to our standing place (which I have used to call, in fronte tabulæ) these letters following: beginning at the right hand, and proceding toward the left Sigillum Emeth.

☉ — What have you in the middle of your Table? Δ Nothing. ☉ Sigillum Emeth, is to be sett there.
☉ — The rest, after supper.

Δ Soli Deo Omnipotenti sit laus perennis. Amen.

After supper, returning to our business, I first asked of the heds of the letters in the border, to be written, which way they ought to be turned, to the center ward of the Table or from the Center ward.

Note of the square within ☉ — The heds of the letters must be next or toward the center of the square Table or Figure. Divide that within, by 12 and 7.

Δ I divided it

Ternarius et Quaternarius

☉ — Grace, mercy and peace be unto the lively branches of his florishing kingdom: and strong art thou in thy glory, which dost unknitt the secret partes of thy lively workmanship: and that, before the weak understanding of man.
Herein is thy powre and Magnificence opened unto man. And why? bycause thy divinitie and secret powre is here shut up in Numero Ternario et Quaternario: à quo principium et fundamentum omne huius est tui sanctissimi spiritus
For, yf thow (O God) be wunderfull and incomprehensible in thyne owne substance, it must nedes follow, that thy works are likewise incomprehensible. But, Lo, they shall now beleve, bycause they see, which heretofore could skarsly beleve. Strong is the influence of thy Supercelestiall powre, and mighty is the force of that arme, which overcommeth all things. Let all powre therfore rest in the; Amen

Δ The Spirituall Creature semed to cast forth, like balls of fyre: having his face toward me, and his bak toward E.K.

AL — Leave out the B's of the 7 names of the ~~Kings~~ seven Kings, and 7 Princes: and place them in a table divided by 12 and 7: the 7 spaces being uppermost: and therein write, in the upper line, the letters of the King, with the letters of his Prince following next after his name: and so of the six other, and their Princes. And read them on the right hand from the upper part to the lowest, and thow shalt finde there, the Composition of this Table. Therein they are all comprehended, saving certayn letters, which are not to be put in here: By reason that the Kings and Princes do spring from God; and not God from the Kings and Princes. Which excellency is comprehended, and is allso manifest, in that Third and fowrth member.

Rownd abowt the sides [of this square] is every letter of the 14 names, of the 7 Kings and Princes

Hereafter shall you perceyve that the Glorie of this Table surmounteth the Glorie of the Sonne

All things els appertayning ~~to it~~ unto it, are allready prescribed by your former instruction

I have no more to say, but God transpose your myndes, according to his own will and pleasure. You talked of Transposition:

To morrow. I will be with you agayn. But Call not for me, least you incurre the danger of the former Curse.

(Margin: 12, 7; Note of these Kings and Princes; The dignitie of the Table of Practise; He alludeth to our talke of Talk had of Transposition of letters; Note danger of violating precepts of doctrine)

Aprilis 29. Monday; a meridie

Δ As E.K. and I were talking of my ~~boke~~ boke Soyga, or Aldaraia: and I at length sayd that (as far, as I did remember) Zadzaczadlin, was Adam by the Alphabet therof, suddenly appeared the spirituall Creature, which sayd yesterday that he wold come agayn, this day, uncalled: and at his first comming he sayd Then, à primo

Δ Qui primus est et novissimus, Alpha et omega, misereatur nostri. Amen

AL — Glorie be to the, which art one, and comprehending all. Merveylous is thy wisdome, in those, of whome, thow wilt be comprehended.

A short prayer, but appliable to my purpose

Every prayse, with us, is a prayer

Δ: he taketh of, his pyed coat, and threw it up on the corner of my desk: and then he semed clothed in an ancient doctorly apparayle: and on his hed he had a wrethe of white sylk of three brayds.

AL — Well I will give you my lesson, and so byd you farewell.

First I am to perswade you to put away wavering myndes.

Secondly, for your instruction, in these necessarie occasions, thus it is:

The owtsides or skyn must be the Centre. There, is one foundation.

The Flesh must be the owtside.

The Centre it self must be dissevered into 4 æquall partes.

There is your lesson

Δ We understand not, this dark lesson

AL — The hart must be the fowrth part of the body; and yet the body perfect and sownd: The skynne must occupy the place of the hart and yet without deformitie

God is the beginning of all things: The farthest parte of all things is in the hands of God

The like shalbe found amongst the member of his One most holy name.

The Erth is a foundation to every thing: and differeth but onely in forme. In the forme of his own application wherunto it is applied.

God is the beginning of all things, but not after one sorte, nor to every one alike

But it is three manner of works, with his name:

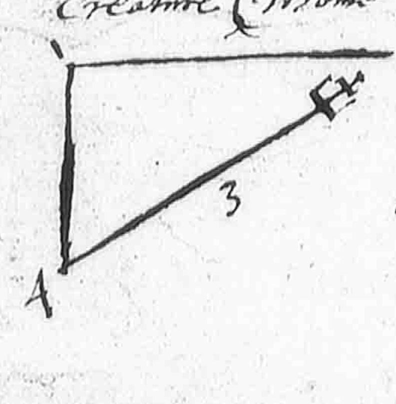
The One, in respect of Dignification:

The Second, in respect of Conciliation:

The Third, in respect of an ende and determined Operation.

Now Syr, to what ende, wold you use your Character?

Δ At our two first dealings togither, it was answered by a Spirituall Creature (whome we toke to be Uriel,) Sigillum hoc in auro sculpendum, ad defensionem corporis omni loco, tempore et occasione, et in pectore gestandum.



AL — But how do I hate?

The Character is an Instrument, appliable onely to Dignification

But there is no Dignification Syr, but that which doth procede, and hath his perfect Composition Centrally, in the square number of 3 and 4:

The Centre wherof shall be equall to the greatest.

Δ We understand not. AL — Hereby you may gather

The Nature of all Characters.

not onely, to what ende, the blessed Character (wherewith thow shalt be dignified) is prepared; but allso the nature of all other Characters.

To the Second — Δ Conciliation you meane.

Instruments of Conciliation

Δ — The Table is an Instrument of Conciliation

NOTE!

And so are the other 7 Characters: which you call by the name of Tables, squared out into the forme of Armes: which are propre to every King and Prince according to theyre order.

Order

Now to the last: Δ As concerning the ende and determined Operation

Δ — It onely consisteth in the mercy of God, and the Characters of these bokes. For, Behold, As there is nothing that commeth or springeth from God, but it is as God, and hath secret Majesticall, and inexplicable Operation in it: So every letter here bringeth forth the Names of God: But, (in dede), they are but one Name; But according to the Locall and former being, to do comprehend the universall generation corruptible and incorruptible of every thing. It followeth, then, it must nedes comprehend the ende of all things

This boke of 48 Tables

Note of the Names of God.

Generatio {corruptibilis / mor.}

Thy mercy, hitherto.

The Character allso was a false tradition.

The Character is false and divilish

He that dwelleth in the, hath told the, so, long a go

The former Divell, did not onely insinuat him self, but these things I do mervayle, that we had no warning hereof ere now; and that I was often tymes called on, to prepare those things (Character and Table) and yet they were false

Note

Δ — Yf it shold have byn unavoidable to be made, it shold not have byn suffred to ~~pass or~~ pass under the forme of wyckednes.

The Truth is to be gathered upon the first Demonstration (my demonstration and yours* are not all one: you will not be offended with me, Syr.)

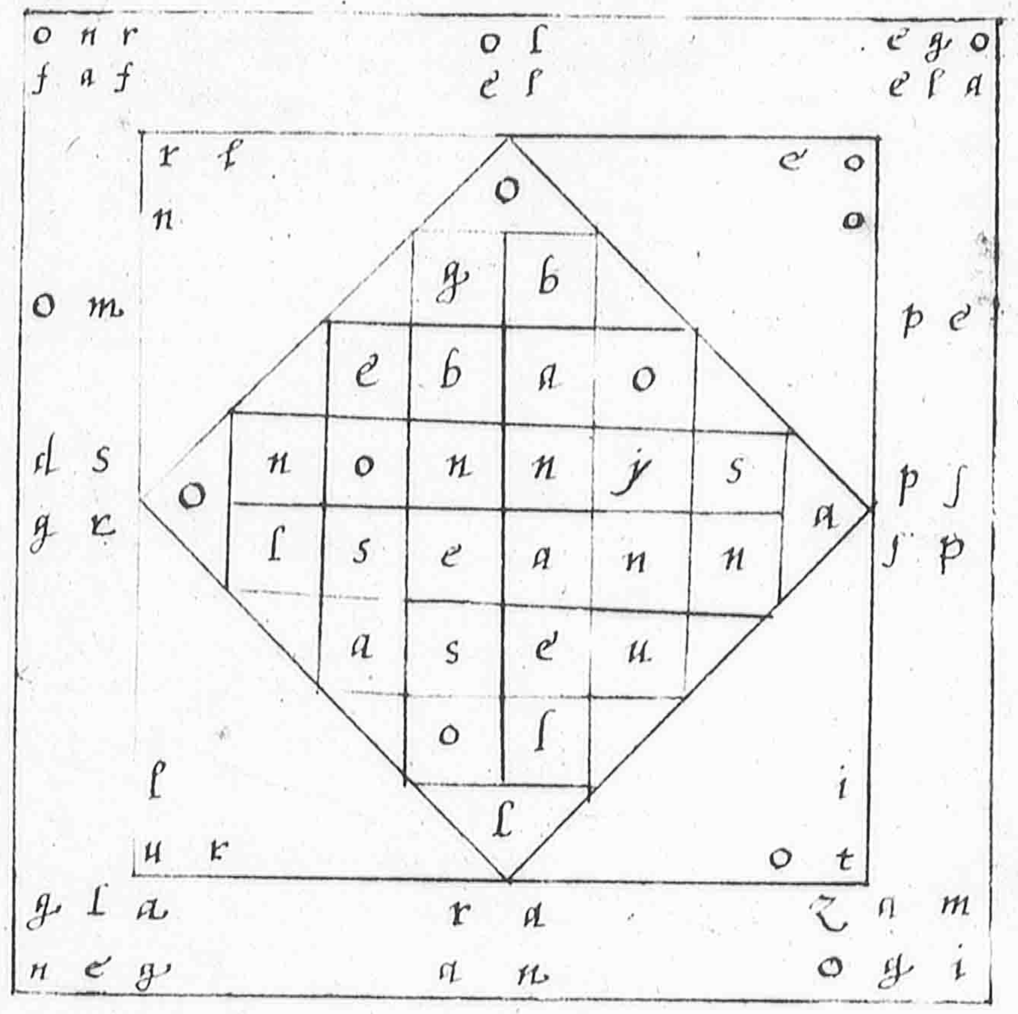
Δ We prayed (vnbidden) in respect of the mysterie reveled.
E.K. was skarse able to abide, or endure the voyce of the spirituall creature, when he spake of these things now: the sownd was so forcible to his hed, that it made it ake vehemently



JL — Set down the kings, and theyr Princes in a table as thow knowest them: with theyr letters bakward: excepting theyr Bees, from the right hand, to the left. Let Bobogel be first, and Bornogo, is his prince.

Δ Deo nostro Omnipotenti perennis Laus sit et immensa gloria. Amen

NOTE (174)

Δ After that these things were finished, and EK rose up from the table and went to the west window, to read a letter which was even then brought him from his wife: which being done, he toke a little prayer boke (in englishe meter made by one William Hunnis which Mr Adrian Gilbert had left here: and it lay on the table by us all the while of this last action) and with this boke, he went into his bed chamber, intending to pray in it, a certayn prayer, which he liked: and as he opened the boke, his ey espied strange writing in the spare white paper at the bokes ende. and beholding it, iudged it verily to be his own letters, and the thing of his own doing: but being assured that he never saw the like of this Character [for Conclusions], and that other, (noted by the Sert or Circle, Skyn and flesh) before this present howre, he became astonied and in great wrath; and behold, suddenly One appered to him and sayd, Lo, this is as good as that other. meaning that, which we had receyved, and I here before sett down on the former page. Hereupon this matter came EK to me, as I was writing down fayre this last Action, and sayd, I have strange matter to impart unto you. Then sayd I, what is that? and at the first (being yet tossed in his mynde with this great iniurie of the subtle supplanter of man, and ambitiously intending him self, to rob god of his glory) he sayd, you shall know. and at length showed me this little paper, here, by, being the one of the white leaves in the ende of the foresayd little prayer boke. And I viewing it, found it to be ment to be the Counterfeit of ours; but with all, imperfect diverse wayes, after the order of our method: though the words, out of which it had sprong had bin geven, and sufficient: and then I laughed at it, and derided the wicked enemy, for his envy, his ass hedded folish ambition, and in dede mere blundering to do any thing well.

To conclude, we found, that with an incredible spede this Divelish figure was written down by some wicked spirit, to bring our perfect doings in doubt with us: thereby eyther to provoke us to utter undue speaches of gods good creatures, or to wavering myndes of the worthyness and goodnes of the same things receyved, and so eyther to leave of, or with faynthearted wavering to proceede. But I contrary (by gods grace) to such inconveniency) was armed with constancie, and confident good hope, that God wold not suffer me, (putting my trust in his goodnes and mercy, to receyve wisdome from him) to be so vilely dealt with all or unkindely or unfatherly used at his hands &c. and entended after supper to make my earnest complaint to the divine Majestie against this wicked intrusion and temptation of the illuding devill. And so we went to supper.

1583. Aprilis 29. Monday. after supper. hora 8a.

Δ prayed / EK prayed

Δ I went into my oratorie, and made a fervent prayer against the spirituall enemy: specially meaning the wicked one who had so suddenly so subtily and so lewdly counterfeted the hand and letters of EK: as by here before declared, and by the thing it self may appere here. Likewise EK on his knees (at the greene cheyre standing before my chymney) did pray: after which prayers ended, I yea, rather, before they were ended, on my behalf, EK espyed a spirituall creature come to my table: whome he toke to be Il: and so, a child, sayd He is here. and thereuppon I cam to my desk, to write as occasion should serve: And before I began to do any thing I rehersed part of my intent, uttred to god by prayer and half turned my speche to the him self, as the cause did seme to require. Thereuppon that spirituall creature, who, as yet had sayd nothing, suddenly used these words ——— I give place to my better.

EK. Then semeth to me Uriel to be come, and Il to be gone away.

Δ Then began that welcome Creature to say thus to say thy.

Vriel

Most abundant and plentifull are the great mercies of God unto them which truely and unfaynedly feare, honor and beleue him
The Lord hath hard thy prayers, and I am VRIEL, and I haue brought the peace of God, which shall from henceforth visit you.

If I had not made this action perfect (sayeth the Lord) and wrought some perfection in you, to the ende you might performe: yea, if I had not had mercie (sayeth the Lord) over the infinite number and multitude of sowles, which are yet to put on the vilenes and corruption of the flesh, Or if it wer not time to loke down, and behold the sorrow of my temple, Yet wold I, for my promiss sake, and the establishing of my Kingdom, verifie my mercy uppon the sonns of men: Whereunto I haue chosen three of you, as the mowthes and Instruments of my determined purpose. Therfore (sayeth the Lorde) Be of stowte and courragious mynde in me, for me, and for my truth sake: And Fear not the assalts of temptation For I haue sayd, I am with you. But as mercy is necessary for those that repent, and faithfully forget theyr offenses, So is Temptation requisite and must ordinarilie follow those, whome it pleaseth him to illuminate with the beams of triumphant sanctification.

Yf Temptation wer not, how shold the sonnes of men (sayeth the Lord) know me to be mercifull? But I am honored in hell, and worshipped with the blasphemies: Pugna erit, vobis autem victoria: yet, albeit, (thus sayeth my message) I will defend you from the cruelltie of these dayes to come and will make you perfect: that perfectly you may begynne in the works of my perfection. But, what? and dost thow (satan) think to triumph? Behold (sayeth the God of Justice) I will banish thy servants from this place and region; and will set stumbling blokes before the feete of thy ministers: Therfore, be it unto thee, as thow hast desired: And be it to this people, and holie place, (as it is the will of god; which I do pronownce) light without darkness, Truth without falshode, rightheousnes without the works of wickednes. I haue pronownced it, and it is done.

But thow, O *yongling (but, old synner,) why dost thow suffer thy blyndeness thus to encrease: or why dost thow not yeld thy lymmes to the service and fullfilling of an aeternall veritie.

Pluck up thy hart: Let it not be hardened. Follow the waye that leadeth to the knowledge of the ende; the open sight of god his word verified, for his kingdoms sake.

You began in Tables, and that of small accompt: But be faithfull: for you shalbe written within Tables of perfect and everlasting remembrance: Considering the truth, which is the message of him which is the fowntayne and life of the true, perfect and most glorious life to come, Follow, Love, and diligently contemplate the mysteries therein.

He that hath done this evill, hath not onely synned against thee, but against God, and against his truth. Judgment is not of me, and therefore I cannot Therfore lay away thy works of youth; and fly from fleshly vanities: yf not uppon Joye and pleasure of this presence, yet for the glorie of him that hath chosen you.

E K had byn carryed away in the wrath of God. if feruent prayer had not byn; as may appere in the begynnyng of this nights Action.

The boke of this Prophesie shall contynue.

Finally, God hath blessed you, and will kepe you from temptation and will be mercifull unto you: and perfect you, for the dignitie of your profession* sake: Which, world without ende, for euer and euer, with us and all creatures, and in the light of his own countenance, be honored

Amen Amen Amen.

Δ Hereuppon I made most humble prayer with harty thanks to our God; for his help, cumfort, and judgment against our enemie, in this case (so greatly concerning his glorie). And at my standing up I understode that Vriel was out of sight to E K. yet I held on my purpose to thank him, and to prayse God for Vriel that his so faithfull ~~and fruitefull~~ ministerie unto his diuine Maiestie, executed to our nedefull comfort in so vehement a temptation.

May 5. Sonday. a meridie hor. 4. the circa.

Δ Forasmuch as, on fryday last, while my frende E K was about writing of the Tables, he was told that the same shold be finished on monday next: and that on Sonday before, (that is to wete, this present Sonday) at after none all doubts shold be ~~and~~ answered; after, the after none had so far passed, as tyll somewhat past 4 of the clok: Then, we fell to prayer, and after a quarter of an howres inuocation to God, and prayers made, E K sayd, here is one. Whome ~~(...)~~ we toke to be Vriel; of hir way, in ... I had layd 20 questions or articles of doubts in writing uppon my desk, open, redy for me to rede (uppon occasion) to our spirituall instructor; he thus began his speche, after I had used a few wordes begynning with this sentence. Beati pedes, euangelizantium pacem etc.

Vriel — The very hyght and true wisdome (which is the somme of my message and will of him that sent me) make you perfect, and stablish those things, which he hath sayd, and hath decreed: and likewise your myndes, that you may be apt vessells to receyue so abundant mercies. Amen.

Δ Amen, per Jesu Christ. Amen.

Vr — This boke, and holy key, which unlocketh the secrets of god his determination, as concerning the begynning, present being, and ende of this world, is so reuerent and holy: that I wonder (I speak in your sense) why it is deliuered to those, that shall decay: So excellent and great are the Mysteries therein conteyned, above the capacitie of man: This boke (I say) shall, to morrow, be finished: One thing excepted: which is the use thereof. Unto the which the Lord hath appoynted a day. But (bycause I will speak to you after the manner of men) See that all things be in a redynes agaynst the first day of August next. Humble your selues nine dayes before: yea, unrip (I say) the cankers of your infected sowles: that you may be apt and meet to understand the secrets, that shalbe deliuered. For why? The Lord hath sent his angels allready to visit the earth, and to gather the synnes thereof to gither, that they may be wayed before him in the balance of Justice: and Then is the tyme that the promise of God, shalbe fulfilled. Dowt not, for, we are good Angells.

This Holy boke

The boke to be finished to morrow.

The day appoynted for the use of this boke Augusti. 1.

Our nine dayes contrition preparatiue

Good Angels.

The Second of the greatest prophesie is this (O ye mortall men) For the first was of him self, that He shold come: And this is from him ~~self~~: in respect of that he will come. Neyther are you to speak the wordes of this testimonie, in one place, or in one people, but, that the Nations of the whole world may knowe that there is a GOD which forgetteth not the truth of his promise, nor the sauegarde of his Chosen, for the greatnes of his glory.

The second of the greatest prophesie, is this.

Our Testimony of this Prophesie, all the world ouer, to be by us published.

Therfore (I say) prepare your bodies: that they may be strong enough for armors of great profe. Of your selfs, you cannot: But desire and it shall be given unto you. For Now, is even that wicked Childe grown up unto perfection: and the fier tungs redy to open his Jaws.

WO therfore shalbe to the Nations of the earth: And WO WO innumerable to those that say, WE YELDE:

Wickednes (o Lorde) is crept up, and hath filled the dores of thy holy sanctuarie: defyled the dwelling places of thy holy Angels: and poysoned the earth, as her own seat.

In 40 dayes more, must this boke be perfyted in his own marks: to the intent that you allso may be perfyted in the Workmanship of him, which hath sealed it.

Oute of this, shall be restored the holy bokes, which have perished even from the begynning, and from the first that Lived. And herein shalbe deciphred perfect truth from imperfect falshode, True religion from fals and damnable errors, With all Artes; which are propre to the use of man, the first and sanctified perfection: Which when it hath spred a while, THEN COMMETH THE ENDE.

Thy Character must have the names of the five Angels written (spread) in the myddst of Sigillum Emeth, graven uppon the other side in a circle. In the myddst whereof, must the stone be, which was allso brought: Wherein, thow shallt, at all times behold (privately to thy self) the state of gods people through the whole ~~world~~ earth.

The fowre fete of the Table must have 4 hollow things of swete wood, whereuppon, they may stand: Within the hollownes wherof, thy seales may be kept unperished.

One month is all, for the use therof.

Thus, sayeth the lord, when I brought you up in likenes of birds, encreasing you, and suffring you to touche the Skyes, ~~and call the sterrs to testimonie therof~~ I opened unto you the ende of your reioysing: For, this Doctrine shall towche the Skyes, and call the sterrs to testimonie therof: And your fotesteps shall viset (allmost) [all] the partes of the ~~world~~ whole World.

The sylk, must be of diverse cullors, the most changeable that can be gotten. For, who, is hable to behold the glory of the seat of God.

Δ I required the perfect forme of the 21 letters, that I might imitate the same in the Table of practise, and in the holy boke writing etc.

Ur. They shall be delivered to morrow.

Δ Whether is the King his Name Bnaspen, or Bnapsen?

Ur. Bnapsen.

Δ The Character or Lamine for me was noted (Nove. 17. A 1582) that it shold conteyne some token of my name: and now, in this (accounted the true Character of Dignification) I perceyve no peculier mark, or letters of my name. (* p. 85)

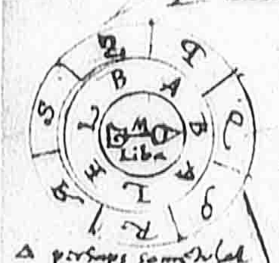
Δ What more uses are there of the great circle or globe, wherein there are capitall letters under the Kings names and charakters: and allso there are other letters with numbers: of which we have receyved no instruction: and moreover of these letters, some are adverse, som reversed, &c.

Vr — The letters turned bak to bak, (being Capitall letters,) ar equally to be divided according to theyr numbers, with a Circle cumpassing the name and Charakter of the King under which they are placed.



Δ perhaps somewhat like this

The other letters, whose greatest number doth not excede 7, are certayn by notes of wicked and evill powres; which cannot, any way, but by the true Store of truth be deciphred from the good. Whereof Notice shall be given at large, by the boke.

The man in the myddst of the globe or circle — He that standeth in the myddst of the globe, signifieth Nature. Whereuppon, in the first point, is the use and practise of this work, that is to say, as concerning the first part. For it is sayde before,

And this hath answered a great dowte.

Δ What is the use of the 7 (tables) lamines (like armes,) and from what grownde are they framed or derived?

The 7 ensignes of creation — Uriel — They are the ensignes of the creation; wherewithall they were created by God knowen onely by theyr acquayntance, and the manner of theyr doings.

Δ Are they to be made in any metall?

Ur — They are to be made in ~~pure tyme~~ purified tyme: And to be used at the time of theyr Call.

At the time of theyr call.

Δ Ar the letters there to be altered into the holy ~~&~~ Alphabet letters or charakters?

Letters to be altred. Ur — Into theyr proper Charakters. Δ May I not use them as they ar, unaltred? Ur — [illegible]

Δ How to be used; hanged or layd?

Ur — To be layd before the uppon the table. Or thow mayst place them (if thow wilt,) contynually at the 7 angles of the Holy Seale: Laying them besides, and against the points or Angles of the Holy Seale: 7 ynches from the utter border of the holy Seale, all at ones: Or els they may be paynted, On the Table.

Δ Have I rightly applyed the dayes to the Kings? (~~101~~ 99) 103

Ur — The dayes are rightly applyed to the Kings.

Befafes — Δ How is this phrase: the fifth of the seventh understode, which Befafes speaketh of him self?

Ur — He speaketh so of him self, in respect that he shall be the fifth that shall be used. In consideration of Nature he is the fifth, although not consequently in the Order of Operation.

Δ It was promised that we shold be instructed, when the Day (in this practise) is to be accounted to begynne.

Ur — It is not to be enquired, which is sufficiently taught, it is a thing most easy, and perfectly delivered.

A.G. — Δ Adrian Gilbert how far, or in what points is he to be made prive of our practise: seing it was sayd, That none shall enter into the Knowledge of these mysteries with me, but onely this worker. Truely the man is very comfortable to our societie.

The same Sonday. ~~#~~ May 5. (after supper) hora 8½

Δ After diverse our eiaculations and pangs of prayer and thanks unto god, this was sayed.

Ur — Be it thus unto you [He prayeth in hidden language.]

Expedition — After this holy boke is finished, then is it necessarie with expedition that the foresayd commaundement, as concerning the fetching of the earth, be fullfilled and performed. And be it unto you as HE will. And HE sayeth thus

My Angel shall be amongst you, and shall direct his iornay: and will bring his feete, even into the place and places, where that erthly filth and Corruption lieth. Behold I will deale mercifully with him: For, Error shall not deceyve him. Notwithstanding what I will have done with it

How the Threasor is to be used.

Or how it shall be bestowed, is yet to be enquired of.

Secret are the determinations, and unsearchable purposes, whereinwith the most mightiest dealeth with worldlings; and loketh into the u[se] and necessarie application of worldly things. Many temptations shall assayle him in following this commandement. But it is sayd, I will be with him. God will deale mercifully with you. This is sufficient.

Yet ones more. If thow haue my doubt herein it shall be satisfyed.

Δ What if he go first to Nubery, and with the erth being taken thence, to procede to the other places noted in the Skroll. And then with the erth of those ten places, the rest of the Skroll, the boke therewith found, and the red consolid thing in the hollow stone, to come directly hither: and then the rest of the peculiar practise for enjoying the promises, to be served. Or how els will you haue him order his iornay?

The Skroll. The Boke. The red powder.

Vr. As thow wilt herein, so shall it be brought to pas.

Δ As concerning the victorious Captayn ^The Lord Albert Laski ~~Alasco~~ the Polake, who so much desyreth my acquayntance, and conference, how shall I use my self, to his best liking, my Contries honor, and my own good Credit?

Albertus Laski, Palatinus Siradiensis venit ex Polonia Londinum 1583. Maij initio

Vr. Remember, it is sayde, that the Princes of the erth shall not discredit, much lesse work thy confusion. He that dwelleth in thee, is above worldes: and shall give the sufficient discretion worldly, in worldly occasions. For, where the blessings of God are, every thing is perfyted.

My good Angel.

Δ As concerning the Chamber for Practise appointed by me, and the half pace whereon the Table standeth, how is it allowed of?

Vr. The place can not sanctifie the Action, but the Action the place. But I answer the, after the manner of men, It is sufficient.

Hereby, may many other answers be considered

Δ The 4 hollow feete for comprehending the 4 lesser Seales, how great ought they to be?

Vr. According to the feete, of the nearest proportion. And so as the heith of the Table, be as it now is.

EK. He semeth now to sit in the ayre: but I perceyve no chayre beneth him.

Δ Are all these things of this dayes Action to be Noted with your name as Vriel?

VRIEL

I am VRIEL, which allwayes will answer untill this Action be finished.

I teache: Be mercifull, thankfull, and mery in him, and for him, for whose name you shall susteyne muche bodyly sadnes: More then my message, I may not. And it is done.

Multa nobis perpetienda propter Deum nostrum Omnipotentem

Δ As

Δ As concerning the vision which yester night was presented unto [me] for to the sight of EK as he sat at supper with me, in my hall, I meane the appering of the very sea, and many ships thereon, and the cutting of the hed of a woman, by a tall blak man, What are we to ymagin therof?

Vr. The One, did signifie the provision of forrayn powres against the Welfare of this land: which they shall shortly put in practise: The Other, the death of the Quene of Scotts: It is not long unto it.

Note the Quene of Scotts to be beheaded. So she was A° 1587 at Fodringam Castell. And allso the same yere a great preparation of ships against England by the King of Spayn the Pope and other princes called Catholik.

The Maiestie of his invisible powre, which overcommeth all things be among you, uppon you, and rest with you for ever. Amen.

EK. At his last words he flung fyre with his hands from him toward us, and it spred it self in the manner of a Crosse.

Δ Gloria sit sempiterna Deo nro Omnipotenti et Æterno

May 6: Monday, I went to London; and EK remayned ~~writing the Tables~~ attending the accomplishing of the promise, for the tables ending and for the perfect forme of the holy letters wayting: which two points when I cam home that after none, I found done.

Note. But it is to be Noted, that, when EK could not aptly imitate the forme of the Characters, or letters, as they were shewed: that then they appered drawen on his paper with a light yelow cullor, which he drew the blak uppon, and so the yelow cullor disapearing there remayned only the shape of the letter in blak: after this manner and in just of this quantitie and proportion.

May 8. Wensday: After dynner hora circiter 4.

The Erthes

Δ Being desyrous to finde all things on my part to be performed, and to lack the Company of EK going for the Erthes (before spoken) and to be away 10 or 12 dayes: and for as much as the boke was to be written in 40 dayes before August next: and uncertayn of those dayes when they shold begynne: and allso for that I wold do all things (gladly) by warranty of Counsayle of our Instructors, I was desyrous to know whether the boke were to be written in paper or parchement: in what cullor the lynes were to be ruled, grene or blew &c. And for divers other doubts, necessary to be dissolved, I was carefull to have had some advertisement. After long prayers of us both, nothing was eyther seen with eye, or hard. Then it came in my hed to set furth the Stone.

The boke

Note the Stone.

EK. sayd, that as sone as he looked into the stone, he saw there the Table, Chayre and three, come into the Stone. Uriel sat down in the Chayre. The other two, inclined theyr body to him reverently: and then stode by; one on the one side of the Chayre; the other on the other side.

The Shepe under the table

The sydes of the Table cloth were turned up, and a thing like an yong Shepe, bigger then a Lamb, appered under the Table. Then they two did knele before Uriel and sayd, Verus et Sanctus et sempiternus.

Δ Then they rose agayn. and they semed to have talk, or Conference together. and thereuppon Uriel sayd VR Be it so, bycause powre is given unto him.

A Temptation permitted by God.

EK. The Table, Chayre and all the three do disapere: and thereuppon immediately appered in the stone a fayr Pallace: and out of the pallace cam a tall well favored man, very richely apparayled with a brave hat and a fether on his hed: and after him followed a great number, all like curtiers. and this brave man sayd [Man] — How pitifull a thing is it, when the wise, are deluded?

Δ — I smell the smoke; procede Syr, in your purpose.

[Man] — I come hither, for the desyre I have to do the good.

Δ — Come you, or are you sent. Tell the truthe I charge thee, in the name and by the powre of the eternall Truthe.

Δ Note: After I perceyved evidently that it was a wicked tempter, who had powre permitted him at this instant, I began with some zeale and ernestnes to rebuke, and to charge him. But he stiffly and stoutely did contemne me a good while, mock me, and at lengthe threaten to destroy me, my wife and children &c.

Δ Thereuppon made my ernest prayers to god agaynst this spirituall enemy: but he in the myddle of my prayers, sayed thus [Man] — As truely as the Lord lyveth, all that is done, is lies

Δ That, thy sentence, will I record agaynst thee; to be layde to thy charge at the dredfull day.

Δ After this great turmoyle past, was this voyce following, hard of EK.

A voyce — Pereant tenebræ, cum Principe Tenebrarum

Δ All went suddenly out of sight, Prince and pallace and all. And the Chayre and Table and Uriel appeared agayne

VR —

(1414) 5

Vr: Temptations & hinderances

Vr — Arme your selves; for, great shall be the temptations folowing. You shall be hindred, in all, that may be.

Δ — Nothing can hinder god his determined purposes.

Vr: — Man may hinder his owne salvation. ~~144~~

Fullfill those things that are commanded.

The forme of the boke committed to my discretion

Forme, and write the boke after thyne own Iudgment. 105

God his determination is iust; therefore putto your hands

More then hath byn sayd, and more playnely; cannot be uttred.

His works are true, for, and to the ende.

Δ Forasmuch as expedition is to be made for the erthes fetching and divers other things: and we have made assay to get an horse: But we could get none as we wold: And without somme better provision of mony then we have, we cannot redress the case: Therefore, if it might pleas god, that of the ten places Noted, we might have but the possession of the smallest of them, delivered here, unto us, at this present, it might greatly pleasure us.

Vr — Will these worldlings hold on in theyr iniquitie?

EK They pulle the leggs of the Table away, and seme to carry all away in a bundell like a clowde. and so disapered utterly.

Δ Hereuppon I was exceding sorrowfull: and betoke my self to a lamentable pang of prayer.

Δ After long prayer, appeared in the stone a thing like a Tunge. all on fyre, thus hanging downward and from it cam this voyce

Tung — Thow hast delivered thy self into the desires of thy hart, and hast done that which is not Convenient.

Thow hast spoken iniquitie, and therefore dothe the veritie of Gods doings by us, decay, in your wickedness.

Δ I dowt of the veritie of that tung.

Tung — Man (o God) beleveth him self in his owne Imagination

Therefore wipe our bokes from the face of the erthe

And Iustifie our doings, where we lawde and prayse thee.

Δ I becam more abashed of my former speche, and perceyved my Error: axed forgivenes bitterly at the Lord his hand. and at lengthe it was sayde

Tung — Do that, which is commaunded, the Lord is iust.

Δ O Lord, forgive me my trespaces, and deale not with me according to Iustice: for, then I, and all mankinde shall utterly perish: unleast thy mercy be our safegard, destruction is our desert.

Tung — It is forgiven: but it shall be punished.

EK The tung mounted up toward heven, and he saw it in the ayre out and above the stone. above a hand bredth, mounting upward

Δ Thy Name be prayse, in Æternitie, O god Amen

Δ Hereuppon

Hereuppon, I was in an exceding great heuines, and sorrow of mynde, sundry tymes, bewayled my case to God: and promised a great care hence forward, of governing my tong: and consenting to no unlawfull or inconvenient desire of my hart: yea, to forbeare to accompany with my own wife, carnally: otherwise then by his only leave and permission, or if uppon any protestation making in the hearing of the contrary that unless the Lord order and redress my cause, I shall be overcome: that if I shall, so deliberately call for help, and not withstanding be entrapped that then, such trespace, shall not be imputed unto me, as gladly, greedily or willingly committed of me. &c.

May 9. Holly Thursday in the morning.

△ Being desyrous (before E. K. his going down into the countrie) to have some comfort and token of free forgiuenes at Gods hands I brought forth the stone. Then I went into my Oratorie first requesting the Almightie God to respect the harty sorrowfull paynes that I had endured for my offenses, and the desyre and intent of my better heede taking hence forward and prayed the 22 Psalm. in the conclusion of the prayer.

&c. E. K. — One, all in white, appeareth in the stone, who sayde

* forte Amaël — It is written: It is written: yea, it is written: Even as the father his compassion is great over his younglings and Children: So, is the abundance of thy mercy (O Lord) great and unspeakable to the long offences and sinnes of thy servant. For, it is written, The light of thy eyes have beheld those that feare the: and those that trust in thy mercy, shall not be confounded.

Be it, what it was: And be you what you were: For, the Lord, is even the same, that he was, before:

But be you warned.

Misericordia Dei. Behold, my armes ar longer then my body, and I have eyes round about me: I am that, which of GOD pronounceth uppon you: Be it as I have sayde.

△ Thereuppon he disapered; and immediately, appered Uriel, who sayd

Ur. — Actum est. △ Then the other two, and the Table and Chayre, and the ancient furniture appeared, agayn restored, and more beautifull, then in foretyme.

NOTE

Ur. — Thus, sayeth the Lord: Even as the tabernacle which I restore, is ten times brighter then it was, So may your worthynes deserve brightnes ten tymes greater then this. The rising of synners doth greatly reioyce us [and] That he hath sayde, Do good unto those that feare me: and defend them, bycause they know my name. For in Justice, they fiat.

Before we say, In thy name (O thou most highest) fiat.

Justifie not your self:

Be Humble and diligent:

Continue to the ende. For great is the reward of them that feare the Lorde stedfastly.

△ Whereas the ordring of the boke is referred to my iudgment: in my mynde it semeth requisite, that as all the writing and reding of that holy language is from the right hand to the left, So the begynning of the boke must be (as it were, in respect of our most usuall manner of bokes, in all languages of Latin, greke, englishe &c.) at the ende of the boke: and the ende, at the begynning, as in the hebrue bible. Secondly the first leaf can not be written in such little and equall squares, as all the rest of the 47 leaves are: bycause, the first leafe, except 9 lines (of the second page) thereof: is all of words: some conteyning many letters, and some few, very diversly: Wherfore, I entend to make many leaves, so to distinguish the 49 rowes of the first leafe: and at the ende of every word to drawe a line of partition, up and down, betwene the two next parallell lines. &c. or as shall come in my mynde then.

Be boke. Note

Ur. — He, that sayeth, DO this, directeth thy Judgment.

E. K. Now is there a veale drawen before all: and all things apper far beautifuller then ever they did.

△ I rendred thanks to the highest, and became in mynde very joyfull, that the Lord had pardoned my offenses: whose name be praysed, extolled and magnifyed world without ende. Amen.

I prayed after this the short psalme Jubilate Deo quotquot in terra versamini &c.

E. K., immediatly was to take bote and so to go to London: there to buy a saddell, brydle, and bote hose: for he had (here) yesterday, bought a pretty dun nagge, of goodman Pentecost: for iij li, redy mony, or thereabout. God be his guyde, help, and defense

Amen.

Sunday. May 23. Circa 10 1/2 mane. (108)

Δ EK being come home yesterday ~~to his wif~~ againe & hauing the erthes of [illegible] plates before specified: we being desirous to vnderstand of the vse therof, and in other matters ~~pertey~~ perteyning to our Actions in hand: I made prayer to that intent, both in my oratory and at my desk, rendring thanks for EK his safe returne, and for the benefit receyved of late of the Governor and Assistants of the Mines Royall. Which I perceyved, was the extraordinary working of God, for the inward perswasion, being very vnwilling so to let the lease, as I obteyned it: and making somwhat touching Albert Lasky.
At length, EK heard a melody a far of, and the voyce of many, singing, these words

Pinzu-a lephe ganiurax kelpadman pacaps

Δ At the length, the curten was taken away, and there apered a clere white fume but not fyre.
After that, cam the three, which were wont to come in.

Michael — Gravida est terra, laborat iniquitatibus inimicorum Lucis.
— Maledicta ~~est~~ igitur est, quia quod in vtero perditionis et tenebrarum est.

Vriel — Sordida est, et odiosa nobis.

Raphael — Proprijs sese flagellat tremulis.

EK. They loke about them, as though they looked for somwhat or at somwhat.

Rap — Vos dicit, sed non est qui audiat
Gemunt [illegible] vidimus, sed non est, qui misereat.
Sanctificemur igitur, Sanctum eius; quia [illegible] sanctificamur in illo Mich. — Fiat.

EK. He plucketh all the wall hanginges down about the place, and now they take the table away, and the Chayre: And where the Chayre was, semeth a Canapy or cloth of state to hang.

Michael. — Transeunt vetera, Incipiunt nova.

EK. Now seme like clowdes to come about the Canapy being very bewtifull: and the bottom or flowr of the place, all covered with pretious stones: and in the middle therof, a rownd thing, like a Carbuncle stone, bigger then ones fist.

Mi — This? [they sayd, poynting about the stone.]
Vriel — That Rap — We

EK. They bring in a Throne like a Iudges seat or throne and set it vp, with the bak of it to the wall.

Mich — Be it covered for a season: For ever and ever and (109)

~~That~~ and ever is thy Iustice, O GOD: [all three sayd] [EK. And there ~~they~~ come light fyre flasshing from the Throne.]

107

There commeth a beame from the Throne, and thrusteth Raphael his hed, and semeth to come out at his mowth. The other two seme to knele downe: Michael on his right hand, and Vriel on his left.

Raphael. — I will speak, O Lord: bycause it is iust that thow hast commanded.
Your rasshnes o worldlings, is trodden vnder fote: He sayeth, I say not: your synns are forgiuen

Δ O blessed God; ô prayse we his mercy for ever: ô comfortable newes Raph. — For, whome I will visit, those do I clense (sayeth the Lord) When other thinges decay by reason of their age and filthynes, (quae nunc sunt in summo gradu,) and I will not suffer them to move one fote farder (sayeth the Lord) Then shall your branches begyn to appere: And I will make you florish, for my glories sake. And my testimonies are true, and the wordes of my covenant iust: My pathes are thorny, but my dwelling place, is comfortable. ~~And lift vp your harts, as from the strength of another~~ ~~But be you vnto me~~. My hand is hevy, but my help is great. Be ye comforted in me: for from me, in my self, I am your comforter: and lift vp your harts as from the strength of an other. But be you vnto me a new people: bycause I am to you no new god. Dwell with me to the ende bycause I have byn with you from the begynning. For whosoever shall arrise agaynst you (Behold) I am with you.

{ Your fathers lived in darknes, and yet were deluded
{ yea your fathers were in light, and yet they saw not Truth
{ But I will be knowen: yea the Nations vpon erth, shall say { Lo this is he, whome we have rysen agaynst I AM. therfore very

All three [sayd] We perish o lord for our vnrighteousnes sake. [and there they fell down] But in thee we were created and in thee we rise agayn: Huseh Huseh Huseh garmal, Peleh Peleh Peleh pacad uasam.

Gyrd your gyrdles togither and pluck vp your myndes: I say open your eyes: and yf you have eares, heare: for we tremble and quake. This mercy was never: no not in Israel.

Behold you thanked God, and it is accepted.

I say, Although we require speach of the end of you: yet . . .
. . . speach of us, you have a Master, we are his and both are Schollars, without us you could not heare him: [illegible] we heare him of our selves.

(margin: require none of Gods hands in this case.)

Consider the first, respect the second: Measure your selves, as the third.

For what you were & shalbe is already appointed
And what He was, is and shalbe, it is not of our determination.
His purposes are without ende: yet, to an ende; in you to an ende.
Therfore when you shall be called uppon, DO, that which is commaunded! But appoint no forme unto god his building. Many wyndes are to come: but they [illegible] [illegible] rayne: It is sayd: The Conquest shalbe yours.

(margin: Note we shall be called upon.)

To the purpose. Who put up this princes father with desire to visit these contries: or who hath prevented him: even he that hath provided him a sonne, as an arme unto his cheston.

Truely the hills shalbe covered with blud: The valleys shall take up the cedar trees unframed: He seeth these places, but knoweth not to what ende. He is dead, in respect of his absence But somme [illegible] him, whome God hath sanctified. -- For, Behold the Lord hath sayd: Thow shalt govern me a people [illegible] is prefixed: and it is the course of thy somme [illegible] sayd unto him, O King.

(margin: Albertus Lasky; The dead man; Prophetia de regno Alberti a Lasky. Sed ... Deo.)

When you seemed to be carryed unto [illegible], you [illegible]
Behold (sayeth HE) Fornication shall not prevayle.
the very stones shall be taken away: and the valleys shalbe covered with blud: and their daily banket shall be wo wo.

(margin: Fornication)

Whatsoever thow takest in hand First Loke up. See if it be Just: Yf it be, put forth thy hand: for it is graunted.

(margin: Iusta facienda.)

It is sayed, I have given the power, and thy persuasion shall be like fire: And for my names sake, thow shalt triumph against the mightiest. But beware of Pride.

(margin: Persuasion)

Many witches and enchaunters, yea many divels have risen up against this stranger, and they have sayd, We will prevayle against him: for why? There is one, that aspireth: and the [illegible] is, that seketh his confusion. But I will graunt him his desire. He shall do good with many. Your names are in one boke. Feare not, therfore; Love together.

(margin: Alb. Lasky; Alb. Lasky his name is in the boke with our names)

There shall arise, saying, [illegible] will drive them from the [illegible]

All men like [illegible] . . . [illegible] it is glorified
Happy are they whose faces are marked, and in whom (margin: Faces marked)

I will move the Prince, sayeth the Lord: He shall shortly say, O give me Cownsayle: for they cownsayled me, conspire against me:

Behold, such as showed the little frendeship, are rather such dede (as thow iustly hast confessed) as were forced to do good. I say they begyn to repine at that they have Let those which are of tyme, yelde to time. [illegible]

The everlasting cumfort of grace, and perfect love be amongst you: to the honor and glory of him that loveth you.

Beleve, for the teacher his sake:
All thow demaundest, is aunswered.

Of our selves (we say) We desire to be with you:
And what is of us, the same be it unto you.

The Book of Enoch revealed to Dr. John Dee by the Angels.

This writing begining (not at [Arney Vah̃ey] but) at Oxar Varmos &c. is the 2d Page of the first Leaf of the famous Book shown in the Stone, wch consisted of 49. lines or Rows. ~~&~~ every Row of 49. words or Letters. The first 40. of this Page have a Word in every little Square. wch could not wel be contained in the little Cells of a square ~~table~~ in this Book — Therefore they are writ thus at large as you see

But the 9. last Rows of this Page had but one Letter a piece, & are accordingly set down at the end hereof — pag. 5.

All the other Leaves of that Book had but a single Letter in each little square. & So they are set down, as hereafter follows in this Book — Vide. l. 5. MS. pag. 142. 143. &c.

The first Page of that first Leaf is not (as ~~they ought~~ it ought to be) transcribed here before this 2d Page. save only the 49. or last Row. begining (Arney Vah̃. &c.) But they may be seen (if thought fit) copied out thence in l. 5to MS. p. 150. 151. &c.

De HEPTARCHIA MYSTICA, Divinis ipsius Creationis, Stat[illegible] legibus, Collectaneorum Liber primus.

Cap. 1.

Of the Title, and generall Contents of this boke, some nedefull Testimonies

Beware of wavering: Blot owte suspition of vs; for we are gods Creatures that have Raigned, do Raigne, and shall Raigne for ever. All our Mysteries shalbe knowen unto you. &c.

Behold, these things and theyre Mysteries, shalbe knowen unto you: Describing the Secrete of him, that Raigneth for ever [the voyce of a multitude answered, singing] Whose Name, is great for ever.

Open your eyes, and you shall see from the highest to the lowest. The peace of God be uppon you.

Venite, gradatim repetamus Opera Dei: &c

Unus est Deus, et unum est opus nostrum.

Nota. A lib° Creationis. 1. Principes loquebantur magnalia Dei; Secundo, Reges maxime hoc faciunt.

A Note. Very many came uppon the [illegible] superficies of the Transparent Globe, and sayd, Parati sumus servire Deo nostro.

This work shall have relation to tyme present, and present use. To Mysteries far exceding it: And finally to a purpose [illegible]: wherby the Majestie and Name of God, shall and may, and of force, must appeare with the Apparition of his wonders, and Mervayles yet unhard of. Dixi

A Note. As Michael and Uriel, at the begynning of these reveled mysteries, were present, and gave Authoritie to Carmara, to order the whole Heptarchicall Revelation; So, at the conclusion, they appeared agayn [illegible]

[illegible]

Conciliation — To the Second — Δ — Conciliation, you meane.
Ur — The Table is an Instrument of Conciliation. And so are the other 7 Characters, which they call the Name of the Table: Engraved out of the frame of names: which are proper to euery King and Prince, according to their order.
Note to the last — Δ — As concerning the other Characters Operation — Ur — It onely consisteth in the Mercy of God, & the Characters of these bokes. Ho.
Set downe the Kings, and their Princes, in a Table, as they ... them: with their letters backwards (excepting their Bees) from the right hand to the left. Let Bobogel be the first, and Bornogo his Prince. Ho.

Δ Note, how it may appeare that Butmono is Prince to Bynepor, and Blisdon prince to King Baspalo.

Δ Note. So, in my Characters or Langage of Diuine Seales: are all the names of the 7 Kings, and of the 7 Princes, perfectly as in the great Table, (called otherwise Mensa foederis) the Bees, only, being the first letter common to them all, left out, in memory.

De sigillo Æmeth; alias vocato Sigillo Dei.

Michael 1582 Martij 19.

Michael — I will shew thee in the might and strength of God, what his Mysteries are: This true Circle of his Æternitie: comprehending all Vertue: The Whole and Eternall Trinitie: O holy be he: O holy be he: O holy be he.
Δ — Uriel answered, Amen.
Mich — Note, what will follow? — Δ — I will set them according to the Matter in them.
Mich — Divide this outward circle into 40 equall parts: whose greatest numbers are 4. Do it presently — Δ I did so. dividing it first into 4: and then every of them into 10.
Δ — He called one by name Semiel. One came in, and kneeled down, and great fire came out of his mouth, Michael sayd, To him are the Mysteries of these Tables knowen. Michael sayd, Semiel (agayne) and by and by the answered O God thou hast sayde, and thou liuest for euer. Semiel stode up and flaming fire came out of his mouth, and then he sayde, as followeth.
Semiel — Mighty Lord, what wouldst thou with the Table?
Michael — It is the will of God, thou fetch them hither.
Sem — I am his Table. Behold, these are the Tables, Lo where they are.
Δ. There came in 40 white Creatures, all in white silk long robes; And they they like children. And all they falling on their knees, sayde:

Thou onely art Holy among the Highest: O god, thy Name be blessed for euer.
Δ — Michael stode up out of his chayre: and by and by all his body seemed to be like a great Pillar of Brasse: the ... as he went to ... And his sword was all on fire: And he stroke or drew his sword over all these 40 their heds. The Earth quaked. And they fell downe. And Michael called Semiel with a thundring voyce: and sayde, Declare the Mystery of the Living God: our God: of One Substance for euer.
Sem — I am ready
Δ — Michael stroke over them with his sword: and they all fell downe and Uriel allso on his knees. And commonly at the striking with the sword, flaming fire, like lightening, did ... all.
Michael — Note, Here is a Mystery.
Δ — Then stept forth, One of these 40, from the rest: & opened his brest, which was covered with silk, and there appeared a great T all of gold.
Michael — Note the number — Δ — Over the T, stode the Number of 4 on this fashion $\overset{4}{T}$
Δ — The 40, cryed, ... and Multiplyeth for euer: Blessed be his Name.
Δ — That Creature did shut up his bosome, and vanished away like a fire.
Michael — Place that in the first place: It is the Name of God.
Δ — Then there seemed a great Clap of thunder to be.

And so forth: And note that the whole second boke is nothing else but the Mysteries most Mervaylous of Sigillum Dei: otherwise called Sigillum Æmeth. [illegible]
Note farder, Almost all the third boke, was of the 7 Ensignes of Creation. whereof mention was there before made.

Δ — The chayre, was brought in agayne and I asked what it ment.
Uriel — This is a Seat of perfection: from which, Things shalbe shewed unto thee, which thou hast long desyred.
Δ — Then was a square Table brought into the Stone. and I demanded, what that Table betokened.
Uriel — A Mystery not yet to be knowne. These two shall remayne in the stone, to the sight of all undefyled Creatures.

And whereas, it hath pleased the, (O God,) of thy infinite Goodnes, by thy faithfull, and holy Spirituall Messagers, to deliver vnto me, long since, (through the eye, and eare of E.K.) An Orderlie forme, and manner of Exercise HEPTARCHICAL: How, (to thy Honor and Glory, and the Comfort of my owne poore sowle, and of others thy faithfull servants,) I may, at all tymes, vse very many of thy good Angels, their Cownsailes and helps; according to the proprieties of such their Functions, and Offices, as to them, by thy Diuine Powre, wisdome and Goodnes, is assigned, and Limited: Which Orderly forme, and manner of Exercise, Vntyll even now, I never fownd so vrgent Opportunitie, and extream Necessitie, to apply my self vnto, Therefore, I thy poore, and Simple Servant, do, most humbly, hartylie, and faithfully beseche thy Diuine Maiestie, most lovingly and fatherly to favor: and by thy Diuine Beck to further this my present industrie and endevour to Exercise my self, according to the foresaid Orderly forme and manner: And, Now, At length, but not to late, for thy dearly beloved Sonne IESVS CHRIST his sake, (O Heavenly Father,) to grant allso vnto me, this blessing and portion of thy heavenly Graces: That thow wilt furthwith, enable me, make me apt, and Acceptable, (in body, sowle, and Spirit,) to enioye allwayes the Holy and frendely Conversation, with the Sensible, playne, full, and perfect help, in word, and dede, of thy Mighty, wise, and Good Spirituall Messagers and Ministers Generally: And, Namely, of Blessed Michael, Blessed Gabriel, Blessed Raphael, and Blessed Vriel: And, Allso Especially, of all

And in this thy great Mercie, and Grace, on me bestowed, and to me Confirmed, (Ô Almighty God,) thou shalt, (to the great cumfort of thy faithfull Servants,) approve, to thy very enemies, and myne, the Truth and certaintie of thy manifold most mercifull promises, heretofore, made unto me: And that thou, arte the True and Almighty God, Creator of Heaven and Earth, (Uppon whome, I do call: and in whome, I put all my trust.) The Enochian Cleansing Bath Ritual

Step 1:

Take a hot shower to get the dirt off of your body.

Step 2:

Run a warm bath and add some bath salts or epsom salts and some nicely scented oil or perfume.

Step 3:

Get in the water and soak for a few minutes, making sure you slowly splash water on the upper part of your body. Now, feel all of your problems, worries and negativity going into the water.

Step 4:

Pull the plug and let the water drain "while you stay in the water." As the water slowly drains, you will feel all the negative things which were troubling you go down the drain with the water. "REMAIN IN THE TUB UNTIL ALL THE WATER IS GONE."

Step 5:

Get out of the tub and allow your body to AIR DRY. (If you are pressed for time, you may dry off with a clean, fresh towel. However, "air-drying" is more beneficial.)

Step 6:

While "air-drying" meditate on the upcoming ritual you are going to perform.

Step 7:

When "DRY" wrap your body in a towel or a clean robe and then proceed to the altar area. Since you will performing this ritual alone, immediately discard the towel or robe.

Step 8:

Sit down in the chair and relax for a few moments. Once you feel totally relaxed and comfortable proceed with the Enochian Seven-Fold Breath Ritual.

The Enochian Closing Ritual #1

Step 5:

Touch both hands together on your right breast and say: PAID (Pah-ee-deh).

Step 6:

Pick up the Wand from the Altar with your right hand. Turn to the East, trace the yellow Banishing Pentagram of Air before you with the Wand, and say:

Step 7:

Turn to the South, trace the red Banishing Pentagram of Fire before you with the Wand, and say: BITOM (Bee-toh-meh):

Step 8:

Step 10:

Step 67:

Touch your left shoulder and say: BUZD (Bueh-zeh-deh).

Step 68:

Touch both hands together on your right breast and say: PAID (Pah-ee-deh).

Step 69:

Stand quietly for several minutes to feel the energy you have just put into action.

Perform the Enochian Invoking Hexagram Ritual.

Step 70:

Face your Altar. Pick up your Wand with your right hand. Stand with your feet together, your left arm down at your side and your right arm across your body holding your Wand upright in front of you.

Step 71:

Turn to the East and say: IVITDT (Ee-veh-ee-teh-deh-teh) while tracing a Yellow Invoking Hexagram of Air before you. (Vibrate one letter of this six-lettered formula as you trace a corresponding side of the Hexagram.):

Then say:

"Behold the Burning Flames of Truth the consume sorrow, sin and death."

Step 72:

Turn to the South and say: ZTZTZT (Zeh-teh-zeh-teh-zeh-teh) while tracing the Red

Invoking Hexagram of Fire before you. (Vibrate one letter of this six-lettered formula as you trace a corresponding side of the Hexagram.)

Then say:

"Behold, the Way of Love is to Sacrifice All into the Cup."

Step 74:

Turn to the West and say: IVITDT (Ee-veh-ee-teh-deh-teh) while tracing the Blue Invoking Hexagram of Water before you. (Vibrate one letter of this six-lettered formula as you trace a corresponding side of the Hexagram.)

Then say:

"Behold, the Burning Flames of Truth that consume sorrow, sin and death."

Step 75:

Turn to the North and say: ZTZTZT (Zeh-teh-zeh-teh-zeh-teh) while tracing the Black Invoking Hexagram of Earth before you. (Vibrate one letter of this six-lettered formula as you trace a corresponding side of the Hexagram.).

Then say:

"Behold, the Way of Love is to Sacrifice All into the Cup."

Step 76:

While still facing North, extend your arms outward to your sides to form a cross. The Wand should be pointing straight up in your right hand. Then say:

Before Me MOR-DIAL-HKTGA (Moh-reh Dee-ah-leh Heh-keh-teh-gah)

Behind Me OIP-TEAA-PDOKE (Oh-ee-peh The-ah-ah Peh-doh-keh)

On My Right ORO-IBAH-AOZPI (Oh-roh Ee-bah-heh Ah-oh-zeh-pee)

On My Left MPH-ARSL-GAIOL (Meh-peh-heh Ah-reh-seh-leh Gah-ee-oh-leh)

"Above me and below me,

My Magickal Universe,

And behold, I alone

in the midst."

Step 77:

While still facing the North, replace the Wand on the Altar. Relax your arms and hold them down to your sides. Stand quietly for several minutes with your eyes closed and feel the energy that you have just put into action.

Step 78:

PERFORM YOUR DESIRED INTENTIONS.

Reincarnation Ritual

INTRODUCTION. This operation, if properly conducted, will allow you to experience the general states of consciousness encountered during the transition period between death from one life, and birth into the next life. It includes eight distinct stages of consciousness, four in the direction of the spiritual plane through the four Watchtowers, and four in a return descent back toward the physical plane. The upward ascent is governed by the goddess Alobabn (especially in her aspect of Nephthys, Egyptian goddess of dispersion). The downward descent is governed by Abalobn (especially in her aspect of Isis, the Egyptian goddess of fruitful manifestation). Together, these two goddesses (known in Egypt as the Uraius Goddesses) direct the birth and birth processes under the god Osiris. This magical operation consists of traveling in the Spirit Vision through the four Watchtowers. The first four locations represent the normal transition experienced by consciousness after death of the physical body. The second four locations represent the normal transition experienced by consciousness prior to rebirth in a new physical body.

PREPARATIONS. Initial preparations are left to the student. It is suggested that you sit comfortably facing North. You may want to construct and consecrate a circle to work within. In any case, this operation assumes a high degree in magical attainment, and the ability to travel in the Body of Light is prerequisite.

STEP 1. Enter your Body of Light and travel to the Square L of MSAL in the subquadrant Fire of Earth.

Comment. This Square contains the dangerous Archangel, ALMSA, the deadly Angel LMSA, and the terrible feminine Demon ALM. All of these are dangerous and deadly to physical matter. Their nature, like that of the ruling goddess Alobabn (Nephthys), is to reduce all aggregates into their constituent parts. If you are attached to worldly things, then this Square will bring pain and suffering. The atmosphere pervading this region is one of death and destruction. LMSA is usually seen carrying a huge Sword which he uses to sever the Silver Cord that attaches consciousness to the physical body. You must not allow him to cut your own Silver Cord.

STEP 2. Travel to the Square N of XPKN in the subquadrant Fire of Water.

Comment. This Square continues the theme of death. Here you will confront the mighty Archangel ANXPK, the destructive Angel NXPK, and the powerful Demon ANX. The atmosphere here purges emotions of all kinds. Emotions, especially desires and fears, will be confronted here in great intensity until they finally loose their meaning. The processes within this Square are somewhat similar to those of the Kama-Loka of Theosophy. NXPK usually carries a heavy Sword which he uses to hack the astral body until no emotions are left intact. You must command NXPK to let you pass unharmed.

STEP 3. Travel to the second Square A of AKKA in the subquadrant Fire of Air.

Comment. This Square contains the Archangel PAAKK who binds up those who enter here into isolated shells (a condensation of the outer surface of the aura). The Angel AAKK causes the unfulfilled desires of all who enter here to be seen, reflected in great detail on the inner surface of the auric shell. Together these ruling deities cause a state of intense reflectivity, a reliving of pleasant past experiences. Those who enter here become absorbed in vivid dreams. The Demon PAA will encourage you to pamper your ego as much as possible. This often leads to dreams of being a hero/heroine, possessed of great wealth, and so on, depending on your unfulfilled desires. This processes within this Square are similar to the early stages of the devachan of theosophy. You must command PAAKK and AAKK to let you pass through this region safely.

STEP 4. Travel to the Square E of ADRE in the subquadrant Fire of Fire.

Comment. Here you will confront the Archangel MEADR who sits in final judgement of those who enter here after death. The Angel EADR is his advisor, and his advice is always the result of understanding and wisdom. The feminine Demon MEA will tempt you to regret your past actions and words, and lead you to sorrow and guilt if she can. In this region, the past life is assimilated, and lessons learned are stored in the causal body. It is similar to the latter stages of the devachan of theosophy. You will need to command MEA to stand clear and remain silent until you pass safely through this region.

STEP 5. Transfer within the Watchtower of Fire to the Square R of RGAN in the subquadrant Earth of Fire.

Comment. In this Square you will meet the fiery Archangel ORGAN, the ravaging Angel RGAN, and the perverted Demon ORG. The atmosphere of this Square is charged with determination. One who is here will soon become determined to return to the physical plane, to right past wrongs, and to try to improve himself or herself (consciousness in this Square is not especially sexually oriented). RGAN helps you to see yourself as you really are, without self-deception. ORG often suggests that one make sacrifices that are not really necessary and he will have to be controlled while you pass through this region.

STEP 6. Travel to the Square S of SHAL in the subquadrant Earth of Air.

Comment. Here you will confront RSHAL, the Archangel who must always be obeyed. One who confronts RSHAL is committed to reincarnating. The Angel SHAL will also come before you as an agent of karmic retribution. The Demon RSH will cause you to forget your past lives so that you can give your full concentration to the upcoming one. Although demonic in a sense, forgetting the past, especially past mistakes and sorrows, is a blessing in many ways. You must control all of these deities to pass safely through this region.

STEP 7. Travel to the Square X of XRNH in the subquadrant Earth of Water.

Comment. In this region the Archangel MXRNH demands peace. The entire atmosphere is thick with peace. The Angel XRNH will help you to establish a new sense of identity in preparation for the next life. He does this in accordance with your karma, and with those mental and emotional characteristics that you shed during the first three steps of this yoga. In this way, the new personality will largely share the traits of the past. The Demon MXR will try to confuse you, and will try to negate your resolves. The outcome of passing through this region is that one will have assumed the basic characteristics of a new and as yet undeveloped human personality. To avoid this happening to you at this time, you must be able to control the deities in this region.

STEP 8. Travel to the Square A of AXIR in the subquadrant Earth of Earth.

Comment. Here you will confront the creative Archangel TAXIR, the inventive Angel AXIR (reference his evocation ritual in AN ADVANCED GUIDE TO ENOCHIAN MAGICK) and the shifting Demon TAX. This region is one of formative forces. The atmosphere is charged with creativity. It represents the final stage of consciousness prior to physical birth. It is the fetal stage within the mother's womb. The Demon TAX will suggest birth before the new body is ready, or at an inappropriate time rather than the proper time, which is set karmically to correlate your new personality with prevailing astrological conditions. If that doesn't work, he will often suggest that birth is a fearful and unpleasant experience and advise you to stay within the safety of the womb. These deities must be controlled in order to pass safely through this region.

STEP 9. Return to your physical body.

Comment. An appropriate banishing ritual is not always necessary, but is recommended for the first several times to break the psychic links with death that this operation can establish.

Ritual Of The Abyss

STEP 1. Assume the god-form of TORZOXI, one of the Governors of the 19th Aethyr, POP. He stands tall and thin with a large fire opal in his right hand, charged with the power of life and death. He wears the magical Apron of TORZOXI which provides protection from all outside influences. His body glows with shimmering beams of purple and violet.

STEP 2. Rise up through the Aethyrs beginning with TEX.

TEX. This is the lowest Aethyr. It is located in the lower region of the Watchtower of Earth.

RII. This Aethyr is located in the higher regions of the Watchtower of Earth. It contains the heavens of the world's religions.

BAG. The 28th Aethyr is located in the lowest region of the Watchtower of Water. It is pervaded by a strong sense of conscience.

ZAA. The 27th Aethyr is just above BAG. It is a remote region characterized by a strong sense of loneliness and solitude.

DES. This is the region where logic and reason prevail. It is the home of the scientist and mathematician.

VTI. Here the logic and reason of the human mind give way to intuition. The intuitive senses come into play here.

NIA. The 24th Aethyr is in the highest region of the Watchtower of Water. It is characterized by continual motion and a strong sense of freedom. It is encompassed about by a large Ring-Pass-Not.

TOR. This Aethyr is located in the lowest region of the Watchtower of Air. In the form of TORZOXI, you should be able to pass through the Ring-Pass-Not that divides this Aethyr from NIA. TOR contains a sense of seriousness, and the work ethic is strong here.

LIN. The 22nd Aethyr contains a strong sense of dualism and polarity. The powerful forces of formation and destruction that characterize the Abyss are reflected here.

ASP. This Aethyr is located near the center of the Watchtower of Air. It contains the Reincarnating Ego, that part of your Self which takes on new incarnations on the physical plane.

KHR. The 20th Aethyr contains the Wheel of Life. Cyclic forces are intensified here.

POP. This Aethyr contains the initiation of life and death. The ebb and flow of the duality of life and death are confronted here. It is the home of the Priestess of the Silver Star.

ZEN. The 18th Aethyr is pervaded by a sense of sacrifice. In order to progress through this Aethyr, you must strip yourself of your personal desires and feelings.

TAN. This Aethyr is located in the highest part of the Watchtower of Air. It contains the great Karmic Balance. The sense of equality is strong here.

LEA. The 16th Aethyr is located in the lowest part of the Watchtower of Fire. It is the home of a reflex of the goddess Babalon, who actually resides in the 2nd Aethyr, ARN. Here the duality of the subjective self and the objective universe is strong.

OXO. This Aethyr is pervaded by a sense of joy and happiness. Life is seen here as a game. Nothing is taken seriously in this region.

VTA. The 14th Aethyr is dark and gloomy, the very antithesis of OXO. Everything here is very serious. To enter, you must remove all attachments. It is very peaceful here, entirely devoid of emotion. This region contains the City of the Pyramids.

ZIM. This Aethyr is located near the center of the Watchtower of Fire. It is characterized by a strong sense of duty and responsibility. The great being called NEMO resides here.

LOE. This Aethyr contains the Mystery of Babalon. It is characterized by a strong sense of compassion to mankind. You must have developed a sense of compassion in order to safely enter here.

IKH. The 11th Aethyr contains the Holy City. This is the highest region known to the human mind. It stands on the very brink of the Great Outer Abyss. It is located in the highest part of the Watchtower of Fire. You should be able to feel the presence of the Abyss.

STEP 3. Now, in turn, assume the god-forms of the three Governors of IKH. In all three forms, continue holding the fire opal and wearing the Apron.

Assume the god-form of MOLPAND. Your form should be fierce in countenance, strong but almost feminine in grace and beauty. You should be free of all emotional attachments. In this form, see yourself facing the Abyss.

Assume the god-form of VSNARDA. Your form should be dark and heavy and strongly masculine. In this form you will dare anything, including facing the Abyss.

Assume the god-form of PONODOL. Your form should be strong and beautiful, but entirely devoid of emotions. As PONODOL, you have the ability to create and destroy. See these forces swirling about in the Abyss.

STEP 4. Resume the god-form of TARZOXI and see yourself facing into the dark swirling forces of the Great Outer Abyss.

See the mighty KOMANAN approach and come before you holding the Pantacle of KOMANAN. Hear him say to you, "I am He who knows how to manifest."

See the fierce LEXARPH approach and come before you wielding the Sword of LEXARPH. Hear him say to you, "I am He who is first of the air."

See the fiery TABITOM approach and come before you holding the Wand of TABITOM. Hear him say to you, "I am He who is like fire."

See the black and terrible archdemon KHORONZON approach and come before you holding the Cup of KHORONZON. Hear him say to you, "I am He who is the basis of form."

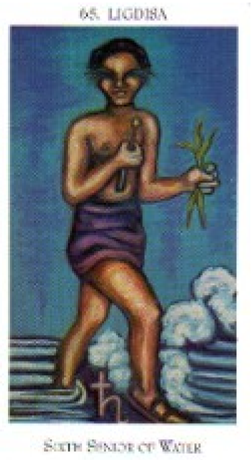
Remain with these four awesome beings, the residents of the Great Outer Abyss, for as long as you can. In order to cross the Abyss, you must first be able to control these four beings.

STEP 5. Return through each of the Aethyrs and re-enter your physical body. It is a good idea to keep a written record of your experiences.

Ritual Of The Body

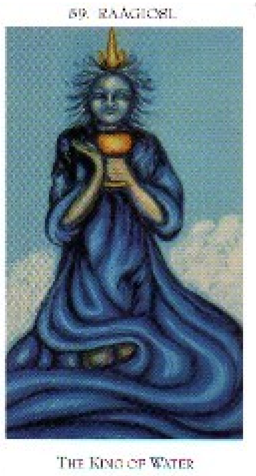
THE PHYSICAL BODY. The first step is to realize that your physical body is illusive and temporary. It is the crystallization of your own karma. Sit before a mirror and observe your reflection. Your reflected image is the way that others see you. Think various thoughts that will make you happy, sad, and so on, and watch your image in the mirror change. Observe the image and know that you are not this physical body. You can control the physical body. Like the mirror, it reflects your thoughts and emotions, but it is not you.

THE SUBTLE BODY. Assume the god-form of the Senior of Water, LIGDISA. Visualize your body having the color of indigo, soft and delicate with a strong feminine aspect. If you are male, see your body as male with feminine characteristics. If you are female, see your body as female with masculine characteristics. Your hair and eyes are dark. Your god-form is very beautiful and sexually attractive. As LIGDISA you hold a Wand in your right hand and a mandrake root in your left hand.



Visualize your subtle body in the form of LIGDISA to be entirely empty. Then visualize each of the six Centers and three Channels. As you inhale, let the vital force enter into the Central Channel at the Root Center.

Let your thoughts cease and concentrate your mind on the image of RAAGIOSL, the King of Water. See him standing before you. His body is blue and he wears a transparent blue robe. His belt is a snake and his sandals are scorpions. He holds a Cup in his right hand and a lotus flower in his left hand. Upon his head is a crown in the shape of a crescent, white like the moon. Let this visualization be clear until it seems that RAAGIOSL is actually standing before you.



Expand the body of RAAGIOSL until it is as large as a house, then a mountain, then the world, and then the entire universe. Shrink the body of RAAGIOSL until it is as small a cat, then a paperclip, then a grain of sand, but keep the details clear and distinct. Continue expanding and contracting this external god-form body until you understand the relativity of size.

THE DREAM BODY. The first objective here is to know when you are dreaming. Most of the time you will not know you are dreaming until you wake up. For this operation, you must be able to recognize that you are in a dream. There are two ways to prepare for this:

(1) Resolution. As you lay down to sleep, exercise your will and make a strong resolve to recognize the dream state when it dawns.

(2) Visualization. As you lay down to sleep, see your body as vacuous. Visualize the six Centers and three Channels. See the magical word AH in your Root Center. let it be radiant in a shinny black color. Know it to be the embodiment of divine substance. See the magical word TRAM in your Navel Center. Let it be radiant in blue color. Know it to be the embodiment of divine joy. See the magical word MUM in your Heart Center. Let it be radiant in vivid yellow color. Know it to be the embodiment of divine love. See the magical word RI in your Throat Center. Let it be a vivid red color and let it vibrate. Know it to be the embodiment of divine speech. See it radiate outward in all directions. Then see the magical word HAM written on a grain of sand in your Brow Center, between your eyes. Know it to be the embodiment of divine consciousness. As you drift off to sleep, know that all forms have the substance of dreams.

The second objective is to control your dream through a conscious act of will. This is called transmuting the dream content and it is a part of lucid dreaming. If anything is about to happen in the dream that is contrary to your will, change the dream content. For example, if you are about to be hurt or to die in some manner, stop the dream and consciously change the direction it is taking. You are like the director of a movie and can easily change the script at any time by an act of will. You should also refuse to do evil. You should refuse to hurt anyone in the dream as well as be hurt by anyone.

The third objective is to remember your dream after waking. This is called preventing the spreading out of the dream content. The best method to assure success is to make a strong resolve before falling asleep that you will remember your dream. It is also a good idea to keep a paper and pencil near your bed and write down everything you can remember about your dream as soon as you wake. With practice, remembering your dreams will become easier, and your notes can be used to determine the degree of progress.

Take note of your body when you are dreaming. You will discover that it is similar to the Body of Light that you assume during your magical operations.

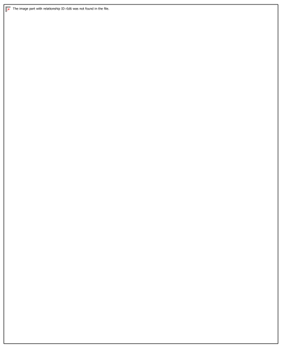
Six Enochian Goddesses

Go to Goddesses

Go to Ritual of Babalon

INTRODUCTION



Probably the main and best-known goddess of Enochian Magic is Babalon. She has six sisters in the anagrams of her name. Five of these, plus Babalon herself, constitute six primary Enochian Goddesses. Each resides in a special region which has its portal in an Aethyr. The six Lands of Babalon are related to the cosmic planes as shown below.

Cosmic Plane	Aethyr	Land	Goddess
Physical Astral
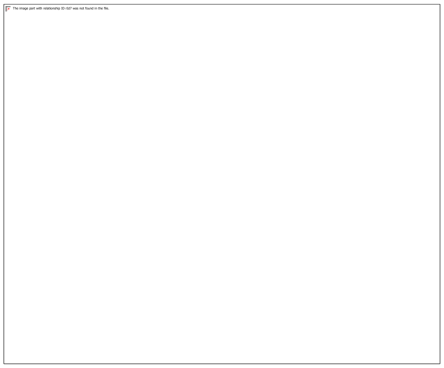
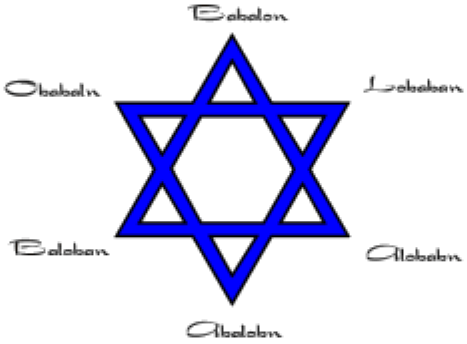
Mental	POP	Londoh Toto, Land of Cycles	Obabaln
Lower Causal	OXO	Londoh Zorge, Land of Love	Lobaban
Upper Causal	LOE	Londoh Baeouib, Land of Righteousness	Alobabn
Lower Spiritual	ZIP	Londoh Kral, Land of Joy	Baloban
Middle Spiritual	DEO	Londoh Quasahi, Land of Delight	Abalobn
Upper Spiritual	ARN	Londoh Mi, Land of Power	Babalon
Divine



The table above gives my names for the six Lands of Babalon as well as the names of the six ruling goddesses. These goddess names are from Enochian Yoga. They are derived from the name of Babalon as shown below.

The first six letters are anagrammed by moving the first letter to the end. Each name retains the final n so that the magic formula, found from the letters of each name, will end in death. The six Enochian goddesses form a hexagram as shown below. Babalon, Baloban, and Alobabn tend to spiritualize; they largely wield spiritual forces. Abalobn, Obabaln, and Lobaban tend to materialize; they largely wield material forces.



Corresponding Greek goddesses are shown below with corresponding Egyptian goddesses. Exact matching cannot be made for each goddess, and so two Greek and two Egyptian goddesses are given in some cases.

Enochian	Greek	Egyptian	Type	Characteristic
Babalon	Demeter	Nut	mother	bliss
Abalobn	Aphrodite	Isis	lover	love
Baloban	Artemis	Serqet, Bast	maiden, virgin	birth, innocence, natural harmony
Alobabn	Hera	Nephthys	seer	compassion, insight
Lobaban	Athena	Hathor	seductress, joy	sex
Obabaln	Hecate, Persephone	Sekhmet, Maat	crone, witch	death, karma

The goddesses and lands also correspond to the chakras or centers of power within the body (see our Chakras Page).

Most true initiations have three phases: the Call, the Quest, and the Return. In the first phase, we are "called" by an inner voice. Basically, this is the desire to learn, to grow, or to evolve. Usually we are called by an outside or external being through a vision or dream. The Call is not always loud, but it is terribly insistent and cannot be ignored. The Call inspires the Quest itself, which can be considered as the second phase. This is the actual initiation process.

On the Quest, we sometimes undergo ordeals of various kinds. Sometimes we go through a period of doubt and depression that has been called the Dark Night of the Soul. Eventual success, obtaining the goal of the Quest, then leads to the third phase in which we return to our daily lives with the memory and knowledge gained.

The Return phase is one of integration, in which the lessons that we learned are integrated into our life. It is also one of empowerment because the power that is tapped during the questing phase becomes ours to use. Hopefully this power will be used to help others in some way, but regardless, it needs of some kind of manifestation or expression.

G. de Purucker, wrote that "A man, a mind, an understanding, can grasp and see, and thereby know, only those things which the individual entity itself is"(Occult Glossary: A Compendium of Oriental and Theosophical Terms. (1972). Pasadena, CA: Theosophical University Press, 1972, p. 66). In other words, we can experience during an initiation, only what is already within us. Therefore, true initiation involves psychic processes in which we become conscious of what was previously unconscious.

The first phase, the Call, may already have come to you. The Call is associated with your motive for conducting a ritual. In psychological terms, it is your archetypal Self calling your ego (See Jung, C. G., Aion: Researches into the Phenomenology of the Self, 1951, in the Collected Works of C. G. Jung, Vol 9, Part 2. Jung's Collected Works are translated by R. F. C. Hull and are in Bollingen Series XX. Princeton, NJ: Princeton University Press). In magical terms, the goddess is calling to you from her kingdom in the invisible worlds. The experience can be explained either way. The net effect will be the same.

The Quest phase is one in which the ego turns around, so to speak, and faces into the darkness of the unconscious. During a ritual, you would turn away from the physical world and look deeply within yourself. You would consciously face your repressed fears and desires. If done properly, you would recall past events, face painful experiences from your childhood, and become aware of unresolved developmental issues.

A ritual invoking these goddesses should take you deeper into yourself, and should reveal more and more of what lies in your unconscious. In Jungian terms, you should begin with your personal unconscious and slowly sink into the collective unconscious which is shared by all of us. In rituals invoking the first three goddesses you should expect to encounter a lot of your personal psychological baggage that has, for one reason or another, been forgotten or repressed. Invoking the higher three goddesses, you should expect to encounter those basic archetypes that form the psychic structures of our human mind. There are many of these archetypes and not everyone will experience the same ones, or in the same way. But, you should encounter the child, the lover, and the mother as a minimum. The Swiss psychologist Carl Jung wrote:

What yoga aims at ... is undoubtedly a psychic change in the adept. The ego is an expression of individual existence. The yogin exchanges his ego for Shiva or the Buddha; in this way he induces a shifting of the psychological centre of personality from the personal ego to the impersonal non-ego, which is now experienced as the real "Ground" of the personality. (Concerning Mandala Symbolism, 1973, Collected Works, Vol 9, Part I. p. 74*)*

This is exactly the aim of rituals that invoke these goddesses, because during each of six invocations you should lose your personal ego, and temporarily take on the ego of one of the six goddesses.

How you deal with the Return phase, largely depends on how much time you spend during the Quest phase. If you conduct the invocation properly, you should be able to decrease the natural boundary that exists between your conscious and unconscious. If you are not able to do this sufficiently, then the integration period will be swift and painless. If you fall too deeply into a ritual and gaze too directly into the unconscious realms of the goddess, then integration of those experiences into your world view may be slow and painful.

To invoke any of these six goddesses, you must begin with the will to enter into a Land of Babalon. The strength of your will depends upon how you experience the Call. The quality of your Quest and Return phases, for each invocation, will largely depend upon the momentum that you develop from the amount of willpower that you establish at the very beginning.

Each Quest phase should be structured by specific rituals and yogic visualizations of the goddess and her kingdom. You can enter into her region, explore her kingdom, and visit with her. In each case, you should then be invited to 'become' the goddess herself. This becoming begins by invoking the goddess into yourself, and then by an assumption of her form, followed by an assumption of her characteristics and personality. If successful, you will be empowered by her. The empowerment process in such that by assuming the body and ego of the goddess, you also take on her powers. This is the heart of any true invoking ritual. When properly conducted you should be able to direct those psychic forces that are associated with the goddess as if they were your own.

According to Jung, the personal unconscious contains various complexes, while the collective unconscious contains archetypes. The personal unconscious is the realm of the imagination. The psychic energy or libido in the psyche manifests itself as images, and does so through the creative power of the imagination. The imagination produces images from unconscious contents and provides them to the ego where they become conscious. In this way, the imagination in the personal unconscious serves as a transmitter which converts the chaos of the unconscious contents into orderly pictorialized manifestations or images. The significance or meaning attributed to any image depends upon its value intensity or level of psychic energy or libido.

Jung defines archetypes as structures in the collective unconscious that have both form (feminine, the mother) and energy (masculine, the father). The realm of the archetype "is so entirely one of immediate experience that it cannot be captured by any formula, but can only be hinted at to one who already knows"(Jung, C. G., Psychological Aspects of the Mother Archetype, 1938, Collected Works Vol 9, Part 1). So the inner realm of the archetype is beyond words to describe and must be experienced directly, which is exactly what mystics say about the outer spiritual realms.

When we speak about magical god-forms or goddess-forms, we must remember psychology sees them as mythological psychic images. According to Jung, "The mythological images belong to the structure of the unconscious and are an impersonal possession; in fact, the great majority of men are far more possessed by them than possessing them" (The Psychological Aspects of the Kore, 1941, Collected Works, Vol 9, Part I). To be possessed by such images is one of the dangers of practicing ritual magic. Care must always be taken to conduct proper closing or banishing rituals to sever any psychic connections that have been established.

Jung argued that circles, and especially magic circles, are archetypal symbols of self-protection. They are "intended to stop the difficulties and adversities of the outside world from entering into the inner psychic space. They represent a kind of self-protection" (Concerning Mandala Symbolism, 1973, Collected Works, Vol 9, Part I). This is the psychological rationale for constructing a magical circle. An invocation ritual should include a magic circle as a protective sphere in which to conduct the magical working.

"The projection-making factor is the anima, or rather the unconscious as represented by the anima. Whenever she appears, in dreams, visions, and fantasies, she takes on personified form, thus demonstrating that the factor she embodies possesses all the outstanding characteristics of a feminine being. She is not an invention of the conscious, but a spontaneous product of the unconscious." (Jung, C. G. Aion: Researches Into the Phenomenology of the Self, 1951, Collected Writings, Vol 9, Part II)

In an invocation ritual, the goddess should appear before you as if she were a real external being. If she appears to you by your own conscious attempts to visualize her, then you are apt to be mislead. When she really appears, it will be spontaneous, and without any conscious projection on your part. Whether the goddess is real or just a projection of your anima or animus (Jung's male or female archetype of the unconscious) is immaterial to a successful ritual, so long as she appears spontaneously at the right time.

All of the six Enochian goddesses are aspects of the mother archetype as defined by Jung. "Mythology offers many variations of the mother archetype, as for instance the mother who reappears as the maiden in the myth of Demeter and Kore; or the mother who is also the beloved, as in the Cybele-Attis myth"(Psychological Aspects of the Mother Archetype, 1938, Collected Works Vol 9, Part 1). Even Obabaln, who equates to Hecate, is an aspect of the Great Mother. According to Jung, Hecate was called the Mother of Death and the Goddess of Dogs as well as the moon goddess who sends men lunacy and madness (Symbols of Transformation, 1911-12, Collected Writings, Vol 5.). Not only the goddesses, but the circle in which you will work should have feminine power: "Because of the protection it implies, the magic circle or mandala can be a form of mother archetype" (Jung, C. G., Psychological Aspects of the Mother Archetype, 1938, Collected Works Vol 9, Part 1).

According to Jung, there are several kinds of mother images. "Experience reveals the striking fact that the Urania type of mother-image predominates in masculine psychology, whereas in a woman the chthonic type, or Earth Mother, is the most frequent" (Psychological Aspects of the Mother Archetype, 1938, Collected Works Vol 9, Part 1). This is because the goddess as seen by a man will be viewed through his anima, whereas the goddess seen by a woman will be viewed through her animus. Thus a man and woman will not have exactly the same experiences during these rituals, although the results should be similar.

When the goddess-forms are properly used during the rituals, the anima will project itself into each form, if you are a man, and the animus will project the Self into each form, if you are a woman. In this way, you will be able to assimilate your anima or animus via the process of self-identification. Each return to the ego after the ritual will find a changed ego; one that has been broadened and, hopefully, matured by the experience.

After experiencing each world, you may wonder about the reality of your experiences. Are these Lands of Babalon real? Do the six goddesses really exist? The answer to such questions was given by the Jungian psychologist Robert Johnson who writes that "a symbolic or ceremonial experience is real and affects one as much as an actual event. The psyche is unaware of the different between an outer act and an interior one" (Owning your own shadow: Understanding the dark side of the psyche.

United Kingdom: HarperCollins). Thus modern psychology is in agreement with Aleister Crowley who taught that all deities, angels, gods, goddesses, or other entities encountered in the subtle worlds should be considered to be real. In other words, we must act as if they are real in order to obtain meaningful results. And when we do act as if they are real, they will have real affects on our lives.

Obabaln

The goddess Obabaln is neither enticing nor alluring in any sexual sense. Rather she appears frightening to most who see her. Perhaps this is because her chief attribute is her control over the forces of karma and reincarnation. None of the six goddesses are simplistic, and the complexity of Obabaln is no exception. She is the governess of both life and death for each of us. She is probably best known as the balancer and judge of one's karma in the after-death state. In the Egyptian system, she equates to the goddess Maat whose magical Word is Truth. But she also equates to the lion-headed goddess, Sekhmet. In the Greek system, she equates to Persephone, the Queen of the Underworld. She also equates to Hecate, the Goddess of Crossroads. Thus Obabaln is the archetype of the crone or witch.

Her male consort is the god, Paam, who represents the magical strength needed to convert the student into an Adept. He aides the devotee of Obabaln by giving them the inner strength to confront her as he does himself.

The Goddesses Maat and Sekhmet

The Egyptian goddess, Maat, was the consort of the ibis-headed Thoth, the God of Wisdom. She is probably best known for her role in the after-death judgment scene where the heart of the deceased is weighed in a huge balance against her symbol, a feather. The feather of Maat is symbolic for truth. In fact, the Egyptian word mat means truth, justice, and law, and it can also be translated as karma. Karma is the law of universal balance as all cosmic forces tend toward equilibrium. Every time we act in a way that is out of balance with nature or natural law, we create new karma that must, one way or another, be allieviated. Maat, in her dualistic form of Maati, the dispenser of justice, governs a special region in the subtle plane (Tuat or Dwat) called the Hall of Maati. Chapter CXXV of the Book of the Dead addresses this region (see our Egyptian Magick, the revised edition of Coming Into the Light, pp 244-258, for a complete translation). According to the rubric, if this ritual is conducted successfully, the deceased will view his future parents and have a healthy rebirth. While various gods and goddesses of the Egyptian pantheon control and direct the many aspects of the reincarnation cycle, it is Maat who sees that the law of karma is fulfilled.

Maat Sekhmet

The lioness-headed goddess, Sekhmet, or Sekhet, represents the firey power of the maternal instincts. In Chapter XLII of the Book of the Dead, she is said to control the belly and the backbone. Wallis Budge states that her name derives from sekhem which means power or strength (Gods of the Egyptians, Vol I, p 515). As Maat is the consort of Thoth, so Sekhmet is the consort of the god Ptah, the master architect who fashioned the human form. Together, they represent the formative and instinctual forces of the personal unconscious that we carry over from birth to birth - the skandhas of Buddhism.

The Goddesses Persephone and Hecate.

The goddess Persephone, sometimes called Kore, 'the maiden,' was the daughter of Demeter by Zeus. She was abducted by Hades, the god of the underworld, while admiring a beautiful narcissus that was planted for this purpose by Gaia on orders from Zeus. Hades took her to his kingdom beneath the ground. After nine days of worry, Demeter consulted Hecate who suggested that she see Helios, the Sun god. From Helios, Demeter learned that Zeus had allowed Persephone to be taken by Hades. Demeter then began a long series of wanderings, but failed to find her daughter. Finally, in desperation, she caused the Earth to be barren until her daughter's return. Finally, Zeus sent Hermes to command Hades to return Persephone. However, before she left his kingdom, he persuaded Persephone to eat some pomegranite seeds, which were symbols of marriage. After Persephone returned to her mother, Demeter learned about the pomegranites. Zeus then proposed a compromise, shich everyone accepted. Persephone would be allowed to stay with her mother for two-third of the year, but she would have to return to Hades for the other third. In this way, Persephone became the Queen of the Underworld. In a psychological sense, she is one who was taken into the dark recesses of the collective unconscious and then returned to consciousness with the ability to return periodically at will. In essence, she is the prototype of the Adept. Persephone represents that part of the psyche that can face the full depths of the unconscious and return safely to consciousness with full memory of all experiences and images gleaned.

Hecate is the goddess of the moon and of magic. She dwelled in the underworld with Hades, Persephone, Thanatos (god of death), Hypnos (god of sleep), and Morpheus (god of dreams). She was said to have control over the night sky, and was the protectress of witches. She was called the Goddess of the Crossroads and as such her symbol was a cross (a horizontal line crossed at the center by a vertical line of the same length). However, another meaning of the cross is sexual in that the horizontal line was feminine and the vertical line masculine. While the unitiated believed Hecate to assist at crossroads where three choices awaited the traveler, the initiated worshipped Hecate in a more sexual manner. She was also called the Dark Mother and could be seen at graveyards where she worked as a goddess of purification. One of her symbols is the dark moon. As the Dark Goddess, the goddess of moonlit crossroads, and the Sender of Nocturnal Visios, Hecate, like Persephone, represents one who can enter into the unconscious and illuminate what is found there (see Janet & Stewart Farrar, The Witches Goddess, pp 124-126).

Hecate

Obabaln as the Frog Goddess

Obabaln also shares characteristics with the Egyptian goddess Heket or Heqet, who is shown as a human female with the head of a frog, or simply as a frog. According to Wallis Budge, the frog was worshipped as a symbol of generation, birth, and fertility (*The Gods of the Egyptian*s, Vol II, p 378). The Egyptian crone-goddess Hekit was the prototype of the Greek Hecate or Hekate (see Barbara Walker, The Woman's Dictionary of Symbols & Sacred Objects, p 375) who was associated with frogs as symbols of regeneration.

The color picture below shows the Portal of Obabaln which leads into her kingdom from POP. She stands before her portal in the shimmering ghost-like form of the Priestess of the Silver Star, and a silver star can be seen over the right side of her silver portal (to the left as you face her). Her arms are folded across her chest to symbolize her non-receptive (and threatening) nature. Before her is a human skull to symbolize her power over mortality and a snake and frog to symbolize her regenerative powers and especially the reincarnation process which she controls. Her control over life and death (symbolized by the living tree and dead tree) give her land its name: the Kingdom of Cycles. The Enochian letter O is seen on the pathway before her, symbol of the forces of karma. The Enochian letter N is on her left side, symbol of the forces of death. Both letters are blood red. A dark moon is in the sky to her left (in the upper right corner of the plate). The Scroll of Obabaln contains the three magic words of her realm in Enochian: PTXZ, XUM and AH, all of which are written backwards.

Obabaln

To conduct the Ritual of Obabaln, assume her goddess-form. First see your body as empty with only a thin skin, like a balloon. Then use the figure below to help you shape the plastic skin of your Body of Light. Visualize yourself in the form of the goddess, Obabaln, and assume her empty goddess-form. Let your Body of Light take on the form of a beautiful woman with wings. Fold your arms across your chest, right arm under left, and place your right foot slightly in front of you while bending the right knee. Turn your head slightly to the right. Your stance should convey a feeling of independence, determination, and divine power over life and death. The figure below shows how you would look standing within your magic circle.

Lobaban

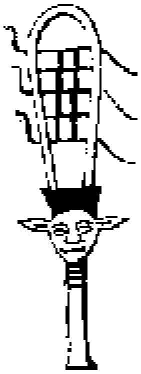
Lobaban is a goddess of love which includes both sexual love and the sincere commitment of a shared relationship. She can grant either sexual ecstasy or agonizing pain depending upon how the devotee confronts her. She is shown in the color plate near the end of this page as alluring and sexually attractive. She rules over music, dancing, and the arts. As a goddess of sexual enchantment, confronting Lobaban is dangerous without proper preparation. Her realm is seductive and captivating, and like a wonderful dream, it is difficult to leave to return to our everyday lives on Earth. She shares characteristics with the Egyptian goddess Hathor and the Greek goddess Hera.

Her consort is the god Rmto who helps devotees of Lobaban to gain the strength to see through her illusions of enchantment. Without his help, it is very easy to forget oneself and become enthralled in her wondrous realm of love forever.

Hathor

Occultism and psychology teaches that sex and death are related in that we can lose our ego in both. The cow-goddess Hathor is the Egyptian goddess of sex, dancing, and music. Her name is literally "the house of Horus." Occult tradition equates Horus (especially his eye) with consciousness, so Hathor is therefore the physical body and its sensations as the "house" of consciousness. She is usually shown with the menat around her neck, a symbol of sexual pleasure as well as fertility. Sometimes she is shown with both the menat and the flail, indicating her association with both pleasure and pain. Hathor also appears at times holding a sistrum, a rattle that was used in singing and dancing as shown in the accompanying.

Hathor



Sistrum

In the ancient Egyptian Book of the Divine Cow, Hathor, the Beautiful One, is sent out by the sun god Re (or Ra) to kill his human enemies. She not only kills them but enjoys doing it. To prevent her from killing the rest of mankind, Re orders the brewing of 7,000 jars of beer. He orders that the beer be poured over the fields at night in the area where Hathor was expected to slay the rest of humanity. When morning came, Hathor appeared. She saw the innundated fields and drank heavily of the beer, becoming very intoxicated. She became so drunk, that she no longer recognized the human beings that she had planned to kill. She became the Confused One and humanity was saved. To celebrate, Re proclaimed that intoxicating drinks should be served at all of the feasts of the year (i.e., whenever human beings gathered together in large numbers) to prevent Hathor from slaying them. Thus Hathor is exoterically associated with physical intoxication. But esoterically, she is associated with the divine ecstasy that fills every devotee who approaches her.

Hera

Hera was the consort of Zeus and the queen of Olympus. She was the daughter of Cronus and Rhea. She was worshipped by the Romans as Juno, the Goddess of Marriage. Her chief symbols were the cow, the lily, and the peacock whose "eyes" symbolized her watchfulness. The Milky Way was thought to have come into existence from the milk of her breasts.

As the wife of Zeus, Hera was often humiliated and jealous of the other goddesses in his life. Thus she took on a dual aspect in which she could give love as well as hate, pleasure as well as pain. In a psychological sense, she represents the desire for marriage and for the sharing of one's life with another; the need for a relationship of commitment and therefore she personifies faithfulness and loyalty.

Before her is a lily, which is the Western equivalent of the lotus in the East. Beside the lily is a rosy cross, the magical symbol of sexual magic. Next to the rosy cross is a peacock. The portal into the Land of Love shows lions along the top, which are sacred to Lobaban. Within the portal is Salome, whose dancing symbolizes the joy of life that pervades this land. This stance should convey a feeling of great joy and love mingled with elegance and wisdo

Alobabn

The goddess Alobabn is shown in the color plate near the end of this page. Her skin is light yellow in her role as Goddess of the Air. She is also the Goddess of Relationships and the Goddess of Wisdom. She personifies the intellect as well as the will. Her realm is located just below the Great Outer Abyss and as such she represents the highest aspects of the human mind. There are no emotions in her realm, nor instincts or feelings of any kind. These have all been sacrificed in order to reach this lofty place. Only thoughts and emotionless images are allowed here. However, the air of her realm is permeated with compassion. Her land is where one's karmic burden is weighed to see if one qualifies to cross the Abyss. Alobabn is the decision maker who is charged to determine when the initiate is ready to become the Adept. Her realm emphasizes thought and the will, but the seeds of intuition can be found here as well. The great Ring-Pass-Not of the Abyss is a barrier to the human mind and thus her realm is one of the most spiritual that the human mind is able to conceive. The ego, which can go no higher than the Land of Righeousness without the risk of insanity, must be sacrificed into her Cup. This can be done safely by the attainment of sincere compassion. This frees consciousness from its human constraints allowing one to cross the Abyss in safety. She shares characteristics with the Egyptian goddess Nephthys and the Greek Goddess Athena.

Her consort is the god Oant, whose formula is the desire for the death of all karmic processes. This desire is aimed at the karmaless action of the full Adept, the jivamukta of the East.

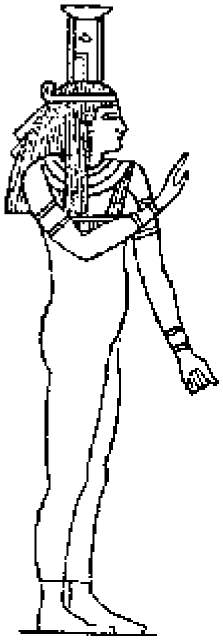
Nephthys

The Egyptian goddess Nephthys was the daughter of Re (or Ra) and the sister of Isis and Osiris. She is always shown wearing her special hat; the hieroglyphic symbols for "lady of the house." She and her sister, Isis, are the two Uraeus Serpents in the form of two cobras. Nephthys was the consort of the god Set, but she was the mother of the jackal-headed Anubis by her brother, Osiris.

She and her sister, Isis, are the two Uraeus Serpents in the form of two cobras. Nephthys was the consort of the god Set, but she was the mother of the jackal-headed Anubis by her brother, Osiris.Nephthys rules over the Fire of Dispersion located in the Subplane of Dispersion. This symbology has to do with the dispersion process of the after-death state wherein the psychic elements of the deceased disperse in the same way as the particles of the physical body. The spirit that survives this process then rests for awhile prior to rebirth (the processes of rebirth are controlled by her sister, Isis). Nephthys is concerned with the spiritualization process, wherein the matter of the physical body is sloughed off, leaving the spiritual body naked and pure. Like the Dakini of Tibetan Buddhism, Nephthys personifies the overpowering spiritual impulse that eventually annihilates material form. Unlike the Dakini who have a terrifying aspect, Nephthys is always shown as a beautiful woman, often naked or semi-nude with a calm demeanor.



Nephthys

Athena

Athena (or Athene) was the Greek warrior goddess who was born fully armed from the head of Zeus. She was called the Goddess of Wisdom and Crafts and known to the Romans as Minerva.

She is sometimes shown with a spear in one hand (as the goddess of battle stragety in wartime) and a bowl in the other (as the goddess of the arts during peacetime). Her special gift to mankind was the olive, which is sacred to her. The owl was sacred to her as the bird of wisdom. In a psychological sense, Athena respresent the triumph of the will and rational thinking over the instincts, of purposeful action and strategic planning.

In mythology, Athena once turned a mortal woman named Arachne into a spider. Arachne was a weaver who challenged Athena to a contest of skill. Both made exquisite tapestries, but the pictorial theme used by Arachne was the many love affairs of Zeus. This enraged Athena, who was the most trusted and loyal of Zeus's children. In anger, she killed Arachne, but later repented and restored her life as a spider condemned to hang by a thread and spin forever.

Stand within the Circle of Alobabn and assume the form of a beautiful woman with wings. Hold your left wrist with your right hand, place your right foot in front of you, and bend your head downward slightly. This stance should convey a feeling of compassion, of right triumphant over wrong, and of thoughtful insight.

Baloban

The Enochian goddess Baloban is shown in the color plate near the end of this page in her light red form. On the goddess hexagram, shown on my goddess page, she is positioned opposite to Lobaban. As Lobaban expresses sexual attraction, so Baloban expresses virginity and innocence. She is the chaste maiden. But she is highly mystical and has great occult powers. Because she resides above the Abyss, she is shown in a peaceful and harmonious setting. Many who have confronted her there have stated that it is like a wondrous garden.

The consort of Baloban is Xkai whose magical formula is the ability of the student to correctly perceive his or her environment. He can help to assure that you will always know where you are located in the magical universe.

Serqet and Bast

Serqet (or Selkit) is the Egyptian scorpion goddess and is usually shown as a woman with a scorpion on her head. Chapter XLII of the Book of the Dead equates her with the teeth suggesting that she has a warrior nature, and indeed we sometimes see her carrying a spear. She was also identified with a constellation in the northern sky.

Serqet was one of four main protective goddesses of the deceased (the others being Isis, Nephthys, and Neith). On the roof of the second shrine of Tutankhamen, she tells the boy king that "I will be thy protection eternally." (Piankoff, A & Rambova, N (Eds.) The Shrine of Tut-Ankh-Amon, Princeton Univesity Press,p 116).

Bast

The moon goddess Bast, the Lady of the East, was worshipped in Bubastis (literally "the place of Bast") from the earliest dynasties. However, she only became popular during the new kingdom. Sheshonk, the first king of the twenty-second dynasty married the daughter of the priest-king of Tanis and was proclaimed Pharaoh. He made Bubastis his capital and the local cat-headed goddess, Bast, soon became the official ruling deity of Egypt. Unlike Sekhet, who was considered "terrible," Bast was "kindly." She was usually considered as a kind aspect of Isis, a Great Mother goddess. Another of her names is Goddess of the Abyss, probably owing to the fact that cats can see in the dark. Like Isis, she was associated with the Fire of Solidification, a magical fire that resides in the Abyss (see our Egyptian Magick, pp 17-19). In this role, she was often called upon to help with births and was called Goddess of the Birth-Chamber. Her child with Osiris, was called Heru-Hekennu, Horus the god of thoughts.

Artemis

The moon goddess, Artemis, was the daughter of Zeus and Leto and the twin sister of the sun god, Apollo. She was associated with the constellation Ursa Major and bears were sacred to her. She assisted women in childbirth and was the protector of youth, especially girls. She is often shown in a short tunic with bow and arrows, and sometimes with a hound - she is equivalent to the Roman goddess Diana, the Goddess of the Hunt. Artemis has no consort and was a virgin in the sense of being "her own woman" and subject to no male. She was called Artemis the Chaste and Goddess of Wildlife.

The goddess Abalobn is shown in the color plate at the bottom of this page. She is white and she is shown lying before her portal of roses. Although Abalobn has many names, her chief title is the Goddess of Love. She is called the Great Seductress, the Scarlet Woman, and the Great Harlot because she willingly accepts all who enter her realm. Abalobn imbodies all forms of love, including self-love, the love of another person, and the altruistic universal love of all living beings.

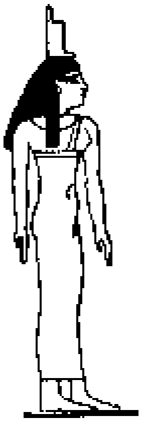
Her consort is the god Ehnb whose formula is the true seeker who faces death with childlike faith. Ehnb reminds all who enter this realm of the magical equality of love and death.

Isis

The goddess Isis is probably the best known deity of ancient Egypt. She is the daughter of the sun god, Re (or Ra) and the sister of Osiris, Nephthys, and Set. She is the mother of Horus by Osiris. Her name means "Goddess of the Throne" and she is usually shown with a throne on her head. Psychologically, the throne, as the seat of power, refers to the ego and Isis is the controlling force of the human ego. Thoth calls her the "beautiful goddess who is responsible for one life to follow another." ("The Magic of Isis", in Egyptian Magick, p 49). She is also called the Great One of Magic. She has the form of a beautiful woman and was said to be adept with words. Isis controls the Fire of Solidification, and she is the complement to her sister, Nephthys. Isis controls the birth processes of the reincarnation cycle.



Isis

Set had no love for his brother, Osiris, and decided to kill him. He had a large chest made, and brought it with him to a party. He promised to give it to the one who fit it best. Everyone laid in the chest unitl Osiris, the last one to try, laid in it. When Osiris laid down in the chest, Set and his conspirators rushed over and quickly placed the lid on it, and nailed it shut. They took the chest to the river which carried it out to sea. When Isis heard of this, she cut off a lock of her hair in mourning. Then she wandered throughout the kingdom seeking the chest. It was during this time that she learned of the treachery of her sister. Nephthys had pretended to be her, and had laid with Osiris. As a results, she gave birth to Anubis. Isis found Anubis and turned him into a guardian. Later, Isis heard that the chest containing Osiris had landed on the coast of Byblos where it lodged in the branches of a bush of tamarisk. The tree had grown up around the chest and encompassed it. Then the king of that country, Melkander, had cut down the tree, using its trunk to support the roof of his own house. Isis went to the king's palace, where she became a nurse to one of his sons. She nursed him through her finger rather than her breast and each night she placed him into a fire while she turned herself into a swallow - a magical process through which she helped to make the child immortal. However, the queen caught her one night and cried out stopping the process before total immortality was won. Isis then showed herself and asked for the tree trunk that supported the roof. She cut the pillar down and cut it open. She took the chest, together with the eldest of the king's sons, with her back to Egypt. When she thought that she was alone, she opened the chest and wept. The young prince, Maneros, crept up behind her and saw the dead body of Osiris, whereupon Isis killed him in a rage. Later, Isis brought the chest to Pe-Tep (Buto) where Horus was being reared and stored it in a remote place.

One night, Set was hunting by the light of the moon and chanced upon the chest. In a rage, he tore the body into fourteen pieces and scattered them in different places up and down the country. When Isis discovered what had happened, she searched the country for the pieces of her husband's body using a papyrus boat. She found all of the pieces except the phallus, which had been thrown into the river and devoured by fish. A shrine to Osiris was built in each city where she found one of the pieces. Then Osiris returned from the underworld and instructed Horus in fighting. When Horus was ready he fought a mighty battle with Set, whom he defeated after three days and three nights. He caused Set to be bound and gave him to Isis as a trophy. Isis unexpectedly released Set and set him free. Horus was so mad at this that he grabbed her and cut off her head. The god Thoth came forward at this and replaced her head with that of a cow. After this, Horus and Set faught twice more, with Horus winning each time. Isis had union with Osiris during this time and conceived Heru-pa-Khrat (Harpokrates, or "Horus the child").

Aphrodite

The goddess Aphrodite is the Goddess of Love and Beauty, whom the Romans called Venus. She was said to be the most beautiful of all the goddesses with a graceful and sensual body (as the famous statue, the Venus de Milo suggests). She was said to be able to create words and was associated with the dove and the rose.

According to Homer, Aphrodite was the daughter of Zeus and a sea nymph named Dione. According to Hesiod, she was born in a magical way: Kronos cut off the genitals of his father Uranus with a sickle and threw them into the sea where the sperm mixed with white foam from which Aphrodite was born, conceived as a fully grown goddess. When she came ashore, she was accompanied by Eros (love) and Himeros (desire) into the assembly of the gods. Many gods wanted to marry her, but she chose Hephaestus, the lame God of Craftsmen (a union of beauty and craft). She had no children with Hephaestus, but she had three children with Ares, the God of War. Her daughter was Harmonia (harmony) and her sons were Deimos (terror) and Phobos (fear). She also coupled with Hermes and gave birth to the bisexual Hermaphroditus and with Poseidon she gave birth to the goddess Rhodos who later married Helios, the Sun. She was also said to give birth to Priapus through Dionysus. One of her symbols was the scallop shell, which is kteis in Greek; and is the word for a woman's genitals.

Before her is a pansy and a sprig of rosemary. Hanging from the portal to the Land of Delight is a red vesica pisces, symbol of femininity, similar to the the Hindu yoni and Greek kteis. A dove is flying downward toward the goddess carrying an olive branch. A blood-red Enochian letter G lies on the ground behind her. The Scroll of Abalobn contains the three magic words of her realm in Enochian; AD, DUM and HAM, all of which are written backwards.

Abalobn

When you conduct the Ritual of Abalobn, use the figure below to help you visualize yourself in the form of the goddess, Abalobn, and assume her goddess-form. Assume the form of a beautiful woman with wings. Stand holding your wand in both hands before you with your arms apart and down. Place your left foot forward and bend your head downward slightly as though looking at your wand. This stance should convey a feeling of universal love and acceptance.

BABALON

The goddess Babalon is the primary goddess of Enochian Magic, where most deites are male. Like the Egyptian goddess Nut, she represents pure objectivity. Define yourself, and Babalon will be everything that is left out of that definition - the Not-Self. She is Infinite Space, the complement of the infinitesimal self (which Crolwey called Hadit). The duality of Babalon and the Beast was one of Crowley's favorite analogies, where Babalon was the Higher Self and the Beast the Lower Self. In a cosmic sense, Babalon is our spacetime continuum while the Beast is matter. In Jungian psychology, Babalon is the collective unconscious while the Beast is the psyche (the ego together with the personal unconscious).

Her consort is the god Om. His formula is the magical mastery of karma. This god helps all who enter here to master their own karma; to become karmaless.

The Goddess Nut

The Egyptian goddess, Nut (spelled Nuit by Aleister Crowley), was the mother of Osiris, Isis, Nephthys, and Set. Nut is the Eternal Mother. The Book of the Dead calls her the Lady of Heaven and the Goddess of the Night Sky. She is usually shown with stars on her body, and sometimes she is shown arching over the world, with her hands on the eastern horizon and her feet on the western horizon, as if her naked body was the sky itself. At the formation of the world, the god Shu separated Nut from the God of the Earth, Geb. One text says that Shu was born from Nut (Egyptian Magick, p 85) which implies that Nut created Shu (Tefnut is his lioness-headed sister) which, in turn, lead to her separation from the Earth. If we consider that every human being has three main components, a body, a mind, and a spirit, then Nut corresponds to the spirit, Shu with the mind, and Geb with the body.

Nut (Nuit)

The Goddess Demeter

Demeter was the Greek Goddess of Grain. Demeter was a beautiful goddess whose hair was said to be golden, like the color of ripe wheat. The word meter means mother, and Demeter ("Earth-Mother") was worshipped as a mother goddess. She was the second child of Rhea and her brother Cronos and was the sister of Zeus, Hades, Poseidon, and Hera. She was raped while in the form of a horse by Poseidon and bore a talking horse named Arion and a daughter named Despoena. After this, she was raped by Zeus in the form of a bull and bore Persephone, her great love. Hades abducted Persephone but she was allowed to return to Demeter for most of the year. After their renewal together, Demeter founded the Eleusinian Mysteries in which her story was re-enacted by her devotees. In a Jungian psychology sense, Demeter is the mother archetype of the collective unconscious. She represents the maternal instinct and was probably the most nurturing of all of the Greek goddesses. Demeter provides us with physical sustenance as the Goddess of Grain and with spiritual sustenance as the provider of the Eleusinian Mysteries.

The color plate below shows the Portal of Babalon which leads into her kingdom from ARN. The goddess is multicolored and she sits as a queen on her throne before the two pillars of her portal. Above her head is a solar disk. Before her is a vulture, a symbol of motherhood, and a bee. Above the pillar on her right is a black triangle pointing down (symbol of water). Above the pillar on her left is a vesica pisces that is inverted (for the symbolism of the triangle and inverted vesica pisces, see Crowley's The Vision and the Voice, the 2nd Aethyr). The red rug before her throne is lined with black. The two pillars are blue. The walls around her throne are yellow while those within and immediately below her throne are white. On the wall to her right is the Enochian letter A which represents the substance-principle of Taurus. On the wall to her left is the Enochian letter X which represents the macrocosmic universe. The Scroll of Babalon contains the magic word of her realm in Enochian; OM, written backwards.

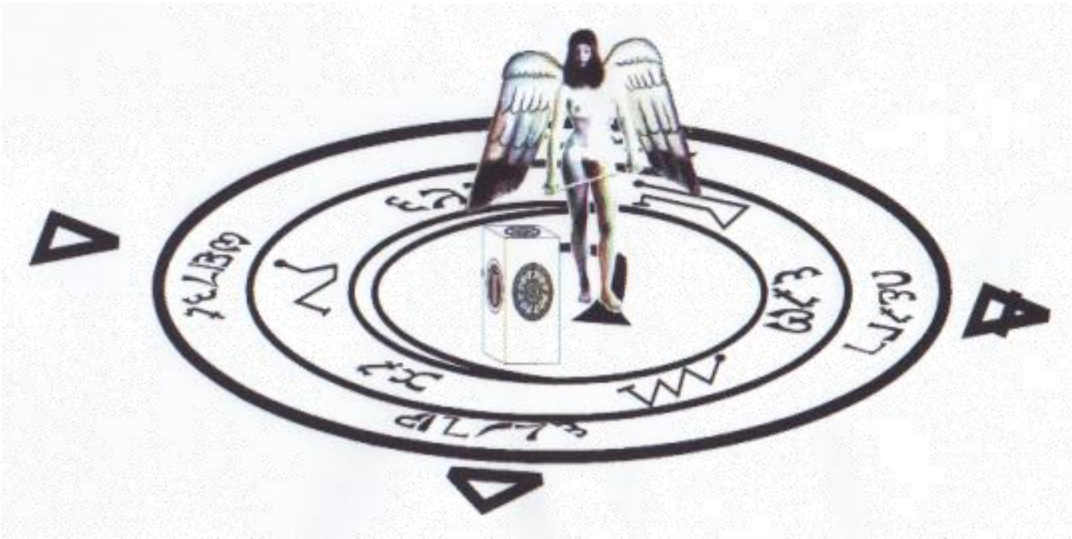
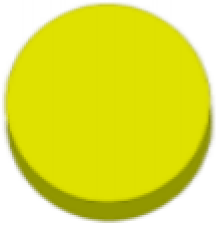
Babalon

When conducting the Ritual of Babalon, use the figure below to help you visualize yourself in the form of the goddess, Babalon, and assume her goddess-form. Assume the form of a beautiful woman with large wings. Stand with your arms at your sides and place your right foot forward. Look straight ahead. This form simulates pure motion and the intent toward action. This goddess-form should convey to you a feeling of creative power and maternal nurturing.



The Pantacles of Babalon

Each of the six goddesses (see our Goddess Page) have a special wooden Pantacle (or Pentacle if you prefer). Each Pantacle consists of a sigil on a sun-moon disk. A typical sun-moon disk is shown below.



Although the figure looks like a three dimensional section of a cylinder, it is meant to be a two-dimensional drawing of a circular sun conjoined at the bottom with a crescent moon. This figure symbolizes the sun (masculinity, consciousness, the Beast, or Crowley's Hadit) joined with the moon (femininity, space-time, Babalon, or Crowley's Nuit). The goddess' sigil is drawn or painted on the sun portion of each Pantacle. Correspondences that can be used to make your own Pantacles are shown in the Table below. The moon portion of each Pantacle should be forest green. As shown in the table, the Pantacle of Obabaln can be made of either cypress or willow. The accompanying figures show each of the 6 goddess Pantacles that you will need to make, one for each ritual.

Goddess	Sun	Sigil	Wood	Day
Babalon	5-Colored	Blue	Beech	Thursday
Abalobn	White	Yellow	Elder	Wednesday
Baloban	Red	Indigo	Poplar	Friday
Alobabn	Yellow	Green	Lilac	Saturday
Lobaban	Blue	Violet	Elm	Monday
Obabaln	Black	Red	Cypress or Willow	Tuesday

If you have trouble finding the type of wood shown in the Table above, as an alternative, you can use birch for any or all of the Pantacles. Each Pantacle should be about one inch in diameter and about one-fourth to one-half-inch thick. In addition to these pantacles, full directions for making associated magical objects are included in the appendices.

The Personal Writings of Merlinus Sortiarius for

Students Aspiring to Adeptship

1. COMMENTS FROM MERLINUS SORTIARIUS:

The idea of putting information of this type into a written diary, when first suggested by my friends and students, did not appeal to me at all. Yet, as these friends and students took notes and taped instructions, it occurred to me that this type of groundwork, put together into a diary, might indeed be helpful. Scholarly works, and the translations of the Enochian texts are necessary for study, but only after a "foundation" has been laid. Modern men and women are under tremendous pressures today, perhaps greater than at any other time in history. Whatever the lifestyle, one seems to move too fast to digest the experiences that take place during each day. The pressure felt is not exclusively because of work, although this may be part of it, but because of the enormous amount of material that has to be assimilated by an individual to survive in a very highly competitive environment. The complexity of life has become such that one becomes either "panicky" or "lethargic". In the latter case, the attitude of "It doesn't matter anyway" may act as a "key sentence" in the mind and, through its unconscious repetition, may achieve an almost hypnotic effect. Once settled in the mind, it is kept alive by emotions that can be both desperate and depressive. If anger and violence is not one's nature, resignation to life seems the only way. The natural life rhythm simply cannot absorb the constant impact of news, television, and urban living, combined with the many power struggles which are outside the domain of an individual's control. "Live NOW" becomes the motto. However, this is an unfortunate reaction leading one ever faster down the road to disaster, encouraging self-indulgence and excess on many levels. Modern technology, despite the numerous and superficially impressive advances, is rather a punishment in disguise, increasing the burden for the average individual. With the massive bombardment of the senses -- which supposedly brings relaxation, relief, and pleasure -- men and women are driven away from their inner being. The true source of power and energy renewal is buried to such a degree that help is needed to rediscover it. There is no point in an individual expecting this help from technology and the manipulators of power. A totally new approach is needed in order for life to have any meaning -- besides the "dollar" and what it stands for.

The sense of the inner self, of that knowing from within, is the only secure foundation on which to build one's life. The need to come back to this inner core is very great, and it is my hope that help will be found to make that return through the material that is found both in the Enochian texts and these diaries.

Within these "Diaries" or "Writings" I will attempt to present as clear an account as possible of what Enochian Magick is, along with information, exercises and rituals which will help interested individuals in their development. This will be done along the lines of "laying the foundation", as it will prepare one to move further along the Path of Enochiana.

For centuries Enochian Magick was veiled in mystery and secrecy because it was only related from the Master to a student who had to prove himself or herself in many ways. Since the invention of mass printing, many previously handwritten manuscripts have been translated and deciphered and have become available to the general public. People with little or no background -- and therefore limited understanding -- in Magick, were attracted to such publications. The mind, ever ready to create new and colourful fabrics, grasps this opportunity to interpret according to its fancy. When this is done with something as powerful as Enochian Energy, it can lead to all sorts of disorders and problems.

Enochian Energy manifests itself in as many ways as the Sun has rays. This Energy is within each and every one of us. But in most people the Energy is latent. Like electricity, it is neutral. The Masters stress the need to gain control of any kind of power. To illustrate this point, one could compare such control to an electric-light dimmer, which, with each turn of the dial, gradually releases more energy and so, increases the light. With any kind of energy -- anger, for example, which can express great power -- control is essential. For those who have "laid the foundation" by learning self-discipline and self-mastery, the Energy of Enochian Magick, when understood, can be controlled at will. The foundation must be built slowly and carefully so that this ability to control can be developed.

My own introduction to Enochian Magick came about through a series of mysterious events over a number of years. The difference between the Enochian teachings and my own background proved often to be perplexing, leading to doubts, confusions and misinterpretations. But my desire to learn and to know was so great that this may have created by itself -- or with external help -- a sensitivity, enabling me to understand what was presented to me, thus helping me to absorb what was given on each occasion that I read the manuscripts. But I must confess, these "seeds" took their own time to germinate.

Even ordinary changes in life are often resisted because of the uncertainty of the unknown. This insecurity is due to the intellect's putting itself on the throne of omniscience and dismissing what it does not know as non-existent. When the unknown is encountered the intellect, together with the emotions, puts up a struggle to eliminate it or explain it away. Because of this human attitude, man knows little about himself and is so timid about finding out, that only a very few courageous persons can free themselves from this limitation. The progress of human life is very slow, and because of this, those who "Dare" to explore man's possible powers tend to keep the secrets to themselves.

We each use our intellect differently: "a person of high intellect is one who can learn from the mistakes of others, without having to repeat them". I tell you now, in truth: "All suffering is self-created because of ignorance. Remove ignorance and there will be no suffering". The Energy of Enochian Magick, when properly handled and controlled, can become a very powerful tool in one's life.

To the uninitiated, this Energy makes its presence felt most of the time accidently or only in a limited way as clairvoyance, clairaudience, or personal magnetism.

Many exercises and Rituals will be given in these writings, some of them in a form that the aspirant may consider "skimpy" or not clearly defined. The reason for the lack of definition is to exert as little influence as possible, so as to allow the aspirant as much freedom and autonomy as possible. It is the task of every Teacher or Master not to take the joy of discovery from the student, and I will continue, within these writings, to follow this tradition.

There is no mystification about the awakening of the Energy of Enochian Magick, yet the process leads to the Mystical Experience.

2. TO THE BEGINNING ASPIRANT:

Self-development in Enochian Magick may, in the initial stages, seem to have much in common with the psychological approaches of the human growth movement. However, the goals are fundamentally different. The person who undertakes human growth therapy works towards self-acceptance, efficient functioning in everyday life, and mature relationships that are not based on emotional needs. But the spiritual/magickal aspirant, man or woman, looks at this motivation from a different perspective.

There is already an innate perception, however vague, that there is more to life than having a family, friends, reasonable financial success -- "the good life". For such a person the goal is liberation from all limitations, realizing all man's potentials, and, finally, the Self merged with the Higher Self.

Anyone entering the Path of Enochian Magick must clarify the reasons and motivations for considering such an undertaking. Any building, be it a storeroom, a tiny house, or a spacious mansion, needs a foundation. The type of foundation reflects the purpose of the building to be constructed. Similarly, the foundation of a Spiritual/Magickal life indicates the perception of the purpose of life, and the way of life chosen will reflect this purpose.

During the time that the foundation is laid, the aspirant will need special tools to help in this development. These tools will be supplied in the form of indepth information, exercises, and rituals. The aspirant will then "hone" these tools to "razor sharpness" through regular daily practice and sincere meditation. Eventually, they will become written upon his heart and engraved in his mind.

The question to be asked is: "What is the purpose of my life. What makes my life worth living?" This is the beginning of self-inquiry, and in the pages that follow it will be frequently asked -- on behalf of the aspirant -- "What do you mean by ...... such words as consciousness, mind, ego? What are their characteristics? Do you use these words synonymously, or is there a difference?" Without such self-inquiry, you are subject to the authority and opinions of others -- parents, friends, spouse, the mass media, and so on. We must investigate all of our concepts and ideas, anything we have accepted blindly, without question. Such unquestioning acceptance of authority or opinion is tantamount to allowing ourselves to be hypnotized, programmed, and conditioned. We must ask, "What is hypnosis" Where (in what areas of my life) am I hypnotized?" You may find that you are indeed being hypnotized and that in your early years you were programmed by the ideas, and in some cases, the misconceptions of the adults around you. Perhaps you were told, "You can't play outside if it's raining because you will catch a cold." Years later, you may still catch a cold on a rainy day.

We condition ourselves with such ideas as, "I only slept for four hours last night so I will be tired by this afternoon." We tell ourselves, "I hate getting up in the mornings", but do we really mean, "I am unwilling to face the daily problems?" The words "hypnosis", "conditioning", and "programming" need to be very carefully investigated in the light of your own experience and understanding. Not what the book says. Not what the hypnotist, teacher or television says. What do YOU mean by them?

In the course of Spiritual/Magickal growth, all of our concepts, ideas, and beliefs have to be investigated and re-evaluated over and over again. What you are thinking now may hold no value in three months or three years. You will have grown, your awareness will have increased, and your level of understanding will have risen. From being a sleepwalker, a hypnotized or conditioned person, you gradually become a person who is aware. The process of waking up from ignorance and delusion, of becoming free from as many limitations as possible, and eventually of reaching the goal of Cosmic Consciousness -- the Higher Self -- is the process of the Path of Enochian Magick.

There are a number of pitfalls against which the aspirant must be on guard. The first is the habit of making assumptions. "I assume" means "I really don't know", and all decisions that are based only on assumption are futile and useless. The assumption that life must always be exciting can lead the aspirant to another pitfall: seeking to develop psychic powers. These powers are not in themselves harmful or a hindrance to further development. It is rather the self-indulgence, the need for continuous excitement that will finally lead to downfall on the Spiritual/Magickal Path, as one loses sight of the goal in the search for entertainment. This attitude will prevent the development of inner peace and harmony and the achievement of depth and quality in human relationships or personal experiences. To live between boredom and excitement is to be caught on a teeter-totter, having little control of your destiny, subject to the vicissitudes of life. The purpose of Enochian Magick is to become aware and to know yourself. This is the Path that leads to freedom -- and the ultimate attainment to your Higher Self.

Another pitfall for the aspirant is to seek a Teacher or Master on the basis of a display of psychic powers. These are in no way evidence of a high level of Spirituality or Wisdom. They may be very useful, and many who have developed these powers have done some very good work with them. But others have developed them to promote their self-importance and personal gain. Psychic ability is no proof of being a great Teacher or Master, or even of being Spiritual or endowed with great Wisdom.

Surrender, humility, sincerity, determination and application are the most important requirements for practicing Enochian Magick. When all the exercises and Rituals have been done and a certain degree of self-mastery, self-discipline, concentration, meditation, contemplation and proficiency has been achieved, you may go in search of your Teacher or Master. "When the student is ready, a Master will come forth". The aspirant may ask, Why not now, at this stage? Most Teachers and Masters take for granted that this foundation of self-discipline has already been laid. No one can be taught to write poetry when the alphabet has not yet been learned. Therefore, learn the ABC's before you go looking for the Z's.

Awareness will come in degrees and at one point in the process of experience and development a Teacher or Master will be necessary. You would not expect to become a qualified doctor solely through studying medicine theoretically. Reading about surgical procedures would not give one the courage to perform an operation. Treatment or surgery on the mind demands a Spiritual/Magickal Teacher or Master, for in both cases the practical guidance is needed. From a philosophical point of view, all we learn in school is only information. Practical knowledge and wisdom is gained from personal experience and reflection.

Many people find it difficult to put their faith in something from which there is no tangible return. The fear of putting years of effort into what could prove to be an illusion is understandable. The proof that this arduous task of self-development and the attainment to the Higher Self is worth all the effort lies in the emergence of self-mastery in your life.

The self-control and discipline achieved by regularly performing the exercises and Rituals is itself a power. Increased concentration, control of emotions, expanded awareness, loss of fear, growing courage, an inner knowledge and wisdom, and self-confidence all pave the road to realization and give proof to the aspirant that the Path of Enochian Magick is indeed real.

So any potential aspirant, after much thought on the subject of Enochian Magick, must ask some pertinent questions: What is really involved? What is this process of learning? What can I gain from it? What are the obstacles to learning? Can they be overcome? How? What does it mean to be an aspirant? What is my motive for interest in the Spiritual/Magickal life?

The practice of Enochian Magick is deeply involving. Mere dabbling is very dangerous; half-knowledge is worse than no knowledge at all. No progress is possible through reading the texts, intellectualizing about their contents and then dismissing them. Many people are victims of their own self-deception, judging themselves to be good people and assuming that they have faith. How the knowledge gained is applied to your life is essentially the determining factor. Sincerity is the key-note.

The process of learning is a continuous one -- as with a concert pianist, practice never stops. "Do I want to learn" is then an important decision which must be supported by the Will -- it is indeed a decision of Will. In contrast to Will, there is self-will, which creates obstacles -- intellectualizations and justifications -- that divert the aspirant from the Path. Self-discipline, enforced by the Will, must be exercised to overcome these obstacles. Each victory makes one stronger.

Where does this leave the aspirant who is married, who may have an earnest yearning toward expanded consciousness and the attainment to the Higher Self? To these aspirants I always suggest that family life is an excellent opportunity to practice selfless service, to develop consideration, love, patience, and understanding, and to expand that kindness to others who are not of one's kin; to consider oneself to be God's caretaker of the family and those in need, and to love without attachment or strings. I would further say to the aspirant, that this is the best preparation for the time when Spiritual/Magickal practice can be pursued with all the intensity of which one is capable. Since one cannot serve two masters, it may be better to accept that limitation while it exists and spent that time in self-development and Ritual Practice -- this also includes learning all the written material that is totally essential to the practice of Enochian Magick.

The aspirant must be prepared to face the problem of "What will other people think?" There may be accusations, "Aren't you being selfish? Isn't this just another ego trip? That's black magic, why are you doing it? What a terrible thing to do to your family!"

Some academic careers may take twelve years' training -- which may not make one a better person, or any wiser as far as personal life is concerned. Yet this "selfish" period, devoted to acquiring academic knowledge and developing skills in a particular field, is never questioned. But, when it comes to Spiritual Attainment and self-development to become a better person, to find meaning in life, the time and effort spent seems to require justification.

People once considered friends, may turn cold. They feel challenged and, not prepared to accept the challenge, they turn away. Suddenly the Path seems very lonely. There is no one to turn to, no shoulder to lean on. The Light that you are following seems less visible. However, at the same time another phase becomes apparent. A sense of freedom from the tyranny of social obligations, from continually struggling to meet other people's expectations, is experienced. This freedom is like a breath of fresh Air!

The aspirant will, every now and then, be assailed by doubt.

The question must be asked, "Do I doubt so that I don't have to act, so that I can keep a back door open through which I can escape?" or "Do I doubt because I have an intuitive perception that this doubt could expand my present limited ideas?"

The first kind of doubt is an obstacle created by self-will.

The second is a necessary step in the process of development. Be patient. Any discovery by yourself, however small, becomes a knowing within that provides another stone for a foundation of stability, security and confidence. Observation and awareness develop in an aspirant in proportion to the desire to know oneself, by the courage to accept that which is observed and, finally, by the application of the Will to make the necessary changes.

Worship -- religious, spiritual or magickal -- seems to have lost its place in modern life. Yet there is in every man and woman, coming to the foreground in precious moments, the value, the greatness, and the rightness to worship that which is a great inspiration. Somewhere within everyone there is a knowing of a Greater Power, and it is this inner knowing that generates within us the urge to worship. When we recognize that we are a bridge between two worlds, the mental-physical-material on the one hand and the Spiritual-Magickal on the other, and when we walk over this bridge, there is suddenly a profound humility as we come to realize and confront that great and awesome Power.

The aspirant must decide if he or she is prepared to embark upon this Path of Spiritual Enlightenment; prepared to do the work and make the sacrifices.

Let there be no mistake, the "Pearl of Great Price" exacts its price.

SO LET US BEGIN!

3. SPEECH (LEVEL ONE):

Speech has to be recognized as an integral part in the process of self-development. Each of us uses speech in different ways. The way we use speech is a reflection of "Who" and "What" we are.

The great significance of speech, personalized or deified, can perhaps only be understood if it is borne in mind that the Ancient Teachers and Masters handed down their wisdom by word of mouth. The spoken word, trusted to memory, can float away into the distance of time because of its intangible nature. This points out the incredible power of memory of these Ancient Teachers and Masters, and their students.

Each Letter of the Enochian Alphabet is sacred in nature. This is to signify that every word or sound has power -- The Enochian Texts like many of the Scriptural Texts contain commands or utterances that show a common recognition of the power of the Word. For example, Jesus in Matthew 12:36,37, says: "But I say unto you, that every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment. For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned". This quotation refers to cause and effect as it is expressed in the idea of Karma. It points to scrutiny of all actions, including speech, and implies a depth of responsibility that we rarely consider. Similarly, the concept of non-injury means that all actions, speech, and deeds have to be performed without injury to anyone else or to oneself. That is a simple expression of a complex formula and therefore needs to be pursued in depth. This power is not only connected to the emotions and mental activities, but also to a Spirit of the Highest Order. It can, therefore, lift us to heights we ordinarily do not even anticipate. Speech has two aspects -- the audible and the inaudible. Inaudible speech differs from mere talking in one's head; it is an ethereal intuitive perception. It is also called the Language of the Heart.

Each Enochian letter, sound, word, or phrase is a source of virtually unlimited power. Because the Path of Enochian Magick is a path of evolution, it becomes evident that in each letter of the Enochian Alphabet there is an increased perception of Power manifest producing all forthcoming letters.

The mere naming of things has been man's privilege, of which he makes wide use until awareness of the true power of language is realized. Speech has to be refined. One must become aware of one's speech. Coarse language is termed "wrong conduct" for all aspirants of any path. Sensitivity is only gained by refinement and cultivation. As a plant is cultivated, so humans must cultivate themselves to become more sensitive in a positive way. The Ancient Teachers and Masters, being highly developed seers, were the recipients of the Ancient Texts. They perceived "Divine Insight" by an indescribable intuition and power of mind. The power of mind is needed to transmit what has been intuitively perceived into speech. The Masters knew of these powers of mind and sound by experience, and they understood the force inherent in the mind and its desire to create. The purpose of the Master was, by their higher perceptions, to guide mankind. When we speak of powers today, it is often assumed that such powers are meant for the control of others -- nothing could be further from the truth. But the Masters knew that their powers were intended to be used in the service of others.

The powers of the Masters and Teachers of old were achieved by persistent practice. As discipline slowly declined, those living towers of knowledge and goodness seemed to vanish. Their stories appear to have no more relevance, as it is inconceivable to the modern person that anyone could have such an awesome memory and such intense concentration.

Rituals are words of power and include formulations in praise of aspects of the Divine. On a basic level, the Rituals are used as an incantation similar to those of some Christian churches. At a higher level, the Rituals are practiced for single-pointedness of mind. On a still higher level, the Rituals are used to activate and amplify both the latent forces which are within every human being and the Cosmic Forces.

To speak these words or sounds of power is to acquire the power in them and to come in contact with the source of sound and thought, the "root" of the Ritual. The Master or Seer who became the receptacle of the Ritual had achieved that state of mind.

The sincere aspirant seeks the accomplishments of the Master and wishes to become such a receptacle also.

The empty mind (void) is too awesome for the average person to conceive. The mind resists a vacuum and does its best to fill it with its own creations. So it is a constant battle to keep the mind still, in its natural state of calm (pure mind). Finally, when the mental processes have exhausted themselves through the reciting of a Ritual, the mind becomes open to very subtle intuitive perceptions. At a certain point, it would not be an exaggeration to say that some of these perceptions are emanations from a source that is outside the human mind.

Just as on a particular level there can be a meeting of like minds, it is not unreasonable to contemplate that one can come in contact with that vortex of Energy that can only be called "Divine Consciousness". It is also not unreasonable to contemplate that one can come in contact with the Energy that was at some time in a physical body. Both of these forms of energy will help, guide, and sustain the aspirant to be persistent in their study and Ritual practice.

FIRST LEVEL EXERCISES IN SPEECH

Speech is man's most constant expression, his greatest performance, and the barometer of his emotions. Between the cry for help and the cry of joy there is a whole range of sounds expressing minute degrees of emotion. The foremost tool for self-expression is the human voice. Control of speech is a necessity and the practice itself is of great significance because of restlessness and the tendency of most of us to indulge in talking, using words either with or without sense. The urge to talk may originate from the fear of silence or loneliness, or the pride of wanting to show off what one knows, or the need to put in one's "two-cents worth". Even giving advice can be more a case of a desire for self-expression than concern for the one who is seeking help.

An awareness of speech is essential in order to discover these urges.

1. Keep a ring or small coin in your mouth to give just enough time to ask yourself why you need to say something and what it is you want to say, since the coin has to be tucked under the tongue or in the cheek before you can say anything.

Talking can be evidence of the desire to be noticed, or to defend your actions. Fear can be the motivation for the need to talk, perhaps to quiet the still, small voice within. "I don't have to listen if I keep on talking". The manifestation of the human voice can be a curse as well as a blessing. What is behind your urge to keep talking?

1. Self-justification?
2. Killing time?
3. Self-importance?
4. So that you won't have to listen ... to others?
5. So that you won't have to listen to your Inner Self?
6. The desire to talk about yourself?
7. The mistaken belief that you are sharing, when you are really only trying to collect pity from others?

Notice how you use terms connected with speech and the organs of speech:

1. Double-tongued.
2. Tongued-tied.
3. Getting your teeth into something.
4. Being in the grip of the need for self-expression through talking.
5. Opening up lanes of communications.
6. {Add your own terms to the list.}

The tone of voice can express a whole range of emotions -- joy, happiness, laughter, doubt, irony, and arrogance. A quiet, low voice makes everybody listen. (This is a trick used by politicians when they want to be heard).

Difficulties in self-expression may be caused by shyness (Why is one shy? Is it perhaps the reflection of an inverted ego?), or the result of speaking before thinking. (Students often remark, "I don't know what I am going to say until I hear myself saying it". It might be necessary to find out what is behind such a remark.)

It is advisable to practice silence. Mahatma Gandhi set a wonderful example by observing silence for certain hours on a particular day. No one could persuade him to break his silence. The highest dignitaries had to wait to speak to him. Mahatma Gandhi knew the significance of the control of speech for himself and the reflection of this on others.

The aspirant must choose a time when the temptation to talk is greatest. The continuous need to express oneself has no validity in the life of an aspirant. All urges must be under control and all excuses must be dropped. The hours, the length of time, must be determined before hand to enforce discipline and a written record kept of the results.

Refined speech is song, sung in glorification of a Power greater than one's own.

Important Note:

It is important for the aspirant to remember that speech is an expression of creation. When the meaning of the power of speech is comprehended, then the importance of "key words or sentences" in the mind can be understood and used to effect changes. The key sentence is a short command phrase that is used, most of the time without awareness, in a repetitive way: "I can't do this" or "I have never done such a thing" -- thereby undermining willingness to try (and avoiding success). Key sentences or words can be counteracted in a positive manner.

There is room for a great deal of experimentation by the individual aspirant. Key sentences have to be short to be effective. Their formulation should be clear and positive, and can be compared to suggestion.

4. THE SENSE OF SMELL:

In many people the sense of smell is quite undeveloped, while in others it is very keen. There are, of course, various degrees in between.

A person whose sense of smell is little developed has not paid enough attention to its function. Lack of concern can be called inertia or laziness. But, with even a little thought, it is obvious that the sense of smell is very important. For example, it tells when food has become rotten. It also recognizes by the aroma of good food cooking that a delicious meal is about to be served.

Very often the attraction to the opposite sex takes place on the level of physical smell. The eyes may not be satisfied with what they see, or the ears may not be pleased with what they hear, but smell might attract because it has a very strong connection to the powerful sexual instinct. The physical smell of some people (not only from lack of cleanliness) can create difficulties for one sensitive in this area, when it is necessary to share limited space.

The sense of smell affects an individual differently at different times. Therefore, it is absolutely necessary that one learns to control the sense of smell -- in addition to all the other senses.

Padre Pio, a Franciscan monk of Italy, who was one of the few men bearing all five stigmata (marks of Jesus) on his body, had the ability of bilocation (being in two places at once). His presence was recognized by his disciples through the smell of roses and violets. There have been hundreds of such reports from Catholics and non-Catholics alike. In India, devotees of Shiva (Siva) have experienced his presence by a very delicate fragrance of sandalwood. Often a group of people who pray and meditate together can, at the moment of having transcended personality aspects, experience some very beautiful scents -- This can also be experienced by a single person while praying, meditating, or performing the Enochian Rituals. These scents may not seem to belong to any particular flower, but those present will experience, through their sensitivity of smell, an elevated state. To some, there may be a distinct feeling or knowing of Divine Presence.

EXERCISES TO DEVELOP SMELL

Become familiar with the difference in the smell of each fruit, each vegetable. Do not just smell food as being good or bad. Observe how much smell stimulates you in eating or drinking. Does coffee really taste as good as it smells? Can you think of a drink or a food that smells terrible but tastes wonderful, besides ripe cheese? In the reverse, what smells good but tastes terrible?

Check your own body at different times of the day to observe different smells. Discover the difference between the smell of the body and the smell of the breath by breathing into your hands. Also smell your clothes when you take them off. When you use creams, ointments, colognes, or perfumes, find out if they blend with your natural body odour. The body will give off different smells if you change your diet or if you fast. Most people give off a terrible odour when fasting. Your own breath can tell you if there is an oncoming illness. Increase your time for breathing exercises (dealt with in a later section) to help the body deal with and overcome the problem.
Blindfold your eyes and have someone arrange a number of different items for you to identify by smell. The objects must not, of course, be seen, touched or tasted. Record your guesses and observations on a tape recorder and then transfer them into your written diary for future reference in checking your development. With a little practice one is able to name or describe accurately what is smelled.
The higher state of the sense of smell is achieved at a further stage in development when all senses are refined and when the mind has been given the proper discipline.

5. TASTE:
There can be no clear distinction about taste, because all human characteristics are interwoven, but in the course of self-development there is a gradual refinement and escalation of the senses. Therefore, the senses can be compared to the keyboard of a piano. High and low keys are played in skillful harmony. This is the objective.
In regard to food and drink it is the tongue that we taste with, yet in daily language it becomes apparent that taste is also related to other areas besides the liking for certain foods and delicacies. The cultivation of taste in food leads to the ability to really taste a carrot or a pea by itself, without the addition of spices. There is the cultivating of taste in dress and decoration, and in the arts. The word "taste" is also used to indicate discrimination in manners, speech, and behaviour.
The display of good taste seems to give an individual a certain charm which opens the doors of friendship and is an advantage in various work situations. The appreciation of art is, in part, cultivation of good taste, to which a sense of beauty also belongs.
The awareness of a particular sense becomes more acute by isolating it and by recognizing the interplay of forces which would not be understood unless attention were directed in this way. When greater awareness of the function of taste is achieved, its constant stimulation by a chain of reactions will be understood, particularly "feeding" the imagination and "feeding" the mind.
There is a saying, "We are what we eat". Let us pause to think about this. Does our choice of food point to certain characteristics of indulgence? What does it indicate about our mental and emotional make-up? Taste for something is created and recreated by memory. The actual need (for food, sex) may not exist, but memory of some pleasant experience creates the desire to re-experience. Other motivations might reinforce this, such as rewarding oneself.

Until the sense of taste is refined to the magickal level we cannot experience the purity, or magickal quality, of food. The energy in food is magickal if there is no influence from taste stimuli. Fasting gives you an opportunity to understand how the stimulations to the sense of taste affect its purity. During a fast observe the effects of the imagination and investigate any problems that arise. Dreams should be watched during fasting. Do they contain food, and which ones? Dreams may indicate that certain foods are not good for us.

Taste has to be seen in a broader sense by understanding the connection between taste and imagination. Indulgence by any one of the senses is like swimming in murky water of unfathomable depth, with no shores in sight, and no hope of reaching firm ground. Once the taste of imagination has been experienced the temptations are difficult to resist.

Many important decisions in life have been made (marriage, business) based on unrealistic expectations -- imagination kindled by desire.

Does this process of investigation exclude spontaneity? Not at all, as long as we discriminate between indulgence and spontaneity. No sense should be killed or dulled, but rather refined to the utmost degree.

EXERCISES TO DEVELOP TASTE

The exercises on taste begin with food. For the average person the sense of taste has been dulled and so spices are used to increase taste, to create more stimulation to the tongue, and thereby promote appetite. In these exercises nothing is used that could mask the taste. They are done blindfolded so there will be no interference from another powerful sense -- SIGHT.

1. Place a piece of food such as finely grated carrot or a single pea on the tongue and experience the sensations. They are quite different from, for example, those of a few grains of sugar, a little bit of milk or chocolate. Notice the urge to bite or chew, and to swallow. It is not easy to resist in the beginning and points to greediness. The exercise should be done on a full stomach; then later, using the same ingredients, on an empty stomach.

2. Food and beverages (including water) allow endless possibilities for investigating the sense of taste and make the aspirant aware of areas that have been given little or no attention. When sufficient exercises have been done blindfolded, they should also be done with the eyes open to recognize how much stimulation comes from sight. Interaction with the sense of smell should not be ignored. Every detail is important in the exercise and should be carefully observed and noted:

a. How does the food or drink smell?
b. Is smell important?

c. Or is taste?
3. The taste of food creates a great stimulation to the emotions and vice versa. The law of thought association brings past images into the mind. Food can mean:
a. Socializing, under the disguise of sharing.
b. Obtaining recognition and acceptance for exquisite cooking and special recipes.
c. Reaction to self-pity by eating.
d. Rewarding oneself.
4. Think about the following:
a. Is one born with a certain sense of taste or is this sense developed?
b. Is taste a source of continuous desires?
c. What part does gratification or emotional satisfaction play?
d. What is the grip that taste has?
e. What compulsions, leading to indulgence, are connected with taste?
f. After the initial experience of taste, does greed take control?
Once an attempt is made to answer these questions on a personal basis, many more questions will come up leading to insights about one's sense of taste. The finer things like wine, caviar, and other delicacies should not be overlooked. This poses a very interesting question -- the refinement of taste of the tongue in comparison to taste on a higher level, disassociated from the tongue.
The following list may help to stimulate your thinking and understanding of the sense of taste:
a. Indulgence, likes -- delight.
b. Aversion, dislikes -- abhorrence.
c. Indifference -- neutral.
d. Hot food and drink.
e. Cold food and drink.
f. Spicy food and drink.
g. Alcohol.
5. Make a list of likes and dislikes. How strong are they? Bringing them into balance makes them less extreme. From strong uncontrolled likes and dislikes arise such characteristics as: aversion, hatred, conceit, envy, jealousy, possessiveness, arrogance, passion, lust, infatuation, dullness, and laziness. Observation of any of these characteristics does not mean condemnation, but rather identification of them and the slow change towards the opposite of each in order to achieve a balance. Any tendency to be judgmental would just add another undesirable quality. The daily diary can be seen as a mirror in which events are recorded and which allows development in the practice of awareness to be observed. This is very encouraging and should be looked on as a reward for effort.
6. Cultivation can begin by developing "taste" for the more beneficial attitudes and actions in life:
a. Having good taste in appearance, clothing and furniture.

b. Having good taste in arts.
c. Handling a delicate situation in good taste.
7. Taste as related and unrelated to the taste buds:
a. The affair that soured.
b. Speech as sweet as honey.
c. A sweet person.
d. The taste of Divine nectar and ambrosia.
8. Make a list and try to explain the reasons:
a. What is tasteful to you?
b. What is distasteful to you?

When these exercises in taste have been done, some should be repeated with the guiding thoughts:
a. What is the act of tasting?
b. What is tasted?

9. Now answer these questions about water and then add others you can think of:
a. How different can water taste?
b. What is the power of water?
c. What is in a drop?

10. Think about the following:
a. Standing in the rain and letting the raindrops fall in your mouth.
b. Tasting the snow or a piece of ice.
c. Tasting the tears of joy or sorrow.
d. Can I drink the ocean? (of Divine Wisdom)
e. Have I a thirst for life?
f. Have I a thirst for the spirit of life?

11. Pay attention to tension in the jaws:
a. Indicating what?
b. Getting one's teeth into something.
c. Being in the grip of criticism.
d. Being in the grip of oneself.
e. Being in the grip of others.
f. Being in the grip of sex.
g. Being in the grip of emotions.
h. Being in the grip of bitterness.
i. Being in the grip of negative experience.
j. Spitting it out (in disgust) ... bitterness or negative experience.

Swallowing insults and still smiling is a characteristic that tells us of the necessity of going beyond praise and blame. Unless taste in a general way is understood and under control, it will not be easy to develop a taste for the Divine Food of the Most High.

6. SIGHT:

When dealing with sight we have to recognize the different manifestations of this sense. Therefore, it is necessary to clarify our thoughts on sight.

What would your life be if you had no sight? Have you taken sight for granted? Is there a difference between "I look" and "I see"? What is sight? Do the eyes record as efficiently as a photographic camera? Watch the process of seeing, then analyze it. When you "look" do you "see"? When does awareness come in? Can sight be cultivated?

In fact, all five senses have to be exercised to bring them to their very best. If seeing is a mental process as well as physical, then the question of "How do I see?" carries more importance. If the eyes register the visual impression and the mind interprets it, then is "clear sight" really possible? When the mind interprets, what is the basis of the interpretation? What prevents clear sight?

The answer might point to the emotions. Mind, the interpreter, is perhaps not as reliable as it is often considered (particularly when logic is claimed as its attribute) because the emotions insert their own filters, different coloured filters for different emotions.

This is evident in the number of different ways an accident can be seen by several witnesses. In each case, the personal emotional filters, formed from the past experience, likes and dislikes, or even the thoughts that were in the mind immediately prior to the event, influence the perception of what has been observed. Clear sight is pure mind, uncoloured perception.

Sight has to be investigated in the same way as the previous senses to understand what it means and how it functions, not so much from the anatomical point of view as to be aware of what is happening when one sees something. For example, food is selected by the eyes for its appearance, its freshness. Immediately one sees appetizing food, the mouth begins to water. The saying that the eyes are bigger than the stomach is well-known. It might be very helpful to know which of the senses is most stimulated toward eating and what part sight plays in this.

A quick glance at surroundings can give information about conditions. They are speedily assessed by the mind as to whether they are favourable or unfavourable. If an object is in the way, seeing it makes one either remove it or walk around it, unless the sight has been diverted, in which case, one will probably trip over it.

If the exercises are done as they are laid out in the following pages, the aspirant will find that the control that is achieved is a power in itself, and that a more intense level of concentration, meditation, contemplation, and proficiency will be reached. The power of concentration is obvious in the lives of the Enochian Masters, but it is present also (to a limited degree) in people who are successful in daily life. With respect to Enochian Magick, history tells of Masters who have developed special powers and were capable of accomplishing phenomenal feats, bordering on the miraculous.

This may be difficult for the beginning aspirant to believe. However, proof will lie not in the witnessing of someone else's extraordinary acts, but rather in one's own achievements. The power of concentration does increase and when, after a few years of practice, a greater level of intense concentration is achieved, it must be realized that one has still not reached the highest limit. The power will continue to increase to a miraculous degree.

Seeing facts as they are helps to build confidence and makes one a stronger person. If one can see what is, instead of what one wants to see, there is much less self-inflicted pain. It may seem cruel to be urged to give up one's illusions, but to insist on seeing what is not there must someday lead to a rude awakening. The result is pain, and this pain is self-created. Various levels and qualities apply to sight as well as to emotions. Both need to be cultivated. The physical eye which can appreciate high quality craftsmanship will develop creative inner sight which will manifest in due time. Raw and powerful emotions have to be cultivated into refined feelings through this insight and (inner) sight. Sensitivity to one's own emotions, to one's own ego, has to be cultivated until one responds with refined feelings, with understanding , until eventually the cultivated feelings reach the level of compassion -- compassion for others. All self-development must be used in helping others if a higher level of consciousness -- the Goal of Liberation -- and the attainment to the Higher Self are to be achieved.

After examining sight, insight, and the mind's eye, investigation of the sense of sight can be taken one step further, to the third eye (Spiritual Eye), which is indicated as having its location in the space between the eyebrows. No physical eye is involved. We are dealing with the center of sight that is in the brain, in which the power of sight is located.

THE POWER THAT HAS CREATED THE EYE CAN SEE.

This would also apply to all other senses. Intuition is the highly refined expression of a sense, in this case sight, which takes on almost the quality of the third eye. Like the blood that moves through the whole body, the Energy of Enochian Magick moves through all the senses to a greater or lesser degree.

EXERCISES TO DEVELOP SIGHT

You might start this investigation with "Do I see myself? How do I see myself?" When these questions are asked for the first time the answers should be written down. At another time when the questions are posed again, the answers will be significantly different because of the previous "insight".
Continue this investigation with such questions as: "How do others see me -- my husband, wife, son, daughter, co-workers?" "Do I identify with others? How do I see them? Do I see myself in others? What should I identify with? How can I see myself? When do I screen things out? What is it that I don't want to see? Why?"
It is necessary to see where one keeps oneself intentionally blind and to clarify what screens are put up in front of things we do not want to see. Every emotion erects its own screen, preventing clear sight.

1. Try to identify the screens, the emotions, expressed by:

a. I saw red and didn't know what I was doing.

b. I can't see this person or this object going out of my life.

To see something that is not there means one cannot see clearly what is there.

2. Check your habitual way of looking at things. Find out where you are not recording what you have seen -- with the inner eye as well as the physical eye.

In all these investigations there must be the overriding thought "knowing myself will make me free". Therefore, it must be understood that the interplay of the forces of sight and emotions is particularly powerful.

3. Look at an inanimate object such as a piece of wood, a glass of water, piece of cloth, or a sheet of paper, for three (3) minutes and note the intruding thoughts which prevent single-pointedness of sight in regard to the object. Now, for comparison, look at a photograph of a loved one or revered person, or the picture of a child, a bird, or a flower. Afterwards, your notes can be compared and the ability to concentrate established. The exercise could be timed for greater accuracy.

4. Sit comfortably facing another person and look into each other's eyes for a certain period of time, without moving or talking, trying not to blink. Observe the activity of the mind and the emotions and later record these observations in your diary.

5. Create a painting or sculpture in your mind's eye, or use an image from the third exercise. Again observe what happens and check how long you are able to hold your concentration and, which of the objects holds the concentration longest.

6. Sitting quietly and observing the mind is like seeing with the mind's eye, seeing what appears on one's mental screen. Notes should be taken periodically and the material later looked over and dealt with where necessary. There is much to learn about one's mind and about thought association, which in time becomes extremely helpful and revealing. Problem areas which appear over and over have to be dealt with, otherwise they will become a disturbance and an almost insurmountable obstacle to meditation and concentration. The time spent doing this exercise can begin with ten (10) minutes and then be doubled, tripled, and so on.

7. Look at an ordinary stone for not less than three (3) minutes. Then shift to a semi-precious or precious stone, whatever is available, and recognize its symbolic meaning for you.

8. Look at the colours in your room. Fix your eyes for a few minutes on one colour at a time. Clarify what the colours mean to you.

9. In your mind's eye see a flame. Does it consume anything? Or is something emerging from the flame? Now visualize your Heart. Imagine a blue flame on an altar there. Take the flame and place it on the heads of friends or loved ones. Write down what comes to mind during this visualization.

10. Place a coloured dot on a plain piece of white paper. The dot should be one-half to three-quarters of an inch in size. Look at the dot without blinking until the eyes water. Practice must be kept up to lengthen the time. Record your observations in your diary.

Now, look at the dot, breathe in, hold the breath, tense the hands, let the breath out and relax. Again, write down all observations.

Make a comparison of concentration on the dot and looking into a person's eyes (exercise #4). Record the differences in your diary.

11. Sit in a comfortable position and think of the navel. Focus your eyes on the spot between the eyebrows. Form a clear picture of a silver disc (the Moon) on the top of your navel. When the picture is clear, bring in feeling and watch the coolness move in concentric circles, mingling pleasantly with your body heat. If the mind becomes active beyond the concentration on the silver disc and the cool feeling, add some bold letters such as LOVE, PEACE, GOD, or LIGHT.

12. Sit with the spine straight, neck and shoulders relaxed, breathing steady. Make yourself comfortable. Think of the image of a person of your choice. Focus all your attention on this image. Now see the figure sitting on top of your head. Think of your spine continuing into the spine of the figure. Choose the most meaningful image of perfection for you and see it as a human form sitting cross-legged on top of your head. Record all that happens.

13. Gaze into a portrait sized mirror, seeing only your head, neck and shoulders. What do you see? A face of resentment or pain? Is it a face one can trust? Does it look deceitful or does the inner Light show through? What kind of face do you see? Look at your face for two (2) or three (3) minutes, then close your eyes and visualize it. Make brief notes. Double the time for the next period of looking and continue closing the eyes, visualizing, making notes, until you are able to hold the image with closed eyes.

When you can successfully see in your mind's eye the image of yourself that was reflected in the mirror, project your image into the sky.

There is no depth of understanding of the sense of sight unless these exercises are done, and these are only a beginning. With every exercise always remember, "I see, the act of seeing, and what is seen?" Follow this process to understand the sense of sight and its effects.

7. TOUCH:

Air and touch are the particular subjects of this section. The air indicates lightness; it cannot be grasped and held onto. Breathing is vital to the human life. A touch as light as breath is only possible when all self-gratification has been renounced. Grasping is different from touching.

To touch a silken cloth is to feel its softness, but to touch a piece of rock is to feel its roughness. We think of touching the human skin, feeling the softness, warmth, and the pulsating life; or we can think of allowing someone to touch us and responding to what that touch conveys. A touching gesture can be more helpful than words in comforting someone, yet the right words can also touch one inside.

"Touching" and "feeling" are interchanged in everyday language. Should they be? Touch and feelings can be seen as emotions that are being cultivated. Uncultivated touch will be rough, without awareness for the sensitivity of what is touched, be it a person or an object. Touch is often emotionally stimulated and serves as a barometer to find out if "the touch of one's hand is well-received", which conveys to them that they are accepted. So it serves our own emotional needs rather than being of a giving nature. This motivation to touch would be called selfish (based on desire and instinct). The second level of touch would be partly the fulfillment of our needs, but there would also be a willingness and a readiness to meet the needs of the other person. The underlying factor would be our desire to accept and our need to be accepted. The most desirable touch is that which gives without asking anything in return, a spontaneous from-the-heart action.

EXERCISES TO DEVELOP TOUCH

Once the aspirant begins to practice Enochian Magick, he or she finds that small details have to be given great attention. Here, we must investigate the sense of touch with the same zeal as we have the other senses in the previous sections.

It is now time to check out emotional impulses to see how they have changed into refined feelings and how much still has to be done. As the process of awareness goes on, emotions change too, but sometimes more slowly. To become aware of something disturbing that one has been unaware of can trigger feelings of hurt. By the use of discrimination, as part of awareness, you can quickly discard old experiences and the desire to take revenge for them now. There is no point in getting angry now about something that occurred years back. Awareness should be a tool for a more balanced way of living. Revenge is never good, but this type is very unfair.

In a dispute between parents, children should be left out and not used as objects of revenge. If a mother blesses her child by a gentle and loving touch of her hand and touches the child with her eyes, the father can turn that blessing into a curse in subtle ways. Or vice versa, the mother can turn the blessing of the father into a curse.

1. Investigate what touch means to you:

a. When you say that something touches your heart, what do you mean by this?

b. What does it mean to be touched by a smile or a look of understanding?

c. Think of being touched by the sunshine. In what ways?

d. Energy touches every part of your body and moves around within it. What does this mean to you?

e. Is a healing touch necessarily limited to the laying on of hands? Can it be comfort in emotional desperation?

f. Is there ever a time when touching people is an imposition?

g. Do you consider touching an imposition when you are tired, nervous, or wish to "keep your distance" and retain privacy?

h. Does fear of touching or being touched mean a fear of not measuring up?
i. Does your sense of touch have a powerful influence on your moods?
j. Do you like or dislike being touched and stroked by others?
k. Do you use the sense of touch for differentiation and organization?
l. The hands are the part of the body most used for touching. Hands build and hands destroy. Can this be related to touch and feelings?

Think about each question and then write your answers in your diary. Remember, your answers should be straight forward and honest.

The following exercises will be of assistance in learning more about the sense of touch and the details of this perception, which are usually given little or no attention. The exercises are divided into theoretical and actual parts.

Theoretical:

a. What is your present perception of touch?
b. What can you touch and what can you not touch?
c. How do you relate touch to feelings and to emotions?
d. Do you really experience touch, or do you only remember? How big a part of memory and thought association play in the actual experience of touch?
e. Investigate the sense of touch in relation to the other senses. What is the influence of the other senses?

Actual:

a. The first exercise for the actual sense of touch is to hold or touch objects such as a piece of wood; metal objects, one that is smooth and one that is sharp such as a knife; a smooth stone and one that is rough; hot water and cold water; a leaf; the hair, skin, feet, face, and eyes of another person. Observe all your thoughts and reactions and carefully take note of them. Record them in your diary.

b. Take a piece of perfectly clean, white cloth. Rub your hands on the cloth, saying aloud, "Dirt be removed, Dirt be removed", over and over again. The cloth will, of course become dirty. The remembrance that it was perfectly white at one time will lead gradually to insights.

c. Sit comfortably facing another person and touch just the fingertips of your hands together. Observe all impressions, thoughts, and reactions, and write them down afterwards in your diary.

This exercise can also be done with each person holding the hands close to, but not touching, the others hands. Observe the difference and write them down in your diary. Compare these different responses.

d. If you have the opportunity to make observations of persons while they are performing Enochian Rituals, you will be able to feel the vibrations of the words in different parts of your body. Place your hands lightly on the head, the neck, the shoulders, the back, at the end of the first part of the Ritual. Do this again at the mid-point of the Ritual, and again at the end of the Ritual. Note how the vibrations vary in intensity and in the different parts of the body. Record your findings after each is taken. Compare these findings when the Ritual is over.

e. Choose a stone and hold it in your hand when you go to sleep. Try to keep it in your hand until you awake in the morning. Observe your feelings or thoughts in connection with holding the stone and note any dreams that come from this experience. Recall dreams you have had in which the sense of touch was involved. Record these in your diary and compare them.

The insights obtained from these exercises will be more valuable than information given by someone who, through a misguided idea of helping (sentimentality), shares an experience, thereby depriving the aspirant of self-discovery. The much needed personal experience becomes a well of strength and energy to pursue the Path to the attainment to the Higher Self.

8. HEARING:

The sense of hearing is, from the Western point of view, the last of the five senses. In the East, the mind -- the interpreter -- is considered the sixth sense. The element of ether means something very elusive, ethereal, and yet very powerful. The influences on a human being are subtle and yet can bring about great changes in the body and mind. The dictionary definition of ether indicates that it has three (3) aspects: the abstract, the physical, and the chemical.

Ethereal is defined as: light; airy; heavenly; of unearthly delicacy of substance, character, or appearance; something of great subtlety or transparency. To hear the music of the spheres of the Sephiroth would be an ethereal experience. To hear the Celestials speak is the crown of all experiences through the sense of hearing. This indeed may start delicately and subtly, but can become very powerful, lifting the listener into a different ethereal world.

Hearing is a subtle process. It is indeed ethereal because the interfering voices that prevent us from hearing are our own thoughts. Much energy is wasted listening to those thoughts which are based on mental speculation, self-defense, self-justification, so that it becomes impossible to truly hear what another person says. Pain results from this lack of communication and that is why so much attention must be paid to removing the screens that we erect in front of our senses. When the refinement of the sense of hearing permits us to rise above the level of ordinary daily existence and observe from a more subtle level (ether), we see that the clarity and the understanding that we "assumed" we had dissipates into thin air before we can grasp them.

Listening is an art. To hear the true message through all the veils demands a very skillful listener who can extract from the words what the speaker truly says. How much more sensitivity, then, is required to hear the still, small voice within or the golden Celestial voices from without. The acquisition of powers, which may be a hidden desire, depends on the ability to concentrate, the ability to mentally relax and receive, to be in control of the merry-go-round of the mind. Listening ability in present-day life is cut down by a variety of cacophonous noises that are imposed on us by industry, work, and so on. There is little protection outside the home, but the aspirant must become conscious that there are places where control can be exercised. The emphasis on mechanical habits in regard to the sense of hearing is just as important as it was in dealing with the previous senses.

There are many potentials that can be developed in the human being and the ability to be a good listener is one of the most important. In certain professions it is essential to be able to listen with depth of understanding. Many skills can be developed quickly. Listening, however, is only excellent when the listener has also developed the ability of recall. The human mind is an incredible storehouse of memory, but without recall we cannot retrieve what is known. Many psychics have simply learned to draw on this storehouse, which contains our past lives as well as our present. Information about ancient civilizations could be gained if these faculties of recall were employed.

The refinement of the senses that has been emphasized in each previous section applies to the sense of hearing, perhaps even more than the sense of sight. There are many stages -- from the basic state of hearing only the rough, the harsh, the arrogant -- to the level where we can hear the beautiful music of the Spheres of the Sephiroth.

Before it is possible to still the mind and surrender to what is heard, we must start on the physical level with the "Death Pose". The name of the Death Pose itself explains its meaning of no reaction, complete surrender to what is, ending all arguments. The only validity for listening to one's thoughts is when positive key sentences have been put into the mind to replace the old negative ones.

It must be recognized that assertions of self-will, which subdue the message spoken by another person or the Celestials, have no validity outside ourselves. It is an illusion to think that these assertions of self-will can bring good results. For example, a typical reaction when speaking to a person who does not understand the language is to speak louder and louder, in the false belief that this will bring comprehension. The motive for speaking in a low key must be genuine. If it is hiding pushiness or dominance, while giving the appearance of being soft and gentle, it is a lie. In how many ways does one lie? Dominance and pushiness are uncultivated will, and even if speech is sweet and gentle it is an act of deception. Like the other senses, hearing has to be understood on each of its various levels.

The ear that listens is precious, and that preciousness is expressed in wisdom and understanding. Speech is of no relevance if there is no listener.

Aspirants must become aware of the ever-increasing delicacy of the interaction of the energy in the body, in the mind, and in its most exercised expression of speech. This interaction, in most cases, may not be recognized to its full extent due to the lack of awareness of how the control comes from the mind. The mind generates energy which flows along predetermined paths. This energy is a silent manner of speech, and the cells in the body -- each with its own consciousness -- are the listeners. The body is very teachable and can become a very powerful spiritual tool.

The Will says to the aspirant, "Keep going, move on, pursue development". The self-will only says "stand still". At this point, "stand still" can mean a loss of all previous input. The aspirant should listen to the voice of the Will. It is this voice that needs to be heard by the inner ear if self-development is to take place.

Our Will warns us not to be caught again in the strangle-hold of uncontrolled emotions or wild imaginations. It also warns us not to become trapped in old habits, preoccupation with self, and turning a deaf ear. The daily diary will help to discover old traps and even recognize traps before they have been completely laid.

The aspirant should liken himself / herself to an Arrow. The Arrow can only be shot in a straight line by direct commitment and by having a clear goal as a target -- by straight thinking and straight action. The target has to be well defined. Problems that still remain have to be tackled head-on. All five senses need to be brought under control by awareness and refinement. The forces of self-defeatism, the fire-wheel of emotions, will make a last attempt here to flare up again with all power and imagination in order to prevent the surrender of self-will. Doubts invade the mind. It is easier to talk oneself out of one's determination than into continuing the pursuit of the Goal. But the fire can be lifted from the purely emotional struggle to the fire of enthusiasm where ignorance is burned in the fire of wisdom.

What then, keeps interfering with the progress and makes all these warnings necessary? It is the lurking of the old personality aspects. The battle-axe must be wielded, but it has to be used skillfully. Ego tries again to raise its head in a last attempt to reassert power. The lower nature will put up a fierce fight in some areas. The sharpening of the battle-axe is done by discrimination and razor-keen awareness. The Sword of discrimination, having two edges, can be used as a symbol which indicates the seriousness of the aspirant's situation. This Sword -- the Will -- can be used to cut away the undesirable characteristics without hurting oneself. However, this process demands great skill, strength, and a clear assessment of what needs to be cut away and what needs to be preserved.

When using the Sword of Will tension has to be expected, and this tension has many different sources. Doubts and strong desires can really be troublesome. Only by withdrawing the power from them will they diminish. Sometimes another source of tension is the influence of so-called friends who do not understand the road to Spiritual/Magickal success and who will, by comparison, only respect such strenuous effort by the aspirant if the goal is monetary, political or social. When the goal is a higher state of consciousness or the attainment to the Higher Self, their negative arguments seem to be logical and reasonable, and this type of friend is very hard to deal with. The Spiritual/Magickal road is indeed lonely until you meet your first spiritual companion. How often we already have such companions but do not recognize them!

The stronger the Will, the further the Arrow will go and the greater the impact on the target.

EXERCISES TO DEVELOP HEARING

Over the years, hearing has been literally taken for granted. Therefore, this often-neglected sense has to be carefully examined to fully understand all of its implications. The study and practice of sections 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 by the aspirant will have proven to be very fruitful. However, this has to be extended.

True listening means the ability to surrender, thereby speech, as well as mental talking, must be controlled in order to hear clearly. At this point it may become clearer why the element of speech has been mentioned in each of the previous sections, and why speech is called man's greatest performance. The almost insatiable need to hear oneself talk feeds one's self-importance almost to the exclusiveness even of those that we profess to love. In the diary reflection there should always be an entry in the diary of whether one has been able to surrender to another and how well one can stop listening to oneself. Our habitual way of hearing has to be changed in order to attain quality in listening. Most people who have authority complexes do not recognize that the ego is really the biggest authority, most of the time preventing the aspirant from doing what he or she wants to do. If the ego listens, what does it listen to? Possible hurts or criticism? Compliments? When it comes to praise, the ego can be a real glutton.

By investigating the process of hearing, the aspirant may become aware that many things are screened out and only those things accepted that one wants to hear. Sometimes what is heard has been so twisted that what one thinks one hears is far from being correct. The questions to ask are, "Am I listening? Is the ego listening? Who is listening?"

It becomes more complicated to control the ego if one thinks in short negative sentences. The influence of these can range from strong to subtle and their effect may be hypnotizing. "I always make this mistake" .... "I have never been able to do this" .... "I would rather die than try that" .... "I could never handle that." These are habitual thought patterns that are verbalized in the mind, listened to, and then acted upon. It is obvious that this is destructive. Yet there is a choice to think positively, to turn to the opposite. "I have never done this before, but if I give it my attention and try, I am sure I can do it". When acted upon, this becomes a small success which can be used as a stepping stone to even bigger ones, which become a good foundation of inner security.

Investigation of all ideas about security on a physical, emotional, and mental level can bring one to new conclusions. Habitual actions and reactions that have been investigated already must also be reviewed and shifted to higher levels. Discrimination has to be refined and self-will needs to be subdued. Speed is not efficiency. It may indicate good intention to say, "I wanted to do it fast to go on to something else", but this will not justify sloppy performance. In order to get self-will under control one must first understand the difference between will and self-will. Self-will is an expression of the ego, and if one can understand that "In the will of the Most High I am free" the distinction is clear.

The power that is given to self-will in daily life keeps individuals apart and relationships become a battlefield for dominance. Instead, we can use the will to pursue a way of life that brings out the best in ourselves and makes us a blessing to others. A good way to understand the power of self-will is to choose someone and submit to the wants or suggestions of this individual for a certain length of time. The chosen person should have no knowledge of such a decision. The choice should be made alone, silently, and in the utmost sincerity of wanting to have a clear understanding of self-will. In this surrender one begins to perceive one's ability or lack of ability to listen to others. The aspirant becomes aware of the power of the background noises of the mind or the talkativeness of the ego that prevents any kind of real listening.

Speech and hearing, while apparently separate, like consciousness and mind, are really one. If the speech is considered the male aspect and the hearing the female, when we accept both on an equal basis we understand the union or the first spiritual marriage within ourselves. If speech and hearing are in the proper balance, the perceptions of each can be heard, truly heard. This can be called listening with the Third Ear.

There is often competition between the sense of hearing and one or more of the other senses. If you find that what is seen interferes with hearing, listen with closed eyes or focus the eyes away from the speaker. Hearing must be through the ears, not through the eyes, and must not be destroyed by what is seen. To understand what is heard it must be "digested". Listen to the pure sound, without interference of the emotions.

1. To help in the clarification of what the sense of hearing means to you, think about each of the following and then add to the list:

a. Sounds of a music box.
b. A running brook or stream.
c. Laughter and sobs.
d. Hearing yourself think.
e. Hearing thought associations.
f. Creating noises in the mind.
g. Garbling the thoughts:
   1. To avoid listening.
   2. Not to be involved.
   3. Not to be confronted.
   4. Not to have to do anything about it.

5. Not to have to make a decision.
6. Not facing up to certain problems, hindrances.

2. Here are some questions that may be of practical help to the aspirant in further investigation of some important areas of hearing:

a. Am I listening?
b. Do I get the message?
c. Do I hear only words?
d. Do I screen things out?
e. What are the reasons for the screening?
f. Do I hear my voice?
g. Do I like my voice?
h. What can a listener gather from my voice? ... warmth, kindness, or arrogance?
i. When I listen, what is it that listens? ... the ego?
j. Can I keep the ego suspended, and finally withdraw its power altogether?
k. Is my self-will behind the ego?
l. Have I conditioned myself with negative key sentences that I have been telling myself for many years?
m. Should I form new key sentences that will be of benefit and open the door to more perception and listening?
n. Is surrender to listening to another a giving of myself?
o. What is my ability to perceive new insights?
p. Are these insights coming from my Higher Self, or from the heart, or an unknown source?
q. Can I discriminate between self-will and surrender?
r. Do I understand the fine dividing line between self-will and Divine Will?
s. Do I keep the Sword of Discrimination truly sharpened to find the balance between reason and emotion, logic and intuition, fear and courage, clumsiness and lightness, strength and softness?
t. Do I have the ability to ask for help when the ego puts up a fierce battle?

A few additional exercises are given below to start the aspirant in the observation of listening and of what is heard. Note the process of screening out what we do not want to hear, or what we claim we have heard. This will bring some surprises. When these exercises are done, we find that the lack of awareness is staggering. With persistence, they will truly lead to liberation from self-centeredness.

Listening to a variety of music, carefully selected, preferably with earphones and in a reclining position, will tell you by your emotional responses to the music where you are. Sound and careful listening can trigger long-forgotten events, be they painful or joyful. Later it is advisable to proceed to listening to nature, the wind, birds in the trees, the sounds of the city in the daytime or at night. Listen to your conversations and how your voice undergoes changes from the beginning and how it shows the release of your emotions.

After doing these exercises you will find that you can really listen to the voice of your loved ones and that what they say is music to your ears.

ADDITIONAL EXERCISES FOR HEARING

1. Listen to yourself:

A. Choose one person and investigate your way of speaking with that person. Try to remember a conversation. What do you observe about your speech? Do you know your own voice? What does it sound like? Do you like it?

B. Tape yourself speaking. Give an assessment of yourself.

C. Choose a partner and tape a ten (10) minute conversation. Challenge the other, try to convince. Note how you sound when emotional. Observe yourself and your partner. Do you hear what the other person says? What do you hear besides the words? List the emotions detected:

1. Joy.
2. Elation.
3. Strength.
4. Anxiety.
5. Pain.
6. Begging.
7. Confusion.
8. Tears.

The words may not convey any of these. Do you hear it in the voice? Note these in your diary.

2. Listening to body noises:

a. Your stomach.
b. Your blood.
c. Your heartbeat.

Listen very carefully and then note them in your diary.

3. Listen to the mental conversations in your head:

a. What do you hear? Describe in your diary.
b. Can you stop these mental talks?
c. If you can, how do you do it? Describe in your diary.
d. If you cannot, would you want to learn how? (It will be necessary to have this mental control if you wish to pursue the Path of Enochian Magick.)

4. With the new insights on listening, recite a small poem of your choice for two (2) hours:

a. Watch the mind carefully.
b. Write observations for fifteen (15) minutes after the first hour of recitation, then after the second.
c. At the end of the two (2) hour period, make more detailed notes in your diary.

5. What's in a name:
A. Say your own name aloud for two (2) hours:
1. For the first hour look at yourself in a mirror while saying your name.
2. For the second hour do not use a mirror.
3. Make notes in your diary for fifteen (15) minutes after each hour of the exercise.
4. At the end of the two (2) hour period, make more detailed notes in your diary.
B. Say aloud someone else's name for ten (10) minutes:
1. Choose a name that is symbolic in some way or important to you.
2. Watch yourself and all your reactions.
3. Make notes in your diary of all you observe.
6. Listen to music for fifteen (15) minutes:
1. Choose a piece of music on record or tape.
2. Listen to the music while:
a. Sitting.
b. Lying down.
c. Lying down and listening through earphones.
3. Again, record your observations in your diary.
7. Listen to an unpleasant sound:
a. Have someone make an unpleasant sound such as scratching on a piece of glass or chalkboard.
b. Repeat three or four times for just a few seconds.
c. Immediately write down your reactions to this sound in your diary.
8. Listen to the sounds of:
a. Different bells for a period of between five (5) to seven (7) minutes each.
b. Write down the reactions to each in your diary.
c. Note in your diary if listening was done with the eyes open or closed. Also note in your diary if there was a difference.
These exercises will help the aspirant to understand the filters that prevent the hearing of pure sound and that prevent communication. Following instructions, which is necessary on the Path of Enochian Magick -- as in all walks of life -- presupposes the ability to listen.

9. CREATING A LIST:
What is meant by creating a list? As an example of how this should be done, we will look at the word "pain". The making of lists helps in clarification. The lists presented in this material -- and all ensuing material --are only a small beginning to help you get started on your own.
Pain is a great teacher. This is an old saying which bears truth in all ages. But what is pain? How many different kinds of pain can one experience? The Masters claim that all pain is self-created. How can we understand this? As the word "pain" is investigated, its meaning clarified by making a list and jotting down what comes to mind, a sort of brainstorming if you like, many ideas will come to the surface. Sometimes they are conflicting, sometimes unrelated.

Let us make a list for clarification. The following should give you a little help:

a. Pain
b. Physical
c. Emotional
d. Being humiliated
e. Pain in pleasure
f. Painfully low self-image
g. Pain of being a martyr
h. Pain of breaking away
i. Attachment of pain
j. Pain of conflicting emotions
k. Pain of insecurity
l. Pain of guilt
m. Pain of being unforgiving
n. Pain of death
o. Pain of birth

This is only an indication of how to clarify the meaning of words, their use and the ideas attached to them, and to understand their power.
In the case of physical pain, wait before you take a "painkiller" so that you can know the limits of your endurance. Do not enjoy pain; you do not want to become a martyr or masochist -- those deviations have no place on the Spiritual/Magickal Path. In some instances the dividing line is a very fine one.
In the case of emotional pain, try to "enter" the pain, as you would enter delight. Experience the pain as deeply as possible. Then let go!
After having written down everything that comes to mind about pain, we can again consider the statement of the Masters that pain is self-created.
Now keep on asking yourself questions:

a. Did my friend really hurt me?
b. Did my friend want to hurt me?
c. Why do I feel so hurt?
d. What are the repercussions of being let down?
e. Are my plans upset?
f. Do I have a strong attachment to my plans?
g. Do I dislike having to change any type of plans?
h. Maybe I am only "inconvenienced"?
i. Am I "inconvenienced"?
j. If this is the case, where is the hurt?
k. Maybe I am not hurt, but angry about being inconvenienced?
l. Can I hold my emotions back in the future, just long enough to recognize the difference between being really hurt and just being inconvenienced?
m. Can I "learn" from my "mistakes", and let them fade into the past?
n. Will they fade if I keep my emotional response "alive"?
o. Does this mean to discriminate? ... Yes, it does!

How much imagined pain do you carry around with you -- Recall? How much of your energy is locked up in it? Can you forget and forgive if you keep (maybe imagined) hurts alive? That energy could be used more beneficially.

As you can see, lists serve a variety of purposes. The aspirant who truly wants to know himself or herself will create and utilize these lists as a learning tool. As with everything else, these lists should be recorded in your diary where they can be used as a barometer to measure your Spiritual/Magickal growth.

SECTION TWO

10. SPEECH: (Level Two)

Speech symbolizes the first level of self-expression. With each level comes an increased refinement that is coupled with greater awareness. Awareness, when seen as a characteristic of consciousness (rising) expanding to other levels of understanding, makes the idea of hierarchy of these levels more easily comprehensible. In "higher expression" language moves to a level where even the meanings of words are expanded and words are used to express meanings that cannot be defined. The Language of the Gods as contrasted to "ordinary language" has to be penetrated by fortuitous listening -- intuitive listening.

The same degree of intuitive perception has to be developed in listening as in speaking. This means listening within. When one listens, all mental talk has to cease and this is the state reached in true meditation. This is not to be confused with what is termed a state of trance, into which it is possible to slip at a certain stage of intense concentration. In meditation the mind is meant to be absolutely alert, even while it is occupied with something else. It is like a lover sitting on a bench in the park reading a book and understanding what is read, but at the same time having an inner alertness for the arrival of the beloved because the beloved is expected to come. The listening is somehow intuitively tuned in to recognizing the footsteps or the rustling of clothes, something that will announce the presence of the beloved. Immediately after this is heard, the lover who waits is alert and ready to receive the beloved.

In the trance state, however, the alertness is not there and the person in trance does not perceive what the person in the true meditative state does. The lover can be so absorbed in the book that the beloved can stand in front and not be noticed.

When the suggestion is given to recite a Ritual (it can be said that this is cultured speech and a way to cultivate the voice), it is not meant to be a trigger into a state of trance. This little illustration is a method by which the unexplainable can be grasped. It indicates that the meaning of each word is stepped up to a much higher level than that which the word has in "ordinary" speech. It is up to the aspirant to cultivate perception and then to express it in a more refined way. This process should never really stop. As the intuition develops it becomes the source of extraordinary awareness. For instance, in the beginning of musical training we learn the rhythm of a song by counting. Not so on the Path of Enochian Magick. Intuitive listening is necessary to perceive the rhythm and to tune in to the Teachings or to the Master. It is not a blind following, it is a slow perceiving and understanding of the why and how. When it is blind acceptance, development is so slow it is almost imperceptible.

Some aspirants or students have greater limitations than others. But it is only a question of time, patience, and persistence for them to expand beyond their limitations and to become more aware and perceptive. The Path is open to everyone. Only pride, the ego, greediness, and self-importance prevent the aspirant from listening intuitively. Therefore the Will must be applied and a clear decision made to put all else aside so that there is nothing left but full attention, listening with intuition, and surrender. When the interplay of forces between intuition and awareness has developed, listening ability will increase. The aspirant then stands on firm ground. From this direct personal experience, knowledge is gained.

Sound and its resonance are inseparable and occur in ordinary speech or song. They can give birth to powerful emotional responses. The average person misses on the very subtle level the power of sound and its resonance. The gross is not a receptacle of the subtle.

Because of man's habit of naming a thing and thereby assuming that he knows something about it, we find in all cultures that God has uncountable names. Each name has an inherent power because the name was created by the desire to make an immeasurable Energy personal, to make it meaningful. When spoken, these personified names give the aspirant contact on a personal level with the Divine.

SECOND LEVEL EXERCISES IN SPEECH

The conch shell comes from the sea (water). When put to the ear, its sound comes in soft steady waves. Listening to the conch shell is like listening to the still, small voice within.

The mind must be still to be able to hear this soft sound/voice.

The mental background noises of the mind are produced by the emotional waves arising from uncultivated or selfish imagination.

This symbol tells the aspirant what action must be taken in order to hear this soft sound. If you have an opportunity to pick up a conch shell and to listen to it, you will observe many important details in this process:

a. Intent

b. Expectation

c. Hearing something delicate

d. Holding the breath or making a gesture with the hand saying "silence please".

A sentence expresses the meaning of words, or conveys a message. A word by itself is a symbol of one or several ideas.

As in Enochian Rituals, a combination of words put together, or a single word, can give a complete message. It is not usually recognized that behind each word there is a range of ideas and that the practitioner has the freedom of choice to pick the most acceptable.

The word is the pronouncing of a thought, thereby making thought audible. Sometimes the thought may be away in the distance and will slowly come into focus by pronouncing it.

1. Ask yourself:

a. Where do thoughts come from?
b. What is that invisible source that provides the power to manifest sound in speech?
c. What happens when the spoken word becomes the written?
d. Record your answers in your diary.

A spoken word can condemn a man to death or save a life.

2. Ask yourself:

a. How is this power used in my own life?
b. What actually happens when a word is spoken?
c. What are the mechanics?
d. What part does breath play?
e. How does different breathing affect the brain?
f. What is the difference in a word spoken audibly from one spoken silently in the mind?
g. Record your answers in your diary.

3. The ability to speak necessitates the action of the tongue. The tongue is also the organ of taste. How do we use the term "tongue" in our everyday language?

a. To be tongue-tied
b. To be double-tongued
c. To have a tongue as sharp as a razor
d. To give a tongue-lashing
e. Tongue-in-cheek
f. To speak with a forked tongue

Consider how they apply to your own self-image and then continue the list in your dairy.

4. Water is symbolic for imagination. The power of imagination, the ability to arrange and rearrange images of an abstract and a concrete nature, is an extraordinary skill.

Thinking of how they may apply to the imagination, consider these commonly used sayings about water:

a. Water under the bridge
b. Don't make waves
c. Cross the great water
d. You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make it drink
e. Add your own to the list
f. Record your answers in your diary.

An increased level of speech indicates an increase of expression, not only in words but, even more, in imagination. How, then, is this greater ability of expression used? The aspirant should look at every action, thought or word from the point of view of purity, passion, and inertia in order to further cultivate speech. The best course is to remain cool, calm, and receptive with emotions controlled (not suppressed), since in the heat of emotions expression can be dangerous.
In order for the aspirant to understand and experience how emotions and stress can be controlled, they should do the following practical Ritual. This ritual is done prior to the performing of any and all future Enochian Rituals.

Ritual Cleansing Bath

STEP ONE
Take a hot shower to get the dirt off of your body.
STEP TWO
Run a warm bath and add some bath salts or epsom salts and some nicely scented oil or perfume.
STEP THREE
Get in the water and soak for a few minutes, making sure you slowly splash water on the upper part of your body. Now, feel all of your problems, worries and negativity going into the water.
STEP FOUR
Pull the plug and let the water drain "while you stay in the water." As the water slowly drains, you will feel all the negative things which were troubling you go down the drain with the water. "REMAIN IN THE TUB UNTIL ALL THE WATER IS GONE."
STEP FIVE
Get out of the tub and allow your body to AIR DRY. (If you are pressed for time, you may dry off with a clean, fresh towel. However, "air-drying" is more beneficial.)
STEP SIX
While "air-drying" meditate on the upcoming ritual or exercises you are going to perform.
STEP SEVEN
When "DRY" wrap your body in a towel or a clean robe and then proceed to a quiet area, where you will immediately discard the towel or robe if you are performing this ritual by yourself.
STEP EIGHT
Sit down in a chair and relax for a few minutes. Once you feel totally relaxed and comfortable, meditate on the ritual you have just performed.
STEP NINE
Write down in your diary all that you felt, heard or saw during the Bath and the quiet meditation afterwards. When you have completed this, get dressed and resume your daily activities or studies.

11. SEX: (LEVEL ONE)
The Energy of the Creative Force, when latent, is neutral and therefore mankind has a great responsibility to choose how it will be used. In one of its most powerful forms, this Energy is expressed by sex. Aspirants must clarify in their own minds the meaning of sex and understand on how many levels and in how many ways this most powerful Energy can be expressed in human life. Most of the manifestations of this Energy are expressed on the physical and mental levels, while the Spiritual/Magickal level is almost totally neglected. One must now lay a good foundation in one's life. In order to come to the basics, one has to decide what kind of person one wants to be. Often the Spiritual/Magickal Path is attempted simply for the enchantment of its differences from ordinary life, its mystical aspects, or power to be gained. But in the same way that one does not become a Johann Sebastian Bach without laying a solid foundation in the law of harmony -- in the practice of playing an instrument or in the developing of acute hearing, -- so one cannot become a Master or Teacher without such groundwork.

So what kind of an aspirant does one want to be? There have to be some clear definitions about the physical level. The basic desire is to have a good healthy body -- and regular exercise will contribute to this. Proper food is necessary that will nourish the body instead of being used to indulge the emotions or for compensation. If there is a good foundation, in other words, good discipline and self-restraint, at the more advanced levels the aspirant will not encounter problems.

Because of the over-emphasis on sex in modern life, it is important to give consideration to certain of its aspects. All the questions that one poses to oneself should be expressed in the first person. One must take responsibility for one's viewpoints and standards. Whatever the viewpoints of any individual, there must be no double standards -- one standard for oneself and another for everyone else. ("Do as I say, not as I do".) This is destructive because double standards undermine one's security and result in inner conflicts. It is necessary in the beginning of the Enochian Magickal Path to lay down very carefully the foundation of one's life. Here is a "list" that must be completed with great care. The aspirant should begin a process of questioning about sex.

Is sex a biological function over which you have no control and power, and thereby must simply obey the dark instincts of nature? Is sex meant only for procreation since, in the normal course of events, pregnancy follows? What about birth and death? Because birth is only one side of the pair of opposites, death has to be looked at also. Take time to think about birth and death, which are bound up with each other, and responsibility for the sex act will take on a whole new dimension.

With this in mind, now look at marriage. Is it just a custom, a kind of social institution? What part does sex play in your own marriage? Here, I am not concerned with the views of anybody but the aspirant. Some very soul-searching questions have to be asked. Why did you marry the person you did? What were the reasons? What were your hopes and expectations at the beginning and what are they now? As an illustration, were the reasons for marriage physical attraction, leaving home, feeling important in a new social status, good looks, or money? Did you think of a partner for life, someone you could trust, someone with character who could be truly a companion? All of these viewpoints will be reflected in the sexual relationship. If there is disappointment, sex will be used for punishment and reward. If there is indulgence in self-pity, sex will be used for compensation. If there have been no ideals at the start, there will be no quality in the relationship. Is divorce a solution to problems? Perhaps it is only a delay. Karma will follow you into other lives to come. A lesson not learned in this life will still be waiting in another.

From a Spiritual/Magickal point of view, self-mastery -- control of basic instincts -- is needed to become a fully developed human being. For one seeking higher values in life, a new aspect of love is brought into the relationship between two people. Sex without the love aspect is only following instincts, however pleasurable they may be. The great significance of the exchange of Energy between two persons is seldom understood. A possible new dimension is only grasped by a full investigation of the purpose of sex.

That most precious Energy that is able to bring another human being into this life must not be scattered senselessly and uselessly. Those who defend sex for pleasure do not realize the consequences on different levels. Children born "by accident" or to be a material asset to their parents, and who are not wanted for themselves, grow up without the dignity and love that is the right of every human being. In the same way that one has to know man-made law, so it is man's responsibility to study Divine Law. Ignorance is no protection.

For loving parents, even a few steps on the Path of Enochian Magick will be of benefit, as they will become Teachers for their children. They can know the Divine Law because of their own practice and study.

There is the possibility of a truly spiritual marriage between two people who are highly developed and close to the same Spiritual/Magickal level. In such a spiritual marriage sex would be neither demand or duty, but communication with a true understanding of love.

There are too many people who seem to be in love with "the idea of love". Does this mean that they are capable of truly loving and truly giving? All the good intentions may be there, but, as in any stage of development, it is easy to deceive oneself. Awareness is the vital ingredient for all personal development.

It is quite possible that on a higher level, in a spiritual realm, people could be soul mates. The idea of twin souls appeared early in man's history, but how easily can one be mistaken? Is it perhaps an excuse to do what one wants to do?

To strive for the Most High and yet have a family and all the responsibility that goes with it is, for the average person, almost impossible. Even in other aspects of life, in careers of men and women, it has been shown that it is barely possible to handle both jobs with equal attention and quality. If in a marriage one partner is wholly dedicated to a career and does not pay attention to the family, the marriage suffers from the neglect of that partner. If there are children, then they also suffer. The marriage may even break up. However, some great Masters and Teachers are known to have been married. In such cases, the one partner gladly becomes the "servant" of the other, considering it a blessing to have a companion who pursues the Spiritual/Magickal Path.

Sex being one of the most powerful life energies, a clear understanding of it is essential. Independent of the course or the attitude that an individual takes toward sex, and independent of the level to which the sexual relationship can be elevated, the fact remains that sex is the beginning of birth. Sex is, in its basic function, bonding. The aspirant should consider what it means to take steps to avoid the resulting birth. In spite of efforts to avoid the consequences of sexual involvement, babies are born, unwanted by-products of some pleasure. There is little dignity, self-assurance or self-worth for the individual who comes into the world in this way.

What is born, must die. Therefore, sex, birth, and death are a unit that cannot be separated.

CREATING A LIST ABOUT SEX

Nature maintains itself in two ways. Plants, animals, and humans search for food to survive. They all have sexual impulses to propagate, which keeps the species alive. Both of these powerful driving forces are strongly expressed in human life. Here we deal with sex in a particular way. The making of a list will help the aspirant to clarify his or her own point of view about sex.

A. What does sex mean to me?

1. Is it a biological functioning?
2. Is sex for procreation?
3. In how many forms is sex practiced?:

a. Monogamy
b. Polygamy
c. Bisexuality
d. Homosexuality

4. How do I use sex?:

a. As enjoyment?
b. For pleasure?
c. To have children?
d. As punishment?
e. As a reward?
f. As free sex without any responsibilities?

5. Sex outside marriage -- is it sin?
6. Is sin a cultural thing? Is it my upbringing? Is it a Christian concept? Where does sin come in with regard to sex?
7. If sex is love, why so many conflicts? Why is bad language connected with it? Why the rejecting or barely accepting of the fruit of that love, children? Is love excluded from sex? Can it be included?
8. Is sex an exchange of Energy? Is it psychic power of some sort?
9. Is a marriage spiritual without sex, or can sex be included?
10. Is there such a thing as soul mates? How does one know?

11 What is a mystical marriage? Is it mystical only when sex is excluded?
12. Why do some people think celibacy is important? What do I think about celibacy? Would the human race not die out if all were celibates?
13. Is Cosmic Consciousness or the Attainment to the Higher Self only for celibates?

12. SEX: (LEVEL TWO)
In view of what has been discussed so far, it becomes necessary to have another look at sex. See the compulsion with which it manifests, passionately, with burning fire, in contrast to the spontaneity of feelings which have been refined from strong emotions.
If emotions cause compulsive action, trouble will follow. In contrast to compulsive emotion stands spontaneity. The difference between the two has to be clearly understood because of the possibility of misinterpretation. Spontaneity is empowered to surface suddenly from cultivated feelings of goodness, even selflessness.
Now that you have clarified many of your ideas and thoughts about sex, here are a few more for your consideration:
A. Are sexual impulses generated by themselves or through another?
B. What is creative sexual expression?
Avoid using many words, but truly give your ideas to the following:
A. Sex as a seduction game:
1. By men, resulting in what?
2. By women, resulting in what?
B. The sex game of the conqueror, the hunter, the seducer.
C. What is sex without affection?
D. What is affection without sex?
E. Does sex remove the scars of rejection?
F. Are sex and spirituality different?
G. Are sex and spirituality expressions of the same energy?
H. By yielding to sexual spontaneity is the door kept open to Higher Consciousness or the Attainment to the Higher Self?
The answers that you write in your diary pertaining to both level one and level two of sex are very important, for they will give you a better understanding of yourself and your ideas and opinions about sex. Meditation on this subject is very helpful, and will in many cases, give you an even greater insight into the deeper meanings of sex and sexuality. Once again, it is important to record all of your thoughts and ideas in your diary. As you progress on the Spiritual/Magickal Path, you will see some startling changes in your views and opinions about sex.

13. EGO AND RESPONSIBILITY:
Habitual thinking patterns are interconnected with emotions and are never questioned by the average person. They are symptoms of anxious protection of unproven beliefs and result in questionable word games. One of the traps is exaggeration, which the ego uses as a trick (consciously or unconsciously) to achieve a more favourable position, or to defend its beliefs. The aspirant who has learned to keep his or her emotions under control will observe that wild statements are intended to trick the opponent for the satisfaction of the ego. Irrelevant objections, minor details in discussions, may be the manifestation of a certain type of ego, revealing an aggressive, dishonest trickery, sometimes in an attempt to ridicule, sometimes in a desire to win at all costs. The aspirant is warned not to be caught in word games of this kind, which are deadly games. To admit ignorance is to be strong, while to pretend to know is weakness.

The aspirant, at this point, is also warned that to be convinced for emotional reasons is dangerous. That applies to general life as well as to a Spiritual/Magickal life. The aspirant who is not secure through proper reasoning and personal experience can be too easily manipulated either by someone of magnetic personality, or by one's own inverted ego. There must be control of emotions expressed in speech and thought. Debating points in one's own mind is not wrong necessarily, but it should be watched for dishonesty. Listening to the still, small voice brings clarification quickly and changes old thinking patterns and habitual mental conversations.

Audible sound (the spoken word) and inaudible sound (the spoken word in the mind) are both vibrations which will give rise to creation. What creation comes into being is the responsibility of the originator of that sound.

14. IMAGINATION AND DESIRE:

The Crescent Moon indicates water, which is symbolic of imagination, a functioning of the mind. The ever-so-fleeting image brings a possible pleasant or unpleasant taste (here, imagination is connected with taste). Therefore, it is most important to watch the mind and all its various aspects.

Desire is an aspect of the mind that needs careful investigation. How do desires come about? Where do they come from? They are rooted in that part of the mind that controls imagination. Many impulses pass through the mind unnoticed. When the imagination gets strong impulses, they are picked up by the mind and grow -- by the power of imagination -- into desires. Some are very persistent. Like clay in the potter's hands, while desires are still pliable they can be molded into any shape or form. But once the final shape is accepted (in the form of opinions, beliefs or concepts) and fired in the kiln of the emotions, they harden and take on a certain permanence.

The scheming to fulfill these desires, and form these concepts and beliefs, is a process with many repercussions. Self-righteousness emerges, viewpoints and beliefs are fanatically defended. How does this happen? It happens by the emphasis on their importance. They provide a certain security. But we fail to realize that this is all due to the imagination and emotions working overtime for the wrong reasons. Here is the birthplace of many problems. The insistence on holding this rigid attitude keeps us asleep. Without awareness we lay our own traps.

If this process is recognized it becomes clear that desires have to be very carefully examined by the aspirant. Once the desires (emanating from the emotions) have been given power, it may take a long time, even years, for the manifestation to be recognized. An old desire may suddenly bear fruit at a time when the desire itself is already forgotten. We are often like children longing after a new toy which, when we get it, has little meaning. We have already moved on to wanting something else. We need to realize this process of our development. In this respect, daily reflection and a Spiritual/Magickal diary are very helpful tools, enabling us to take stock of the changes and the progress made.

It may be helpful to recall what desires have been schemed for in the past. By a clear decision the energy can be redirected from the old desires, now unwanted, before they manifest, so that the energy is available for new and better ones that are more in keeping with present insights. There is a universal source of all Energy, to which those unwanted desires can be "returned". In the process of that awareness, other things come up from the past, vague memories of hurts, grudges, or resentments that have been left unattended. Old emotions, like old unwanted desires, can similarly be dissolved into the new insights.

It may come as a surprise to discover that even the unfulfilled desires of childhood exert energy and play on the adult. Those deep-seated desires must now be recognized as obsolete and dismissed. They constitute excess baggage and they hinder the Spiritual/Magickal pursuit of the aspirant. What should one dispose of and what should one keep? Here, careful discrimination must be applied by the aspirant.

The idea of renouncing may have to be considered because of some unreasonable or illogical attachments. The concept of renunciation is often thought of as very unpleasant or even difficult, yet it presents the renunciate with a freedom which, once tasted, demands more. To be free means neither to possess nor to be possessed. The renunciate is thus placed in the middle of the teeter-totter, in a position of balance, free from the emotional swings which come with being at the ends. There will always be some desires in an aspirant's life, but it is wise not to form any attachments to them. Many a desire can also benefit others. That must be taken into consideration when forming new desires. Pain and frustration can be avoided by thinking things through: evaluating, anticipating, and exercising foresight in the execution of one's desires.

While the mind is the battleground of the personality aspects, it is also a playground where daydreaming can create infinite possibilities. Uncultivated imagination can lead to fear, to hallucinations, or to a variety of such unhealthy mental attitudes. But directed imagination leads to creative expression.

Fear has to be examined in a very clear-eyed way to see if imagination is its creator. This indulgence of the imagination in the wrong way breeds insecurity. When these emotions are not dealt with, the ego looks for a scapegoat, and one may go through life forever blaming others and defending oneself. At some point in time the responsibility must be accepted or one will never achieve that much longed-for sense of inner security. Assessment, effort, work, time and energy are necessary to recognize the part played by imagination in our lives and to direct it in a positive, creative way.

IMAGINATION

In the above, there is a reference to the need to cultivate imagination because it is the source of fears. It will be practical now for the aspirant to make a list of all the fears that are experienced. Deep-seated fear is often caused by past mistakes, wrong action, intentional or unintentional, and the attendant fear of discovery. Sometimes they can be due to an over-stimulated imagination, although the majority of fears are caused by an uncultivated imagination. It is up to the aspirant to make the decision to direct imagination in a positive, beneficial way.

Here are a few questions you can ask yourself:

a. Do you get dizzy looking down from a great height?
b. Are you afraid of being in a confined space?
c. Are you afraid of crossing a room in front of people?
d. Have you any fear of being rejected?
e. Have you any fear of being discovered?
f. What about fear of inadequacy? In what areas?

You can extend the list but it is sufficient just to recognize your fears and use your energy to "rebuild" yourself. Most fears, when you look at them, are the result of neglecting to cultivate your imagination. Vivid imagination and powerful emotions can be terrifying and follow you into dreams as nightmares. It is not wise to become involved with too much negativity; time and energy should be applied positively.

Uncultivated imagination may result in thinking of yourself as:

a. An Emperor
b. A Queen
c. A box office idol.
d. What role do you play in your daydreams?

Could uncultivated imagination produce fearful images such as:

a. Avenger
b. Aggressor
c. Hunter
d. Hunted

Think about the qualities that cultivated imagination will produce:

a. Consideration
b. Understanding
c. Honesty
d. Openness
e. Loyalty

Speech can be the result of strong emotions which are fed by imagination. As imagination is cultivated and refined the aspirant's speech will reflect this.
Practice the following Enochian Invocation of the Light daily and reflect on the meaning. It is a powerful exercise giving many benefits.

Enochian Invocation of the Light

STEP ONE:
Stand erect, feet shoulder-width apart. Lift your arms straight above your head. Close your eyes and focus them on the space between your eyebrows. Say the following with all the determination and resolve possible:
I AM CREATED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM SUSTAINED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM PROTECTED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM SURROUNDED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM ALWAYS GROWING INTO THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.

STEP TWO:
Use your imagination and creative visualization to see yourself standing in a shower of brilliant white light. See the Light pouring down upon you -- into your body through the top of your head -- and filling your entire being.

STEP THREE:
Lower your arms slowly to the sides of your body. Concentrate on feeling a warm glow of Light suffuse your entire body -- outside as well as inside. Say the following:
"Every atom of this, my physical body, is filled with the Light. Every level of my consciousness is illuminated with the Light. The Light penetrates every single atom of my being, every level of consciousness. I have become a channel of Pure Light. I am One with the Light."

STEP FOUR:
Stand quietly for several minutes and bask in the warmth of the Light. Meditate upon the Light. Be receptive to the Light and accept that your are now a channel of Divine Light. Express gratitude with deep feeling and share this gift with someone whom you wish to help.

STEP FIVE:
Visualize any person, friend or relative. See him or her standing before you. With your arms still by your sides, turn your palms forward. Mentally open the doors of your heart and let the Light stream forth towards the feet of this person. See the Light encircling the body, spiralling upward in a clockwise direction, enveloping the body completely. See the spiral moving high up into the sky, taking his or her image along with it. Finally, see the person merge into the source of the Light and become one with the Light.

STEP SIX:
When the person has passed from your view, relax and silently give thanks for having the opportunity to help someone in need. (Remember, in helping others we are helping ourselves.)

DESIRES

Make a list of desires in order of their importance and priority in your life. Record them in your diary.

Since desires lead to scheming for their fulfillment, decisions should be made with careful discrimination. However, the aspirant should be aware that the emotions can have their grip even on our reasoning. Their impact must be fully understood so that one can withdraw energy from them. Otherwise the energy goes into the fulfillment and manifestation of the desire.

Desires created when one was still in a very immature state have to be dissolved because they become obstacles that hinder one's further development.

Visualization is invoking an image or directing imagination. Undirected imagination is only daydreaming and has no results. Directed imagination must now be used to examine images of people and events still held from the past. Do these images influence you now?

Think back over your life and list the things you have wished for in the past. List them in order of priority. How relevant are they to you today? Do they still exert power over you? Here are a few to start:

A. I want to:

1. Become a great pianist
2. Be a success in business
3. Wield power over others

B. Or maybe you wanted to:

1. Be a perfect wife
2. Be a perfect mother
3. Be a perfect husband
4. Be a perfect father

C. What is perfection in:

1. A wife
2. A husband
3. Children

D. What is anyone's view of perfection.

When you have listed desires from the past and noted the influence they have exerted on your life, it is not difficult to see the effect of emotions and imagination, and to understand the need to cultivate and direct both. Remember to record all of these lists in your diary.

With these lists in mind choose an image which embodies a quality you wish to develop. Bring the image of your choice into focus, concentrating on the symbolic meaning, first to cultivate the imagination and, as a next step, to relate to your life the idea for which the symbol stands.

EXERCISES IN IMAGINATION -- VISUALIZATION

In the exercises that follow possible difficulties may arise because of objections to choosing an image of meditation in the first place. This is a typical close-minded attitude. Yet the same individual cares to have pictures of a member of a family, such as his wife or child, on his desk, knowing all along that it is only a piece of paper with the image of a well-known individual on it. So why object to a picture that expresses symbolically an idea of Creation too great for the mind to focus on for prolonged periods of time?

A. Choose an image that is most pleasing to your mind. Let it be a symbol of all that is for you most Perfect, most High, most Beautiful. Remember what this image stands for: the masculine aspect, Cosmic Energy unmanifest.

B. At the spot of the Heart on your image see the female counterpart now representing Cosmic Energy manifest in as much Beauty and Splendour as you can imagine.

The male figure in its symbolic meaning is bigger, because there is so much more Cosmic Energy unmanifest than you can possibly envision.

C. Now invoke a prayerful attitude and let the emotions express themselves in gratitude. To come in contact with the Forces of the Divine should make anyone grateful. In this way the emotions should be included in all Spiritual/Magickal practices, as they thereby become cultivated.

It has already been pointed out how powerful the human mind is and how quickly it can expand in its concentration. Repeat the above exercise, now adding the Enochian Invocation of the Light so that all that has been imagined is "seen" as a mass of White Light. The visualization of the Light will in due time saturate all forms that have been imagined. This process gives the mind enough substance in the beginning to keep it occupied over a long period of time. Through the Enochian Invocation of the Light the aspirant is slowly helped to recognize the Energy that manifests in so many forms.

EXERCISE

(Filling Your Body With Light)

STEP ONE:

Sit in a meditation posture, cross-legged, or with your ankles crossed. Rest your hands, palms up, on you lap. (As an alternate posture, you may stand.)

STEP TWO:

Focus your eyes on the space between the eyebrows.

STEP THREE:

Try to think of yourself without the body or face; in other words, avoid the familiar reflection seen in the mirror.

STEP FOUR:

Visualize your body as empty or hollow like a glass bottle.

STEP FIVE:

See a small stream of White Light (the size of a thread) flowing down the center of this glass form, filling the feet, legs, trunk, neck, and head.

STEP SIX:

Soon you will not be able to distinguish detailed limbs. This form that you call your body is now a mass of Light.

STEP SEVEN:

Hold this image (a mass of Light in the shape of your body) as long as possible.

STEP EIGHT:
Repeat this exercise often until it becomes familiar.

Before continuing check all notes that have been written down after practicing these exercises. Any feelings other than peaceful or harmonious ones are a signal to stop all exercises immediately. The aspirant can only resume these exercises when there is an increased feeling of well-being physically and emotionally. Anything out of the ordinary indicates that personal guidance is definitely needed. (Should you feel the need for such personal guidance, you may contact the author at the address given in this book.)

Do not SKIP any exercises. Learn to be persistent. There is more to learn in each one than meets the eye at first glance. Patience is hardly anybody's natural virtue and hence has to be cultivated.

It becomes quite obvious that great care and time have to be spent on the "laying of the foundation". It is very important to be able to follow instructions. When there are difficulties, the obstacles should be search for in the ego which is asserting its intellectual power and expressing an unfounded pride. The antidote to pride is surrender and humility.

15. SELF-IMAGE AND PERSONALITY ASPECTS:
The aspect of preservation is like the flight of an Eagle and should tell the aspirant that thoughts have wings. Where do you want to fly? Powerful thoughts can carry you to beauty, inspiration, and blessing, or to the destruction of yourself and others. That is your choice. Where does the power for these thoughts come from? We can see the manifestation, but what is the source?

A negative or poor self-image is very common. The reasons for it do not really matter since this knowledge, while it may remove the sting, does not alter the perception one has of oneself. The way to change self-image is by a systematic process which will help in cultivating the imagination. Through this process it will become apparent how great the power of imagination is. The poor self-image can be eradicated by sincere practice of the Enochian Invocation of the Light Ritual which has been explained earlier.

When investigating the power of "self-creation", it is necessary to clearly understand various processes that take place without the aspirant becoming aware of them. Do not allow anyone to reduce you to an image on which you then act. Your awareness must also be clear enough to prevent you from doing this to anyone else. Such a reduction is a great insult to the dignity of a human being. But there is also the dangerous possibility of indulging in a sort of narcissism, where nobody counts but the inflated ego that nourishes a hidden self-pity by such reduction of others.

Making thought associations by images, our habitual reactions because of past experiences, also affect the self-image. This can be a bad habit, so mechanical that it escapes attention.
The images that come up in daydreaming must be examined as they are often the source of fear and insecurity which play a great part in self-image.
Everyone has many different personalities which move like actors into the foreground in various situations. The multitude of personality aspects is, in magickal symbolism, the covering dust of the glorious Self. In psychology it is often referred to as "role playing". The idea is basically the same. The difference lies in the choice of symbolic expression. There are many illustrations showing ritual dancers wearing masks and sometimes exchanging masks. These performances often serve as a kind of entertainment or festival for various seasons and, at the same time, are meant to teach the audience some serious and important truths. They have a subtle influence on the minds and emotions of the audience, and may awaken the individual to refinement of the senses.
All your personalities and their various aspects need to be recognized. The best way is to make a list and decide on their validity. Some should be discarded. They are like tail ends hanging on from former times and only encourage vanity, pride or false modesty. Others have developed as a means of self-preservation or survival.
Ask yourself what survival means. Write this question and your answers down in your diary, because the question will come up again. It will be helpful to compare notes and see your progress.
The list of all these personality aspects will help you to recognize their power and influence on yourself and others. When the power of the personality is joined with the power of rampant emotions, it becomes a destructive force. When this destructive force is connected with self-image, it can be devastating. The ego then seeks to compensate and the situation worsens.
Dishonesty, pretense, and other negative aspects are expressed to the extent to which the power of the emotions is allowed to manifest.
As the aspirant becomes aware of the facts and begins to take responsibility and control, changes for the better take place.
The repetition of concepts of oneself can often have an influence bordering on self-hypnosis. It will be hard to escape that trap.
But it can be done. Remember, the Enochian Invocation of the Light Ritual -- when practiced regularly -- is a powerful tool for improving self-image.

SELF-IMAGE

What is your self-image now? The need for change has to be recognized, then something can be done about it.
The image you put out to others is the basis of all responses and treatment that you get back. Even long after one has made changes, responses by others may have become so habitual that the difficulties created by the old image are hard to overcome. It takes good will on the part of others to accept and respond to the changes in you. These new responses will encourage you to keep working on overcoming poor images of the self.

To help clarify the image you hold of yourself, here are a few questions to be answered:

A. How do I see myself?
B. Is my self-image valid?
C. Am I changing my self-image as I am changing?
D. Can I take a new look at myself?
E. Are changing goals changing my self-image?
F. Can I see myself in the perspective of my new goals?
G. Are the energy and discipline expended in pursuing the new goal improving my self-image?
H. Am I exercising my Will? (Daily Reflection)
I. What images of daydreams could prove useful if consistently applied?

This list must also be expanded to provide the aspirant with the basis for making the necessary changes. As always, record all of your answers in your diary.

PERSONALITY ASPECTS

Making personality changes by sheer will power or suggestion is almost impossible. The strain would be too great to be sustained for any length of time. But the goal of expanded consciousness and awareness provides a replenishing energy. By practicing identification with the Energy (Self) and by having faith in the practice, change is inevitable. (Even on a much lower level, where men and women are still seeking pleasure, changes take place according to the strength of the desire to achieve happiness.) Finally, the learned experience becomes second nature.

To begin, it is suggested that the aspirant make a list of personality aspects. These should not be limited to the usual ones of:

A. Father
B. Wife
C. Doctor
D. Business man
E. Nurse
F. Include such characteristics as:
1. Manipulator
2. Game player
3. Philanthropist
4. Gossiper
5. Intellectual

These are just a few random ideas. Make your own list. Clarify yourself to yourself. Avoid all judgment. Remember that there is no personality aspect that is specifically male or female, both have all sorts of characteristics.

Remember also that the Self does not own any of these personalities. Each has its own ego, making your life more miserable than happy. These manifestations have no permanence. they appear and reappear depending on the emotional stimulus involved, to which the imagination makes its immediate contribution.

A little illustration will help to clarify this further. If you need your appendix taken out, and the surgeon identified with your pain, his hand would falter and become destructive instead of helpful. By being completely detached, the necessary help can be given, the action (surgery) well performed. The sympathy that is sought is expressed in the action itself. In the same way, the aspirant must avoid identification with the personality aspects in order to perform the necessary action.

The Enochian Invocation of the Light Ritual, in due time, will help the aspirant to become aware of his or her own inner Divine Self.

The Enochian Invocation of the Light Ritual has to be meaningful -- never allow it to become an automatic routine. When water runs through a rusty pipe, the water comes through, but there is also much more that is unwanted. In the same way that the water running through the rusty pipe will finally clean it out, so through your efforts you will become more spiritual, a purer channel for the Light. As you keep practicing, the channel within you will become more clear.

16. UNDERSTANDING THE VARIOUS ASPECTS OF LIFE:

It is now necessary for the aspirant to give serious consideration to a number of very important topics. These are: Death, Competition, Mechanicalness, Love and Consciousness. The aspirant must determine how these topics manifest themselves in his or her life. These topics must be understood before they can be controlled and refined.

The aspirant should make a list dealing with each of these topics and enter the answers in his or her diary. We will begin with the subject of Death.

DEATH

The great effort to avoid birth is matched by equally strenuous efforts to avoid death. We are afraid to die. Why? What does death mean, our own, our loved ones? The Masters and Teachers recognize sex, birth, and death as one unit. The aspirant needs to clarify these personal thoughts in order to determine the goal for this life.

It is not necessary to spend the nights in a cemetery and to sit on a corpse to ponder the meaning of life and death. But it is very definitely necessary to ponder these great mysteries of human life. How else can ideals, ethics, and standards be established for oneself? The evolutionary process goes on regardless of ignorance. Suffering can be minimized by knowledge first obtained, then put into practice. Practicing what one thinks makes life worth living and gives it new meaning.

The time of one's physical death may be known beforehand, by intuition or through dreams, or as a voice in meditation. If all affairs are in order -- the last will made, harmony with all those left behind -- death has little anxiety. For the Master or Teacher death is but passing into another realm of existence. Consciousness has many expressions and is not entirely dependent on a physical body. But a physical form will be assumed again, so long as there is an intense desire that is still unfulfilled.

The spiritual practice called the Enochian Invocation of the Light -- which is described in this volume -- is one of the spiritual activities that will make a distinct difference at the time of death. The term "passing into the LIGHT" is most descriptive. When an individual has passed on into the Light, there will then be a favourable rebirth.

The sex-birth-death chain of cause and effect can be traced everywhere, and in every aspect of life. To foresee or anticipate the effect is one of the methods used by some Masters and Teachers to practice awareness, and to avoid repeating mistakes. One mistake could be to have an unfavourable rebirth. Strong desires can hasten rebirth and an anxious person will accept "anything", just to get onto the train of life to keep fulfilling those very desires.

Biological ideas about evolution have their place in their own setting. The Master and Teacher sees the individual path of Spiritual/Magickal evolution as a parent would see the child grow into physical and mental maturity. The Master and Teacher does not limit the process of growth, but is intent to develop many potentials and to rise above limitations.

Death has many aspects. It is most important for the aspirant to examine all thoughts on death. To help with making a list it might prove useful to look first outside oneself at what is happening in the world. Everywhere there is food for thought. Consider, for example, the tremendous efforts that medical science is making to preserve life from the baby in the incubator to the old man on his deathbed. Why? In contrast to preserving life, there is the effort to prevent life, of which the "birth control pill" is the common example. What do YOU think about the pill and its ramifications? Any newspaper one picks up today is filled with deaths, some as a result of natural disasters, but many are lives sacrificed to greed and power. How does this fit into YOUR ideas of life and death?

Death, which we are investigating, is not only physical. There are many ways to die and administer death. It might be good to start by looking at the many deadly games that we play. Let us begin with one of the most obvious -- language. Here are a few examples. Add your own to the list:

1. I would die if .....
2. I could kill him/her because .....
3. I could kill myself for having done .....

The think of the deadly emotions expressed by:

1. I hate that colour .....
2. I hate to eat that stuff .....
3. I loathe doing this work .....

Stop being careless with your choice of words. The power of words is such that we are indeed playing deadly games when we casually use such words. Find replacements for these needless exaggerations. Say what you really mean. Instead of "I would rather die than do such-and-such", say, "I would rather not do it". You don't hate that colour, but you do have a preference for another.

Ask yourself: "Do I want to kill that person?" or "Do I want to kill the frustrations I feel because I am unable to deal with a difficult individual?" And if you say: "I could kill myself", look and clarify what it is in you that you really want to kill.
When you control your emotions, do you "kill" love? Or is it only the habitual reactions and possessiveness that are gone? Perhaps, by this very control, love is now really alive?
Do you have a soul? Is your soul/Self alive or dead? Or only undiscovered as yet?

Philosophical ideas of death need to be investigated also and not used as excuses for deadly games. Ideas may be sustained because of a strong emotional investment, powerful enough to bypass the most important point: that one must accept responsibility for the actual consequences when such ideas materialize. The reality of any philosophical idea has to be searched carefully.
Ask yourself: What is Real?
Competition and violence are links in the chain connected to killing physically and non-physically. In competition for power, riots or revolutions may take place, resulting in the killing of innocent people. In competing for a business position, a man may "kill" the reputation of his competitor.
Ask yourself: How many ways can one kill?

1. Body	8. Expectations
2. Joy	9. Hopes
3. Peace	10. Honesty
4. Protest	11. Ambition
5. Business	12. Innocence
6. Reputation	13. Good-will
7. Opposition	14. Laws

What part is played by the power of the mind?

1. Imagination
2. Emotion
3. Personal Will
4. Awareness of Consequences
5. Responsibility
6. Escape
7. Projection of oneself
8. Self-importance
9. Revenge
10. Hate

What is the emotional pitch of a killer?

1. Has the killer reached the culmination of all emotion?
2. What is the emotional state of the victim?

Sacrifice, martyrdom, and suicide have many roots. As mentioned earlier, the choice of language used gives hints of what is in the recesses of the mind. Assassinations often have their roots in a sick kind of self-glorification. A person may begin by indulging in self-pity and be led by stages to become an assassin, believing himself or herself to be striking a blow against injustice or cruelty. Vanity, self-importance, and imagination may also play a part.

Some thoughts are like weeds, running wild in the mind. Some thoughts are flowers, turning to the Light:
1. Which are growing in your mental garden?
2. Which do you want to grow?
3. What roots have to be pulled out?
4. What roots have to be killed?
The garden of the mind has to be cultivated with great care. Undesirable characteristics must be weeded out ruthlessly before the good is lost and another round of birth and life has to start again.
A great talent, a genius, does not appear suddenly, but comes into existence by careful cultivation, training, and discipline through many lifetimes. The same Law of Karma applies to all the negative and destructive characteristics, if these have been allowed to develop in previous incarnations. The choice is the responsibility of each individual.
Why must we spend time looking at this ugly side of life when the Goal is just the opposite? The Masters and Teachers of old thought that there would be no appreciation for the bright sun if the night were not accepted also. By turning away and pretending the ugliness does not exist, there will be very little effort to make the earth a place of peace and harmony. It is also too easy to postpone the work on oneself until tomorrow. "In the next life I will do it. This time let me have fun":
1. What fun?
2. Can you have fun at no cost to anyone?
These are the questions that have to be asked, regardless of one's level of proficiency. Everything has a small beginning but can grow out of all proportion. However, many undesirable characteristics can be nipped in the bud if searching questions are asked.
Finally:
1. How well do you know yourself?
2. What is your regard for life?

COMPETITION

In the practice of Enochian Magick there is no competition.
You start where you are, at the beginning.
Ask yourself:
1. What does the word "competition" mean to me?
2. Do I compete?
3. In what areas do I compete?
   a. On the job?
   b. With my husband or wife?
   c. With my father or mother?
   d. With a colleague?
   e. With a co-student or co-worker?
4. For what do I compete?
   a. For love?
   b. Acceptance?
   c. To win?
   d. Because of habit?

e. Because I was trained that way?
f. Because everybody does?
g. Because it is the only way to live?
h. For survival?
i. Recognition?
j. Fame?
k. Self-glorification?
l. Self-importance?

These are serious questions and must be fully examined. To carry competition into the Spiritual/Magickal Path is a disaster. Enochian Magick makes great demands of discipline. Any type of work that is worth doing must be done well, with perseverance and sincerity, and not for the purpose of competing. In following Spiritual/Magickal instructions -- keeping a daily diary and performing the Rituals -- the highest level of performance must be maintained. Dabbling in Spiritual/Magickal practice is a deadly game because it creates karma.

MECHANICALNESS

You may not have discovered how mechanical you are. Maybe in the context of Enochian Magickal practice it does not even make sense. An illustration will help. After you learned to drive a car, you no longer went through the entire process of driving. You could drive "automatically". In daily life there are many examples of this. But all areas in which one is mechanically functioning, whether physically, mentally of emotionally, have to be slowly discovered. One must become aware of them.

Ask yourself:

1. What does the word "mechanical" mean to me?
2. What do I do mechanically?

Go through the routine of the day. Think of actions such as driving, eating at particular times, or sleeping a certain number of hours.

What are my emotional mechanical reactions?

1. I always get angry when .....
2. I always get a headache when .....
3. I'm always afraid in the dark .....
4. I cannot be alone, automatically I am afraid to be in my own company.

What are my mental mechanical reactions?

1. My mind always gets restless if I am not busy .....
2. My mind always drifts off when things get rough or boring .....
3. My mind always drifts off when I am not the center of attention .....
4. My mind is always too tired to concentrate.

LOVE

To investigate love, you begin where you are right now by jotting down your thoughts. If thoughts don't come, ask questions such as:

What is love?

1. Companionship?
2. Being needed?
3. Being accepted?
4. Being married?
5. Having children?
6. Emotions?
7. Responsibility?
8. Self-gratification?
9. Helping someone?
10. Loving nature (trees, flowers, animals)?

The list is endless and you may continue it on your own. After your list is completed, at least for the moment, ask yourself if you can answer what love is. Perhaps you are in love with the idea of love. This is more common than is generally suspected because of a lack of thinking on a deeper level. When you say "I love you", what exactly do you mean? I love you because:

1. You accept me
2. You are so friendly or nice
3. You take care of me
4. You are very entertaining and lots of fun
5. You are rich, educated and good looking
6. You offer me security and social status .....

Try to eliminate all the because's. having done so, you may feel more honest, almost relieved, and be more modest in your statement, saying instead, "I like you (very much)". If you like a person for various reasons, you are being truthful and there is nothing wrong with this. But the word "love" has, in many a person's mind, a very clear definition with many expectations attached to it. When these are not fulfilled the result is disappointment and pain. If you really take a good look at love and how you understand it in contrast to its true meaning, your conclusions might be something like "If I love ... I can forgive ... I can forget ... I can refrain from making demands on my loved ones ... I can accept what is ... I can renounce praise and drop expectations ... This love is my sole happiness".
There is one more question left: "Which of my senses experiences love?"

CONSCIOUSNESS (MIND)

If you find it difficult to make a list on the subject of consciousness and mind, try some of the others again. You can, however, begin this one in the same way by just trying to find out how you use these words. When do you speak of "consciousness" and when do you prefer "mind?"

1. How do I use "consciousness"?
2. How do I use "mind"?
3. Do I use these words interchangeably?
4. If I interchange them, when and why?
5. What are the characteristics of the mind?

a. Thinking
b. Memorizing

c. Concentrating
d. Observing
e. Daydreaming
f. Learning
g. Imagining
h. Procrastinating
6. Are there levels of the mind?
7. How many levels are there?
8. What do I mean by each level?
9. What about:
a. Telepathy
b. Clairvoyance
c. Inspiration
d. Intuition
10. Do I credit these to mind or consciousness?
11. Where does mechanicalness come in?
12. Higher Self verses lower self -- What does it mean to me?
13. What do the following mean to me?
a. ESP
b. Hypnosis
c. Self-suggestion
d. Projection
e. Analysis

Once you understand even a little better the mysteries and functions of your mind, you will become aware that it has an awesome power.

Mind is the interpreter of all experiences!

17. OBSERVING THE MIND:

Any path of Enochian Magick has the same goal, liberation from all limitations. You have to decide to begin yourself and you have to do the work by yourself. It cannot be done by anybody else. An important part of this work is watching the mind to learn how it functions.

Concentration means to keep one object in the mind without any other intruding thoughts. The length of time that you can do this is an excellent way to find out more about your mind and its ability to concentrate. This practice is done side by side with the practice of creative visualization, and the reciting of various Enochian Rituals or Calls a certain number of times without any interfering thoughts. Various images are used to enlarge one's power of concentration. Once you have learned to sit and concentrate for long periods of time, you can watch your mind and begin to understand the process of thinking. What kind of images appear? The mind is very quick, thus an effort has to be made to slow it down. Are the images that appear in your mind concrete or abstract? Neither is right nor wrong, but these findings allow you to decide on the kind of image that is best suited to you for concentration.

It will soon become obvious to the aspirant how many acrobatics the mind will perform in order to relate one thing to another.

The mind will link the object of concentration to many other things which are associated with it. It will be difficult to bring the mind back to think only about the object being concentrated on. It is important to become aware of the tendency of the mind ever to weave new fabrics. The cultivated imagination can create a genius, but without control it produces the fragmentation that keeps the mind from relating to the object or subject of concentration at hand.

EXERCISES FOR OBSERVING THE MIND

1. Select a number of different objects. Concentrate on each one for three (3) minutes. It will take practice to achieve unbroken concentration for this length of time. The objects must vary in kind. For example, a piece of wood, a glass or bowl of water, a picture of a known person and of an unknown person, a likeable and an ugly picture, a picture of a bird, an insect, a fierce animal, or a sweet little kitten or puppy.

2. Sit still for ten (10) minutes watching the mind, then note all that is observed:

   a. The emerging images

   b. The thought associations

   c. Distinguishing between concrete and abstract information

   d. The influence of either concrete or abstract images (basic to concentration or meditation).

Then increase the time by five (5) minutes -- expand to a half hour and finally to an hour. (This can be done in two ways -- first, at the start, every ten (10) minutes until an hour is complete, watch and take notes. However, the exercise must finally lead into watching the mind for an unbroken half or full hour, with notes to follow.) All notes from watching the mind should be compared. If certain aspects repeat, indicating a possible problem, it should be dealt with by continuous questioning.

These exercises will, in time, show how the mind works on all sorts of stimuli presented to it and how the mind is being stimulated apparently from nowhere. Watch what happens if, by old habit, you let the stimuli manifest or, by the new discipline of the mind, you "weed" them out as soon as they appear as thoughts. It is like a million seeds so small they are barely visible, all "sprouting" at once. This process occurs so fast that the earnest aspirant can barely distinguish them. But when control has been achieved, those thoughts die quickly and energy can be diverted towards only the desirable ones. This practice takes care of the innate restlessness which prevents focusing on a single thought or object. The mind can now become a container, open and receptive.

Keeping notes makes it possible to practice recall and to check the accuracy of what you recall. The result of this exercise is a strengthening of memory and, more important, the acquiring of a well-honed sense of discrimination.

Having learned to concentrate, to recall, and to empty the mind, meditation can be attempted because the mind is now like a vessel, able to receive thoughts of a Divine nature. In the beginning there may be insights of great significance, but as soon as intuition begins to unfold, the perceptions are of a different quality, which can be designated as Divine. These perceptions flow into the mind and are often preceded by waves of brilliant hues of blue colour. The aspirant is enveloped in an all-encompassing feeling of peace and harmony. This by itself will become an important stimulus to keep up a regular practice. Soon it will be more than a stimulus, a deep longing will be created within the heart. Instead of colour, a sense of peace may come.

To sum up, when desires are diminished and the scheming for their fulfillment ceases, concentration and meditation is possible without much effort. The Masters and Teachers call this acquiring a Pure Mind.

SPECIAL EXERCISE

Water can be used as a symbol for the mind, which can flow uncontrolled and destructive, or be directed and beneficial. The Enochian Cup, which is a container implies, among other things, the control of water and thus the control of the mind. Therefore, it is advised to watch the mind, looking at the thoughts and images that appear, then reflecting on both the results of the exercises and the day's events. Reasoning must be used to follow one thought to a completion and to take action on whatever one has become aware of. There is no room for indulgence in emotions. This requires maturity.

Ask yourself: What is the meaning of water? What part does it play in my life?

1. Water cleans and washes.
2. Water quenches thirst and fire.
3. Water is used for cooking.
4. Water has various tastes according to its source and flow.
5. Water can give pleasure, joy, and excitement.
6. Water is refreshing on a hot day.
7. Water is important to life, to growth and survival.
8. Water carries boats and ships.
9. Water can take many shapes and forms, filling spaces.
10. Water is soft and gentle in small quantities.
11. Water's large waves can destroy valleys and towns.
12. Water unchecked is dangerous.
13. Water's flow can be directed.
14. Water is unpredictable.
15. Water responds to the slightest breath.
16. Water wears down the hardest stone by steady drops.
17. Water can emerge from below.
18. Water can come from above as rain, hail or snow.
19. Water reflects the sky.
20. Water receives, unresisting, my projections.

What other impressions on water would you have? What thought associations come to your mind, now that you have watched your mind and seen its play, its creativity?

1. Is your mind like the water?
2. Does a slight stimulation create ripples of endless thoughts?
3. Are the waters of your mind murky?
4. Is a lot of debris floating around?
5. Can you direct your mind, or is it like unchecked waters, just gushing forth?

The steady dropping of water wears down the hardest rock.

1. Can you apply this to yourself in regard to Spiritual practice?
2. Would you want to?

Still water reflects the sky.

1. Can you keep your mind still to reflect Divine thoughts?

The mind is useful in many aspects, but not in all. Sometimes it assumes a rulership without proper authority. Who gives this authority? As water can emerge from below, so many suppressed thoughts emerge from the depths within yourself. Let all that debris come to the surface so that you know what is there. Remove what you don't want. Keep and deal with what you want.

Can you stay above WATER?

By now it must have become obvious to the aspirant that there will be no "definite" directions, only pointers to stimulate thinking into new avenues. All depends on YOU. Remember to keep up with your daily diary. It will become your treasure chest.

18. BEGINNING YOUR ENOCHIAN RITUALS:

As every child must crawl before it can walk, so every aspirant must begin with the basics. The following Rituals will teach the aspirant the value of regular daily practice. A daily routine will also help the aspirant to set an established pattern for their Spiritual/Magickal practices and will also prepare you for the more difficult rituals you will be learning in the future.

It is now time for you, the aspirant, to begin your journey on the Spiritual/Magickal Path of Enochian Magick. So let us go forth into the Light!

Ritual Cleansing Bath

STEP ONE

Take a hot shower to get the dirt off of your body.

STEP TWO

Run a warm bath and add some bath salts or epsom salts and some nicely scented oil or perfume.

STEP THREE

Get in the water and soak for a few minutes, making sure you slowly splash water on the upper part of your body. Now, feel all of your problems, worries and negativity going into the water.

STEP FOUR
Pull the plug and let the water drain "while you stay in the water." As the water slowly drains, you will feel all the negative things which were troubling you go down the drain with the water. "REMAIN IN THE TUB UNTIL ALL THE WATER IS GONE."
STEP FIVE
Get out of the tub and allow your body to AIR DRY. (If you are pressed for time, you may dry off with a clean, fresh towel. However, "air-drying" is more beneficial.)
STEP SIX
While "air-drying" meditate on the upcoming ritual or rituals you are going to perform.
STEP SEVEN
When "DRY" wrap your body in a towel or a clean robe and then proceed to a quite area, where you will immediately discard the towel or robe if you are performing the ritual by yourself.
STEP EIGHT
Sit down in the chair and relax for a few moments. Once you feel totally relaxed and comfortable proceed with the Seven-Fold Breath Ritual.

Seven-Fold Breath Ritual

STEP ONE
Sit in the chair in your quiet area and place your feet flat on the floor and your hands in your lap.
STEP TWO
Empty the lungs and remain thus while counting to 7.
STEP THREE
Inhale, counting to 7 so that you feel filled with breath to the throat.
STEP FOUR
Hold this breath while counting to 7.
STEP FIVE
Exhale, counting to 7 till the lungs are empty.
STEP SIX
Repeat steps One, Two, Three, Four and Five, consecutively until done fifteen (15) times.
STEP SEVEN
Proceed to the Relaxation Ritual.

The Relaxation Ritual

STEP ONE
While still sitting in the chair, make sure that your feet are flat on the floor and that your legs are not crossed. Rest your hands, palms down, in your lap. Your eyes should be closed.
STEP TWO
Visualize a golden ball of beautiful, warm light surrounding your feet. The ball of golden warm light brings peace and total relaxation. Wherever the ball of light goes, tension departs. Let it go, and as it goes, feel your feet filled with the warm, golden glow of peace and total relaxation.

STEP THREE

Now, allow this ball of light to rise up your legs and up your torso. Then allow it to go down your arms to your fingers, and finally up your neck and into your head until you are completely covered with the warm, golden glow of total peace and relaxation, and all tension is gone. If you notice tension anywhere, send the ball of light there and the tension will vanish.

STEP FOUR

Stay in this state of total peace and deep relaxation for ten (10) to fifteen (15) minutes.

STEP FIVE

When you are ready to come out of this state of deep relaxation, take three (3) deep breaths and feel fresh life and energy coming into your body with each breath.

STEP SIX

Proceed to the Enochian invocation of the Light Ritual.

Enochian Invocation of the Light

STEP ONE:

Stand erect, feet shoulder-width apart. Lift your arms straight above your head. Close your eyes and focus them on the space between your eyebrows. Say the following with all the determination and resolve possible:

I AM CREATED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM SUSTAINED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM PROTECTED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM SURROUNDED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM ALWAYS GROWING INTO THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.

STEP TWO:

Use your imagination and creative visualization to see yourself standing in a shower of brilliant white light. See the Light pouring down upon you -- into your body through the top of your head -- and filling your entire being.

STEP THREE:

Lower your arms slowly to the sides of your body. Concentrate on feeling a warm glow of Light suffuse your entire body -- outside as well as inside. Say the following:

"Every atom of this, my physical body, is filled with the Light. Every level of my consciousness is illuminated with the Light. The Light penetrates every single atom of my being, every level of consciousness. I have become a channel of Pure Light.

I am One with the Light."
STEP FOUR:
Stand quietly for several minutes and bask in the warmth of the Light. Meditate upon the Light. Be receptive to the Light and accept that your are now a channel of Divine Light. Express gratitude with deep feeling and share this gift with someone whom you wish to help.
STEP FIVE:
Visualize any person, friend or relative. See him or her standing before you. With your arms still by your sides, turn your palms forward. Mentally open the doors of your heart and let the Light stream forth towards the feet of this person. See the Light encircling the body, spiralling upward in a clockwise direction, enveloping the body completely. See the spiral moving high up into the sky, taking his or her image along with it. Finally, see the person merge into the source of the Light and become one with the Light.
STEP SIX:
When the person has passed from your view, relax and silently give thanks for having the opportunity to help someone in need. (Remember, in helping others we are helping ourselves.)

You have just completed performing the first four (4) Basic Enochian Rituals. The first thing you should now do is record these rituals in your diary. Record everything that you felt, saw or heard. Make your entries as detailed as possible. The entries you make now will be very helpful to you in the future.

SECTION THREE

19. Speech (Level Three)
The power of speech that has been given in the previous two sections can now, in this section, be focused on compulsive talking, compulsive criticism, and the compulsive gratification of what are termed "needs". It must be realized that man goes through five stages of development: (1) Mineral-Man, (2) Vegetable-Man, (3) Animal-Man, (4) Man-Man, and (5) God-Man. While it is right for man to fulfill needs in the first three groups, Man-Man, now in search of the Spiritual/Magickal Path by a decision of his own, must look at these needs and reduce them down to the very essentials. Giving in to such needs that should be discarded could exact a very high price.
Language is born of the unconscious. The drive to express oneself comes from the unconscious. Behind many a word lies a whole range of ideas allowing numerous interpretations. For example, the words "time" and "space" spring from very different ideas when used by a housewife, an architect, a scientist, a social worker, or a psychiatrist. Each profession has its particular language for specific communication with those of like mind.
Energy wasted in useless chatter is easily recognized when we are ill. We are then aware that energy is quickly depleted. There is a reluctance to conform to the social conventions that mandate one must always make conversation, however small or worthless. What is the difference in the useless drain of energy in talk or in sex? If greater awareness of its preciousness does not show a purpose for the energy, then it is spilled down the drain. Observing the mind has to be carried out as an exercise to find out how it functions and to obtain greater awareness. Changes in oneself are frequently unnoticed. They come to the foreground, however, when attention is given to the use of words and language. In each stage of life speech increases. Higher levels of consciousness are approached as awareness expands. Exaggerations, superlatives, and coarse language have to be left behind as one evolves; after some time these simply fade away and disappear. The voice becomes a magnet that attracts others; the magnetism of personality comes into effect.

The ancient Teachers and Masters say that speech is feminine. The reason for assigning feminine aspects to speech was brought about because letters of the alphabet give birth to words, and finally, to language. They are sound symbols.

Just as complicated mathematical formulas are unintelligible to the untrained mind, so are higher aspects of the meanings of words used in Enochian Rituals. A magnetic/electric field is created by the reciting of Enochian Rituals. The benefits are evident in-and-to those who practice Enochian Magick on a daily basis. Sound has an effect on the human body in general and, in very specific ways, the mind.

First there is the sound or word, second the sense, and last the manifestation. This is ENOCHIAN MAGICK. The summary of all these ideas is expressed in the "Vibrations". A Ritual is, therefore, not limited to the letters themselves but is in their audible pronunciation (vibration).

THIRD LEVEL EXERCISE IN SPEECH

In this section, we will investigate the power of the spoken word and realize that in certain respects the power of language is not different from the power of thought.

To begin this investigation think of the following:

1. What is speech?
2. How do I speak?

a. Clearly?

b. Mumbling"

3. Do I want to be heard?
4. Am I afraid to be heard?
5. Is there clarity of thought?

After having asked these questions and added many more of your own, the brief answers that you may supply in the first moment of response have to be further clarified:

1. Do I see the light of the day?
2. If I do, what is it that is seen?

a. Daylight

b. Sunlight

c. The Moonlight

You will note that each of these have the word "light" attached to them. Do you find this to be a significant point?

Many expressions which are commonly used in everyday language show the reflection of sight in speech:

1. In my eyes . . . (in my estimation)
2. To cast an eye . . .(to look over, evaluate)
3. An eye for an eye . . . (equal revenge)
4. Have an eye for . . . (to desire, to assess)
5. Keep an eye on . . . (watch)
6. Keep your eyes open . . . (stay alert)
7. The eye is the mirror of the soul . . . (honest reflection of thoughts).

Sight is also reflected in such expressions as:

1. Foresighted decisions
2. Shortsighted decisions
3. Eye witness . . . (someone who is present)
4. An eyesore . . . (untidy place).

Add as many of your own expressions to this list as you can.
Another step towards the cultivation of speech is the emphasis on reciting rituals. The power of sound, the power of vibration, can only be achieved if you are very careful not to allow the ritual practice to deteriorate into mechanicalness. In the same way that somebody will say, "I love you", so in ritual work the voice (speech) and emotions must work together.
The emotions expressed can be hope, longing, determination, or desire to achieve the power of the Ritual, to experience the power of sound working in others as well as oneself. Prolonged Ritual work, which means several hours a day for many, many months will bring the effect of focusing and directing the speech, emotions and vibrations. However, you must also renounce a very common need these days, the demand for immediate results.
This need for immediate results may seem necessary in the beginning to make you feel secure in the knowledge that you are on the right track. In the same way, while it is all right to be aware of these needs, you must guard against a dependency on them. The importance of the practice of Enochian Rituals can be summed up by saying that the eventual goal of Ritual Consciousness is obtained when the power of the rituals manifest themselves in your life, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, for the rest of your life. I should also inform you that Ritual Consciousness will also manifest itself during sleep. When this happens, you will awake not with a dream, but with a "vision".

1. Recite the following for one (1) hour, paying attention to the breath. This links emotions with sound and is a good way to hear the emotion in your voice. This is an outlet for the restlessness caused by the emotions. Make sure that you recite the following from the heart. Do not let your recitation become mechanical!

"I AM CREATED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM SUSTAINED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM PROTECTED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM SURROUNDED BY THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE.
I AM ALWAYS GROWING INTO THE LIGHT OF THE DIVINE."

2. Hold an imaginary conversation for ten (10) minutes, allowing the play of emotions to take place. Repeat this exercise, but this time controlling the emotions. Make sure that you use a tape recorder so that you can play back both conversations and listen to the emotions in your voice.

Hearing yourself speak can bring attention to several things:
1. Is the voice soft because of fear of saying the wrong thing?
2. Is it soft because of a poor self-image?
3. Is the voice strong and powerful?
4. Is there determination to be heard, to override others?
5. Is the voice strong and clear because the mind is clear?
6. Is the voice strong and clear because the emotions are clear?

These again are only a few focal points to pay attention to. Each aspirant will have to discover the various differences and possibilities in these random lists. You must think of the meaning of the expressions that are used. Once you have done this, add and clarify any other personal ones. Again, you are reminded that this is a small selection, so your lists could be a great deal larger.

20. IMAGINATION, MIND, AND ENERGY

In each section of these writings you, the aspirant, are reminded of the fact that Enochian Energy is originally formless and shapeless, and that the contribution made by the imagination to its manifestation is the responsibility of the user.
Imagination and strong emotions, interacting with the sense of sight, welds this Energy into desires. The images welling up are like clay, with a form yet soft, able to change shape. But once they are put into the kiln of the emotions they are hardened by the self-will and, if left there, can in the course of time, become as hard as rock, difficult to destroy when you, the aspirant, finally becomes aware that this must be done.
Passions are not limited to sex. One can be passionate about forms and shapes, and also about ideas and concepts.
Concepts that have been formed on this level can be compared to the clay images, put into the emotional kiln and burned with passion. We all love our concepts, and allow them to occupy a large place in our lives. Such concepts acquire, in due time, an almost hypnotic power. Sometimes it seems impossible to act contrary to them even when reason indicates that we should.
Also, our emotions cause intentional blindness. From earlier times of development there seem to be some appendages, old habits that constantly cause difficulties, such as procrastination, self-pity, and the desire to compensate.
By the time you, the aspirant, decides to undertake the practice Enochian Magick, many habits have been established: habitual thinking, habitual feeling, habitual defenses to things one does not want to hear, actions and reactions, compulsions, and the teeter-totter of the pairs of opposites. A very important pair of opposites is the power of positive thinking and the power of negative thinking. Negative thinking exerts such a strong power because of the pushing up of the emotions, which are controlled by the ego. The power of positive thinking needs to get its push from repeated (cultivated) visualizations of ideal responses to situations in the mind's eye. This point will become clearer through watching the mind.

Gradually you, the aspirant, will become aware that the mind interprets everything we experience in reference to ourselves. This awareness comes through the refinement and cultivation of the of the senses, which are the doors and windows to the world. Such refinement brings us into more sensitive touch with those around us because, as the saying goes, "no man is an island". The single cell of the body functions in conjunction with all the other cells and its very existence depends on the cooperation of all the other cells. Similarly, each individual could be compared to a cell in this great Cosmic body that we name in various ways. Self-importance makes for a separation that will only lead to isolation.

Because of imagination, the images in dreams "need" to be observed. To know them, their influence and even control, is very important when exploring the already-known powers of the mind. It is important to know what the mind manufacturers when the consciousness is dimmed in sleep. It takes a great deal of courage to accept the messages which often tell the dreamer an unpleasant truth that ought to be known. A combination of humility, prayer, and courage will help the dreams to become very clear, and very much to the point.

There are many schools of dream interpretation, but it is wise, particularly in the case of the beginner, not to mix schools of thought.

EXERCISES IN IMAGINATION, MIND, AND ENERGY

How do you create your world? Are you happy with it? If not, can you destroy it and create a new one?

Habitual looking at things and people, groups or individuals, belongs to the pattern of mechanicalness which indicates blindness. At this point, it will be helpful to make a list to see the habitual pattern of mechanicalness in regard to sight, illusion, and perhaps even cherished beliefs.

See your beliefs:

1. Where do they come from?
2. What is the foundation?
3. How much is wishful thinking?
4. How much is truly knowing?
5. What happens when you assume an opposite position from your beliefs?
6. Does this become disturbing?

If you can follow through with this process of looking at facts clearly, there will be no flaring emotions if someone else opposes your beliefs, because you have already done it yourself.

That investigative process will have moved you from one end of the teeter-totter closer to the center. Functioning closer to the center and the benefits of such functioning will now bring new insights.

In making a list of mechanicalness and habits, it may be helpful to divide the list. Go through the day in your mind and think of all the things that you do habitually. Do you always:

1. Eat certain foods at certain times of the day?
2. Eat certain foods on certain days of the week?
3. Limit some activities to definite times?
4. Allow too little time for activities, resulting in being rushed?
5. Perform routine tasks with little awareness of doing them?

In making this list, think of your actions and reactions:

1. Do you become defensive when criticized?
2. Do some mannerisms make you feel hostile?
3. Are you intimidated by certain people?
4. Does a person's appearance cause you to react favourably or unfavourably?
5. Do you have an emotional response to witnessing certain situations?

Both of these lists can be expanded greatly and will help you in understanding yourself and increasing your awareness, by allowing you to awaken from your "sleepwalking" state.

The work of laying a foundation is very important because any imagined short-comings, are just that, -- Imagined. It is not a fact. The intense examination of the use of the senses up to this point -- smell, taste, and sight -- with emotions and imagination shows the immensity of the work that has been done by an aspirant who has achieved even a small degree of realization.

Each step may seem to be cruel and one will attempt to resist fact while attempting to hold on to imaginary conditions or circumstances, or to desires and hopes. Any dreams in daily life are only illusions and the awakening from those dreams is sometimes much more cruel than the demands of the Spiritual/Magickal Path. To see facts as they are helps to build confidence and makes a person stronger. If one can see what is, instead of what one wants to see, there is much less self-created pain.

Straight-forward thinking implies straight-forward living. This means meeting situations head-on instead of imagining that things are different and covering them up by foggy thinking, or just doing nothing and hoping that the problems, worries, and decisions will go away.

Sight (inner sight) is strongly linked with concentration. The ability of intense concentration is the "key" to success in all walks of life and also in the cultivation and the development to greater depths of all physical, mental, and emotional tools that are available to everyone.

Concentration can be roughly described as seeing in the mind's eye at will, for a specific length of time, a chosen object. You, the aspirant, must find out how long the span of your concentration is, and learn which objects hold your attention for the longest time, and which, for a shorter period. An understanding of whether you, the aspirant, can visualize an image of an abstract or a concrete nature is important when the choice is made for concentration. {For example, can you think of yourself without holding on to your physical appearance? Can you see yourself as a mass of Light? Can you see yourself as a body of Light without density?} The daily diary reporting the happenings, the exercises, and the emerging thoughts about them, as well as dreams and their importance, becomes a kind of gold mine in one's own backyard and makes clear which way your, the aspirant's, mind works. Careful study will show how, step by step, one gets in touch with the innermost being, which becomes the guiding force to further development. It also becomes a source of energy which one can draw on for the necessary enthusiasm and drive needed to carry on this formidable task of continued self-development.

Put the spotlight of attention on:

1. Where are my dark clouds?
2. How do these dark clouds develop?
3. Can I detect them when they emerge?
4. Which are the areas where I act under compulsion of the emotions?
5. Do I value "emotional investments" higher than reason?
6. What would be a good "key sentence" if I want to make changes? (Example: FIRST THINK, THEN ACT).
7. How would this compare with using another person as a sounding board or brainstorming?
8. Can I detach myself sufficiently to be clear in my own mind which of the processes (sounding board, brain-storming or key sentence reminder) will be most effective for me in a specific situation?

A few more focal points would be:

1. Delay tactics of the mind -- emotions.
2. Traps laid out by the mind -- emotions.
3. Habits of criticism and judgment -- emotions.

Now, take a look at the delay tactics and traps:

1. Do the job tomorrow.
2. Deposit in the past, or postpone until the future, matters which should be dealt with in the present.
3. Remain intentionally blind to avoid taking action or making decisions.
4. Pretend unawareness.

Where do I use delay tactics?

1. In my job?
2. In studying?
3. In work?
4. In cleaning up?

Ways to practice awareness:

1. Paying attention.
2. Recording observations, dreams, etc., in my diary.
3. Physical exercise.
4. Mental and emotional exercises.

a. Watching the mind.
b. Concentrating on one object.
c. Reflecting on daily events.
d. Reflecting on the meaning of words and ideas.

Please remember that making a list for one's own clarification must not lead to the habit of looking for loopholes. A wide area of choices for development must be recognized and evaluated, but the greater responsibility that goes with the new awareness can be more easily accepted through clearer thinking, by whatever process you choose. It is impossible to cover the innumerable possibilities of which the mind and emotions of each individual are capable. Again, it is suggested that you, the aspirant, expand the process of clarification as your studies and knowledge progress.

21. EMOTIONS, MIND, AND ENERGY

For a long time in the aspirant's life it seems that emotions are always upsetting the balance, and so observation is clouded by vanity, pride and false modesty. A critical attitude towards oneself and others and the resulting emotions are responsible for the drive of competition. In the life of an aspirant there can be no competition. The aspirant is like a flower in the field. It grows and it does not measure itself against other flowers of the same kind or of other kinds.

Reflection is mirroring the events of the day and trying to assess one's performance on all levels. Without reflection one would not know when pain is unavoidable or when it is self-created. By our own attitude, we can take situations as helpful or harmful. Often one is simply inconvenienced, not hurt. If there is an accident, such as cutting one's finger, when one is physically hurt, that may be due to lack of observation and, therefore, also self-created. Pain has to be recognized as a great teacher. There might be painful experiences of past lives which, not dealt with at the time, show up again in the present life.

The average person may never encounter a process of developing latent potentials, but, as in man-made law, so in Divine law, ignorance is no excuse. For the ignorant person, life often appears to be merciless, making that person feel like a leaf in the wind, blown here and there, helpless. The possibility of self-mastery on the physical and on the mental-emotional levels seems to be hidden from such persons. The ancient Teachers and Masters defined a secret as that which is not known. The average human being assumes that what is not known does not exist.

Emotions are a very powerful influence in the aspirant's life, therefore, they need to be carefully studied and understood. You, the aspirant, are probably already aware of the hypnotic effect of your own negative emotions. By applying positive thinking in concrete images, this power can be used constructively. Emotions can be of different kinds, like fire and water. When one "sees red", the emotions are so powerful that they prevent clear sight. Later, upon reflection, one can observe what has happened and by a process of reasoning, balance can be re-established.

As a means of increasing your control over such disturbing emotions, do an exercise of three (3) minutes concentrating on "Water". A drop of water is like a drop of emotions: small, it can be wiped off easily. A bucket of water, if it spills, is much more work to clean up. Think of a lake as symbolizing emotions -- what is the depth? Murky water prevents clear sight to the bottom. Water takes on a shape and form of its own if it is not controlled and regulated.

Let's imagine that the eyes wander to the sky. There are some clouds screening out the sunlight. "Can I see things only in reference to myself? Then what about the clouds of my mind? What are they made of. . . . Emotions? If emotions can interfere with clear sight, then I must `look' at the emotions to keep myself from `blindness'". When blindness is physical, other senses take over and become more acute. But when the blindness is emotional, it means that one does not want to see. How many times do you say, "I don't want to know". In order to see more clearly it helps to say to yourself, "Let me look at some of my emotions like jealousy, attachment, self-pity, and the old habits of procrastination and self-justification, to name only a few.

EXERCISES IN EMOTIONS, MIND, AND ENERGY

The image of God in the mind serves the following purposes: (1) to focus attention for a longer period of concentration, (2) to refine or even develop through acts of worship (ritual practice) certain emotions such as gratitude, empathy and loyalty, and (3) to break the monotony of spiritual practice so that it goes beyond one's "time limit" (the limit of one's inclination). This means that there is at the beginning a length of time of concentration and enthusiasm, but when this is exhausted the aspirant, needs to be inspired either to make a new start or to be encouraged to continue to reach for higher and higher goals of concentration and refinement of emotions.

The next step in the cultivation of the emotions is brought about by placing in the mind the concrete image of a Deity with the Light. This is much more difficult and demands greater awareness, discrimination, and a deep sense of gratitude.

For every emotion that you experience, there is an opposite one. Think now of as many emotions as you can and find their opposites. Try to think of ways in which you can change negative emotions into positive emotions, using the following examples:

1. Gloom -- Cheerfulness
2. Anger -- Love
3. Harshness -- Mercy
4. Condemnation -- Compassion
5. Jealousy -- Trust
6. Hatred -- Charity
7. Vileness -- Purity
8. Criticism -- Acceptance

Continue the list yourself to act as reminders.

Dependencies are numerous. List them. Then realize that the process of thinking is dependent on the brain. "I" (as a personality) depend on the ability to think. Without thinking "I" do not exist, there is no awareness. "I" (as a personality) depend on discrimination to recognize illusions.
Now that you have finished the above exercise, repeat it, but this time put the emphasis on "feeling".

ADDITIONAL EXERCISES

1. Walk around a room making a circle with both arms, moving them out from the chest, extending them full length, then bringing them back about level with the navel, and then raising them up to chest height. Say aloud and listen to your own voice reinforcing, "I am functioning from my center". The reinforcement of hearing this repeated aloud is very effective. Doing this exercise ten (10) times, each and every day, will be a good reminder on other occasions when you, the aspirant, may be off-center, that it is possible to return to the center at any time it is so decided or needed.
2. See in the mind's eye some aesthetically unpleasant, or even violent, scene that may have been witnessed on television, or one involving a strong emotion such as revenge or resentment towards some individual. Imagine what you would do if you had the courage to do it. Observe the rising emotions. Repeat this exercise several times and observe any other emotions such as satisfaction at having done it, even though only in the imagination. Observe the destructiveness of the emotions of which one is capable and realize that they are not, and cannot be, justified. Consider that such emotions could be directed against yourself, and think of how you would feel if they were.
3. From the above exercise you will be able to recognize the source within yourself of forces that manifest harmfully. Now, for a proper balance and understanding, it will be necessary to create and imagine an ideal situation that is elevating, happy, and joyful. Of course, in the same way that there was a receiver of the negative, now there will be a receiver of the positive. So choose your ideal companion and observe the emotions involved in this situation.

The objective of the exercise, now that both parts have been done and the emotions have been observed, is to balance these opposites and to tone down the malevolent, as well as the benevolent emotions. To achieve this balance, the emphasis on the daily diary has to be intensified. The reflection has to result in accepting the facts as they are, with as little emotional colouring as possible.

The exercises given here can be replaced with actual people who are known to you, actual situations from the past or anticipated situations in the future.

You, the aspirant, have to take full responsibility for the cultivation of the emotions. Even one's own Higher Self is only going to cooperate if there is evidence of (1) Effort, (2) Will, and (3) Desire to achieve a higher state, beyond the ordinary.

It is necessary to develop a feeling of gratitude, so that it becomes natural and emerges on its own account. It would be wise to make a list of all the things in life that you have reason to be grateful for.

Also list the actions you have done for other people that you feel they should be grateful for, in order to examine your own need to receive gratitude from others. The renouncement of the fulfillment of your needs has to be properly understood. It is not repressing needs, it is rather controlling the fulfillment of those needs. Clarification can reduce the compelling pressures from needs. It is important not to fall into the trap of our times which advocates the fulfillment of needs. If we felt this to be essential, we would have to allow our children to have everything they wanted. What counts for the baby on the human level also counts for the spiritual body. Discrimination and self-control must be exercised. Discipline has to be accepted.

22. DREAMS

In dreams we are sometimes able to make contact with our Higher Self. The understanding of one's own dreams, and the discipline that comes with it, has extremely useful results which you, the aspirant, will discover from your Spiritual/Magickal practices. These are: (1) independence from the criticism of others, (2) independence from habitual self-assessment, and (3) the awareness of a new dimension that becomes more and more available.

As an aid in recalling your dreams, keep some paper, a pencil, and a light of some kind by your bedside. Just before going to sleep repeat to yourself, "I will remember my dream and write it down". If this is said with conviction and repeated at least ten (10) times, you will find that you will remember your dreams. Write down whatever you remember, even if it is not complete, as even fragments can carry a message. Dreams should be written down immediately after awakening. If no dream is recalled, then the first thoughts you have should be written down. A brief interpretation, even if incomplete or partial, should be noted in a separate paragraph. Another commentary that is useful to add is the events that took place, or the mental preoccupation that was present, before the dream occurred.

The daily diary can in this way be used in conjunction with the record of your dreams. The two go together like one hand washing the other.

Pay attention to how the mind functions during the sleep state, how it changes perception of time and space and the way it can shift very quickly. It is useful to ponder the meaning of time and space and the shifting of events, because, in our mind, we do the same thing in daily life. In our thoughts we move from one thing to another without being aware of doing so.

You will find it useful to incorporate the symbols that appear in your dreams into a dictionary of your own. It is wise not to consult any dream symbol books, nor to follow any particular school of dream interpretation, but to discover how that part of the mind expresses ideas over and over again in symbols that are very personal to the dreamer. With practice it becomes obvious that dreams, too, take on various levels and become more clear, more easily understood, and direct.

23. CONSCIOUSNESS, GOD, AND ENERGY

If God or an image of God is the creation of the mind, then mind should also be investigated. What is mind? And it may be practical to find out if there is a difference in meaning between mind and consciousness, or if these two terms are used interchangeably. Whatever the concept of an individual, let us agree on a starting point: Consciousness is Energy.

How can Energy be known? Its presence is recognized in its manifestations. The ancient Teachers and Masters stated that Energy and its manifestations are inseparable. Some Teachers and Masters refer to that Energy as Light, some use the term "Great Mother" as a symbol to represent Energy because, a "Mother" gives birth to the child. Energy gives birth to various creations.

This is a simple way to explain what cannot be said in the words that are used in daily communication. This is a poetic expression and poetry is the language of inspiration.

The Spiritual/Magickal Path is the pursuit of liberation from all limitations. And as I have stated before, We have to begin where we are. It has to be recognized that man's drive and inner restlessness are there, but by courageously changing the viewpoint from old established positions, something different can happen. New avenues of thought can come into focus. At first these may not be too clear and therefore they cannot be accurately defined, yet that very unclear, foggy notion puts man onto the search for the higher values in life. Maybe there is a purpose in all that happens, be it pleasant or unpleasant. In any event, it is well worth finding out.

Could it be that the Energy is one underlying force pervading all things manifest? Maybe all the effort to separate things for classifying, organizing, and recording is, if necessary at all, only a self-gratification, a need for self-importance.

AT THIS POINT, TAKE A DEEP BREATH AND DECIDE TO BEGIN THE SEARCH. Take only one step at a time to explore the new territory safely. It is like emigrating to a new country. One collects facts, as many as possible, plans wisely, and avoids undue haste. The old habit of separating, organizing, and recording is very useful in this new territory, but now it is done for the purpose of clarification of all concepts and ideas.

In this pursuit, arrogance and blindness, coupled with insensitivity to finer forces within and without, can be changed.

The Path of Enochian Magick is precise in its minute development; it is a good and safe guide to the attainment of the higher Self.

If, at this point, the aspirant cannot say what Enochian Magick is, he or she can anticipate results from following certain instructions. By recording thoughts, dreams, daily events, and, most important, the outcome of those instructions (all of which mirror what you are), you can anticipate the next step, nourished and encouraged to pursue the Spiritual/Magickal Path.

In this way, the aspirant comes to personal conclusions and learns to accept that these, too, are constantly changing as the process goes on. This would mean limiting what is Unlimited. Enochian Magick includes all aspects and characteristics of the human being. There is Divinity in all of us, the difference lies only in the degree of that awareness. To achieve greater awareness is what Enochian Magick is all about.

What about the unhappiness, confusion, and tragedy in the world? We must understand that all human drama, joyful or tragic, is but a means to the expansion of consciousness -- to realize the imperishable Divine SELF.

If one has learned to read and write, one has power over those who do not. Any position of power can lead to abuse. If one has money, one has power over the poor. If one has awareness, one has power over the sleepwalker. All powers are a temptation. If there is a latent weakness in the personal makeup of an individual, power will lead to corruption, whatever the power is. We know about the balance of power in world affairs -- if the balance is tipped, wars result. In our own lives, the balance of our positive and negative characteristics and ambitions is important, and the constant interplay of forces between the senses and the levels of consciousness must be controlled if the power is to be used wisely, in our own development and in the service of others.

The warnings about the practice of Enochian Magick, particularly without careful and dedicated study, are well founded. Carelessness will exact its price. When one cleans a gun and does not remove the bullets, somebody may be killed. Disregarding traffic signals may cause several cars to crash. Not listening to instructions, so that one can follow them precisely, will lead to problems on any spiritual path. There is no need to be fearful about the Path of Enochian Magick when it is practiced carefully and with scrupulous attention being paid to following each and every instruction precisely.

The Absolute will remain in the far distance as long as one struggles with concepts about the different aspects of Enochian Magick or God. It is like seeing a huge mountain in the distance, the snow-capped peak instills an awesome feeling and a desire to get there. Yet, as one begins to climb, sight of the peak is quickly obscured. The emotional reaction that one might be lost can turn to fear. One must have faith that the Path will lead to the top. Even the experienced mountaineer will occasionally encounter a feeling of fear. Courage does not drop into one's lap. Courage is gathered by overcoming fear. Faith is not gained unless one is willing to accept the darkness.

If one can know Enochian Magick only by experience, then what kind of experiences are they? As has already been pointed out, these experiences are individual and words are inadequate to describe them. But they can inspire the readers or listeners to experience their own.

An important practice such as the Enochian Invocation of the Light, which is given among the instructions in Section Two of these writings, will bring about a unique experience. Careful observation will show that the first "groves" of the old mental record have to be changed so that the nervous system can get used to a different rate of vibration, in the same way that one has to learn to sing in a higher octave. The voice does not jump there, but has to be trained and become flexible to expand its present limitation to reach the higher notes.

The question, What is Enochian Magick, what is this Cosmic Force, does have an answer. But the answer goes on expanding according to the level of understanding from which the question is posed. The answer comes also in that particular language that is unique to the questioner, in the same way that for one person God is a Supreme Being, for another God is the Energy in the atom, and to yet another, God is the Light which shines forth from an Incorruptible Flame.

24. POWERS OF THE MIND

Now that the beginnings of a foundation have been laid, some development will take its own course and bring about new experiences. Development takes place all the time, usually without the awareness and understanding of the individual. It is circumstances which force this process, which is long and slow in the ordinary course of life. You, the aspirant, must aim at conscious cooperation, which is like cleaning out the cupboards of the mind, taking down from the shelves old accumulated concepts that have collected dust over the years without yielding any benefits. This process makes "space" for extraordinary experiences which may be psychic or spiritual.

When the Enochian Invocation of the Light Ritual is performed, with the utmost attention, it will bring indescribable results. For instance, you may experience the body as a mass of Light, or the sudden expansion of the head or the whole body. When this happens for the first time some discomfort or even anxiety may follow, since this is something of which you have had no previous personal experience. Psychic happenings are intriquing and you can easily get caught up in them. At this point, you are probably asking yourself, "How do they come about?"

Everyone functions primarily through one of the five senses and it thereby becomes dominant, by choice or by circumstance. Therefore, it is through this sense, which has become trained and heightened in perception, that a psychic manifestation comes about. However, the experiences themselves are not a source of the continuous flow of energy needed to pursue further personal development. A psychic experience is seldom a strong enough inspiration to bring about continuing self-development, greater awareness, expanded consciousness, or the attainment to the Higher Self. The terms "clairvoyance" and "clairaudience" mean clear sight and clear hearing, not necessarily character development.

At this point in your training, both psychic and spiritual experiences can take place, which makes an understanding of the difference between the two a necessity. The spiritual experience is unforgettable. It cannot be repeated at will, and becomes the source of energy to further one's development in becoming truly a Master of Self. The spiritual experience is a sustaining energy that keeps flowing throughout the course of one's life. This is not the case with any type of manifestation of psychic energy. Psychic experiences have no particular after-effects, except a stimulation as from anything enjoyable that one can repeat.

Explicit recall (memory) is a practice that takes time and effort, yet it is a necessity to develop this, not only to recall dreams as precisely as possible, including all details and feelings while dreaming, but also to recall events. Recall and observation go hand in hand. You, the aspirant, should concentrate on recalling important events, particularly in regard to personal development, feelings, hunches, and insights in order to have an increase of those experiences that are valuable for understanding the mind in its various activities. To illustrate this point, if a muscle is exercised, its strength increases. If insights are acted upon, more insights (often of increasing importance) will come. Hunches and insights are evidence of increased sensitivity and when pursued will lead to a higher degree of perception, by which other mental processes can also be understood and expanded.

Memory increases when you are interested in the subject. Memory does not diminish with age, but age leads to differentiation of what is important to remember and what is not.

Recall and observation are very important because of thought association, which is recall of the past. Together with observation in the present you, the aspirant, can gain a clear understanding of your reactions. For instance, a certain person's facial expression, colour of hair or eyes, type of clothes, or mannerisms, may bring back the memory of someone else and perhaps a situation connected with an entirely different person. Sometimes these thought associations are very clear and sometimes they are barely recognizable, only making their presence known by a mood that may leave the individual puzzled.

An illustration of a small incident which everyone experiences will help with the understanding of certain powers of the mind. Two people in the same room may voice the same thing at the same time, because they had the same thought. However, most people are unfortunately only temporarily amused and do not consider the very extensive influence of the interplay of the mental forces of and by those around us. An example of this is when one finds that a friend or neighbour comes repeatedly into the mind. It should not then be a surprise to be contacted by that individual. If observation has been practiced, many such things will already have emerged. These qualities of mind are present in everyone. One can become aware of these abilities, increase them, and finally exercise them in a conscious way.

The Spiritual/Magickal practices leading to awareness and control of the mind, keeping the mind single-pointed, receptive, and on the Higher Self, lead to such mental powers as clairaudience and clairvoyance. Telepathic communication between some practitioners of Enochian Magick is not at all unusual.

Only when we do not pay attention to what happens do we think that some people are gifted with phenomenal powers in these areas, which from a Magickal point of view are quite common. We do not see anything phenomenal in such contact between a mother and child, or a husband and wife.

What makes the manifestation of these mental powers so unusual is that the carrousel of the conversations in the mind has been stopped. The energy that keeps the carrousel going is easily traced back to self-justification, self-glorification, and self-gratification. This kind of wrong preoccupation with self is a great stumbling block. The still, small voice is drowned out by the carrousel of the mind. Flashes of awareness, flashes of insight, moments of inspiration, are brief because the space in the mind is already filled to capacity.

Let's ask some questions, and listen to the answers from within:

1. Do the cells of the body have a consciousness of their own?
2. What triggers in the mind a memory of pain?
3. What triggers in the mind a memory of a need?
4. Is the mind the manager, assuming authority by suggestion?
5. Is the mind the manager, assuming authority by determination?
6. Is the mind the manager, assuming authority by self-hypnosis?
7. What makes up the many details and events of our lives?
8. What else would be responsible for the interplay of these forces?

In technological inventions man has recreated his own abilities with greater accuracy and a wider range of functioning than he has discovered in himself. It is doubtful that man could invent anything that is not in some way already existing in himself. He could only invent the camera because of the example of his own eyes. Television could not have been developed if the mind had not shown it was possible. The greatest obstacle to self-discovery is lack of mental discipline. The concentration exercises aimed at single-pointedness of mind should have a superior position in the daily schedule. The ability to surrender opinions, preconceived ideas, means being able to relax the mind. To achieve a state of mind that is truly relaxed one has to begin on the physical level. The body and mind will relax simultaneously in steps when supported by breathing exercises, which create the necessary conditions for complete relaxation. this state of relaxation and receptivity of the mind is a necessary prerequisite for obtaining the awareness of spiritual inspiration which will provide the spring to nourish continued development.

DOUBT

Doubts, like clouds, sail on the mental horizon occasionally. They can be dark and heavy, or small and wispy. Sometimes they disappear, but often return unnoticed because of an influx of new experiences. The mind, often not able to deal with experiences of psychic or spiritual content, is tempted to premature assessment which contributes to doubt. It is wise to suspend all judgment and wait things out.

A record should now be kept, giving as many details as possible of any unusual experiences. Spiritual/Magickal practice is a positive way to clear doubts. Then limitations created by doubt will be only temporary, not binding, if we do not insist on drawing conclusions from incomplete observations.

Doubt can be either healthy or destructive, depending on the attitude of the aspirant. If doubt is destructive it can result in a depressive mood; it can open the back door to allow escape from the previously assumed responsibility and commitment. Impatience and restlessness create doubt, but be warned that both can prevent certain spiritual powers from developing. Remember that impatience is an expression of arrogance of some sort which, if allowed to linger, will undermine faith, hope, and will, and only strengthen the moods of depression. Arrogance is of the ego and is therefore destructive.

Healthy doubt stimulates questioning which allows expansion of awareness and a widening of horizons on which the Light of spiritual life will continue to burn.

Every now and then the wind of imagination creates waves on the surface of the waters of the mind and the boat is rocked by doubt. But persistence to follow the set course will give strength to weather the storm. Each victory then becomes a new source of strength from which one can draw when another storm arises. but one also learns to keep more and more control on emotions and imagination, thus the waves lose their power in due time. Faith thereby becomes a self-generating energy that is at one's disposal when needed. Faith practiced becomes strengthened.

OBSERVATION

There is power in knowledge, one's personal knowing, which is inner wisdom. The process of attaining that wisdom is a long one on the Spiritual/Magickal Path of Enochian Magick. Concentration on ideals, keeping the mind fixed on these qualities, together with daily meditation, practice, and straight-forward thinking, will lead to that wisdom. It is necessary to be able to break away from the crowd, free oneself of the conditioning of upbringing, and stand alone on one's two feet, responsible only to the inner authority. The practice of straight-forward thinking, getting straight to the point, while reflecting on the events of the day, then using the spiritual diary to record these observations, helps in the process of becoming self-reliant.

Man's unexplainable desire to believe in the occult, religion or mysticism may stem from an inner knowing that there is a Power greater than man. This knowing then starts creating the tantalizing questions -- where did I come from? -- who am I?

During sleep, sensations are perceived on a different level of consciousness. They seem to emanate from a plane of finer forces. All Spiritual/Magickal practice aims at sensitizing our gross senses so that we can become aware of these finer forces. We must not be in a hurry to allow the gross mind to translate the perception into something understandable just for the sake of mental security.

One way to increase that perception is to use the imagination and bring Light into the Heart. Once the Light reaches the Heart, it will then be possible to reach a level of intuitive perception when, by first invoking and then projecting the inner Light, the personality will disappear. When this happens, the listener perceives only what comes through the Light.

As a result of the sensitizing and refinement of the senses and the practice of control of the energies thus revealed, an energy field around the body can be produced which is strong enough to prevent the passerby from seeing the physical presence. In other words, "A" can produce an energy field strong enough to become invisible to "B". It is like jamming a radio station with an interfering overlay of sound. The body of "A" does not actually disappear, but the state of mind of "B" is being affected like a person in shock who cannot clearly see or think. The senses are temporarily out of order.

The creation, use, and control of the energy in the energy field and its increase become understood during periods of Spiritual/Magickal practice.

As an aspirant, on the Spiritual/Magickal Path, there is one thing that you must fully understand and accept with absolutely no doubts: "The Mind is a Miniature Universe, therefore, the Universe is an Expansion of the Mind".

Control of the mind means control of your thoughts.

1. Can you change the pattern of your thoughts?
2. Do you have thoughts that are self-destructive?
3. If so, can you subdue them?
4. By what means?

Thoughts are reproductive, like seeds.

1. What kind of thoughts do you want to plant in your mind?

Become aware when you and another person have the same thoughts. Try to find out how this came about and observe if these influences can be brought about at will. Watch how you do it.

Your mind has a drawing power.

1. Where does your mind draw you?
2. Does it draw you to something desirable and uplifting?
3. Does it take you beyond the physical/emotional level?
4. Does it draw you to the SELF?

Think about recall of different states of mind:

1. When do I have these states of mind?
2. At what time?
3. What are the cycles of my mind?
4. Have I had any hunches?
5. What is the difference between hunches and intuitive perception?

Think about promises:

1. What are the promises I have made to other people?

2. Have I fulfilled them?
3. What are the promises I have made to myself?

Watch any aspects of today, the past or the future in your dreams. Write down what you recall of dreams you had three months or six months ago and compare them with your original notes.

1. Now watch yourself falling asleep.
2. Can you take an active part in this?
3. Can you redirect your dreams or stop an unpleasant dream?
4. Watch how you do this.

Now consider your moods:

1. Watch your moods three (3) times a day and record them in your diary.
2. Assess your moods -- 10 to the lowest, 100 to the highest.
3. See what your cycles are.
4. Compare surrendering to a mood with resisting one.
5. Observe moods, thoughts, and habits.
6. Recognize the difference between habitual and spontaneous responses connected with the mood.
7. Recall how this happens.
8. Spontaneous responses have to be watched like the habitual ones, three (3) times a day.

Observe the stimulations of the moment.

1. Separate ordinary events from inspirations (of a Divine nature).

The mind has to be controlled in order to free it from its own inherent doubts. They create the need for security. Over-simplification and reluctance to reach beyond the ordinary have put reason and logic on the throne from generation to generation. this emphasis has become a self-perpetuating indulgence to meet the demands for security. It has kept people comfortable and so it has prevented the expansion of old limits and thereby the discovery of new territory and new possibilities.

25. THE MIND AND HEALING

The power of healing attracts many aspirants to the Spiritual/Magickal Path of Enochian Magick. When the aspirant has gained control over the emotions and cultivated them into finer feelings, compassion will be allowed, in due time, to find true expression. When you desire to help because help is needed, rather than for rewards of any kind or for sentimental reasons, then your desire has the right basis. It is far more likely that a healing will take place when motivated by noble feelings such as compassion. However, many more aspects come into both success and failure in healing.

If you have become aware of the power of the Enochian Invocation of the Light, then you will recognize the interplay of forces. This contributes a great deal to understanding the functioning of the processes which are needed to gain conscious control of various energies. Opinions, concepts, beliefs are all loosened up through the daily practice of the Enochian Invocation of the Light, gradually becoming ethereal as the firmness dissolves into Light. This is much more than increased flexibility. Do not miss the subtlety that is expressed by the word "Light".

Meanings of words will become more and more elusive. This is inevitable when more subtle regions are reached.
When one desires healing for oneself or others, a few questions come up about the energies involved:
1. Does healing have anything to do with the mind?
2. Does healing have anything to do with the heart?
3. What is it that heals?
4. Is another person needed to assist in healing?
5. Does one have healing power within oneself?
By asking numerous questions and trying to find the answers, we grow in understanding and knowledge.
When healing is being considered, the healer must find out how the illness came about. If there has been a continuous violation of some physical principles which has led to the breakdown of health, spiritual healing might be successful only once, if at all. In this case, the person should be properly instructed in taking care of the body and observing the laws under which it will stay healthy. If these are neglected, trust in spiritual healing will be weakened both in the healer and in the one who is ill. It is rare that illness is sudden. It is more likely that preoccupation of the mind with other concerns has been more intense, so that early signs of breakdown in the body have gone unnoticed. Pain is a great teacher, and illness is often the only way to become truly grateful for health and to see the healthy body as a precious instrument that should be well taken care of.
The attitude of the sick person might be a reason why spiritual healing could not take place. It could fail if there were no will to live, no purpose to life which would give the motivation, or if the purpose had not been grasped, or if the person believed that he or she was to great a "sinner" to deserve to be healed.
Add to this all the psychological advantages of love and attention that go with being ill, and it become obvious that there could be little or nothing to promote healing.
So, as you can see, the mental and emotional preparation of ill persons is very important. This means that there has to be real concern, not sentiment, to help them to help themselves and to understand some aspects of their predicament. There has to be the cooperation of the desire to be well and the will to live a purposeful life. The healer has to inspire and reinforce these positive thoughts. Emotions, play a very important part in the healer and in the ill person. There have to be cultivated emotions, feelings of deep gratitude (whether to a God, or a Higher Power) on the part of the person being healed for regained health and on the part of the healer for the privilege of being a channel which accomplishes the healing. Gratitude, being one of the finest of human feelings, plays an important part in the practice and the results.
Is healing a power of the mind? Or is healing accomplished by Divine Grace?

Looking at the various powers of the mind, it becomes obvious that there is no simple and direct answer to these questions. Illness is a combination or, to use a now familiar term, an interplay of forces. The genuine concern of the healer can be a subtle suggestion, or, if there is a powerful personality involved, it can be a powerful suggestion, which will lift the self-image and infuse hew hope into a purposeless life. This regenerates the healing forces that are uniquely individual in everyone. Confidence, trust, hope, the will to live, and the view of a goal or purpose are some of the basic principles involved. As a plant requires certain conditions to grow, so the human "plant", when its basic requirements are met, will grow into a normal healthy human being.

It is now necessary to see that there is another factor in healing that we will call "spiritual". The process of life itself, be it a plant, an animal or a human being, is still an unanswered mystery. A healer is a person who has an awareness and perception of those forces that promote healing or correct what is detrimental to health. This awareness makes its possible for the healer to let this Energy flow through and direct it to the person who is in need of additional Energy that will correct the weakness in the body.

The Enochian Invocation of the Light Ritual has the proper combination of all that is necessary to bring about a healing, either spontaneously or by repetition. In the practice of the Enochian Invocation of the Light, there has to be a true feeling of compassion and total involvement on the part of the healer, which communicates itself to the sick person. Sometimes psychological problems have to be removed first. There has to be a healing in the mind before a healing can take place in the body. It is essential that the healer refrain from determining how the healing should take place in order for the forces invoked by the Enochian Invocation of the Light to flow and set in motion what is necessary for a particular individual. Geographical distance need not be a barrier to healing. The ill person may be 10,000 miles away, but our old space/time concept should not prevent us from attempting to help.

At the moment when the needy person is deeply relaxed and in a state of surrender (perhaps because of weakness) he or she becomes receptive and thereby allows the Energy to flow and do its work. The healer must observe and understand the state of surrender and deep relaxation. If such a state cannot be achieved while awake, it will naturally take place when the individual falls asleep. In the following three hours, after the person is asleep, when there is a dropping from the conscious level to the unconscious, the body is extremely receptive to repeated suggestions of healing directed toward its own resources. This, in itself, may lead to a healing in some cases. The efforts described may have to be repeated over a period of from one to three months. It must be realized that in some circumstances healing may not be best for the whole person. The forces of the Enochian Invocation of the Light cannot be told what to do, but immeasurable benefits will be derived whatever the visible results.

The power of faith and hope should not be underestimated. They are also forms of energy which can be increased with concern and involvement brought about by the dedicated and daily practice of the Enochian Invocation of the Light Ritual.

26. HUMILITY AND GRATITUDE

Humility and gratitude go hand in hand. The feeling of gratitude is an interaction between the mind and the body. Both will benefit from it. Awareness increases so that we become grateful for everything we are given. We have to learn, literally learn, to be grateful for what we receive day by day, simply to balance the criticism that, day by day, we voice because of powerful emotions. When the question of initiation comes up for some aspirants, it may not be considered because they are not grateful for what they have already received, therefore they should have no more.
In ancient Buddhist tradition the disciple gave 100,000 prostrations to develop humility -- a virtue that was thus expressed appropriately through the body. Today, some people will say, "But I feel I have gratitude and humility, so what is wrong?" You may think and feel you have gratitude, but if you never express it, does it have any meaning?
When you have helped a friend over and over again, but no gratitude has ever been expressed, you may wonder what you are doing and if you are wasting your time and energy. But perhaps you are unable to recognize your friend's love and gratitude because they are not expressed according to your expectations -- because your friend's spontaneous expression of those feelings is not an echo of your own. A good sense of discrimination is necessary to see through all the games and tricks our mind and emotions play.
What else can one do to cultivate gratitude and humility? The East Indians use the worship of the Guru, which appeals only to some people. But this "act" of worship has very good psychology behind it. People have an inborn desire to admire and worship. They look for an example after which they can mold themselves. False gods such as success, food, sex, possessions, unproven beliefs, and personal convictions are often worshipped until there is an awakening to their emptiness.
Another way to develop gratitude is to truly look at yourself, so that you can see the marvel of this human body and the intricacy of the sensitive organs. Be grateful to have the full use of your senses through which you perceive all that is around you, the world and the beauty of nature. Appreciate the strong body and the state of good health that you enjoy.
What has been said so far only scratches the surface. It is meant to stimulate your mind into the kind of thinking from which you will benefit. The mind is always so active scheming to fulfill selfish desires that those shy and modest thoughts of gratitude and humility get pushed into the background. We allow the mind to be stimulated by all sorts of things that often prove to be useless, even detrimental, to our mental and emotional well-being. Thoughtlessly we establish bad habits and allow those to remain, then cry when we experience the pain of our own carelessness. We even interpret this as an unfair destiny, entirely missing the point that we have laid our own traps and we have to take responsibility for those acts. In the course of life there are many little "miracles" but our hearts are so hardened that we don't pay any attention, instead we take things for granted. Yet we never allow anyone to take us for granted. When this happens, we protest loudly.

The lengthy prayers, invocation, evocations, and rituals used in Enochian Magick fulfill this function -- the cultivation of the finer feelings and the acknowledgement of those Spiritual/Magickal Beings and Forces who are helping us to gain insights and to travel the narrow Path with faith and endurance, in humility and gratitude.

27. SYNOPSIS OF EXERCISES

Up to this point you, the aspirant, have been given many details and carefully outlined steps for exercises to guide you along your chosen Path. Hopefully, all of these details and exercises have been helpful in giving you direction. But now, these varied details and exercises are beginning to change their levels of meaning.

You, the aspirant, have arrived at a crossroad. A large portion of the work has been done and the changes in you may have resulted in attracting different people, people of like mind who offer support. At this point it will be necessary to review your ideals to discover if some require refining and escalating from what was originally established. Others may need more intensive application. This can be accomplished with the help of a review of your daily diary which has become a valuable chart of your progress and development. This process of evaluation will provide the base for mapping out the next step on your Spiritual/Magickal Path. Special care must now be taken in applying your new awareness to daily life. You will notice changes that have taken place in your self-image and thus recognize your ability to develop in the directions you have decided upon. This recognition can provide the enthusiasm needed for your continued development.

A question that may be appropriate for you to ask yourself at this particular stage of your development is "What is a true friend?" What would be the characteristics of a person that a seeker on the Spiritual/Magickal Path can call "my best friend"? As a starting point, you can ask "What were the characteristics of my best friend up to this point?"

1. Somebody to do things with?
2. Someone with whom little favours were exchanged?
3. Someone to talk about the job or business with?
4. Someone in whom comfort or sympathy could be found?

At this crossroad it may now appear that those characteristics of friendship are no longer sufficient, and perhaps the friend of the past is in fact no more than a very good acquaintance. So, the list of characteristics of one's friend would look quite different now.

What qualities do you now need in a friend?

1. Acceptance?
2. Discussion?
3. Support of:

a. Ideas that specifically come up in the Spiritual/ Magickal life?
b. Times of uncertainty and doubt?
c. Temporary instability?
d. Continuous questioning and searching?

These things require a friend with depth of character, understanding, and someone who will, in the moment of doubt, not drag you away from the Goal, but rather give support to your commitment and help you to bring out the best in yourself.

It takes sensitivity and awareness to bring out the best in someone else, to be a best friend. The choice of friends and the extent to which one criticizes others are reflections of self-image. Improved self-image, and a beneficial kind of self-perception, comes from seeking out and releasing the "Inner Divinity" within your heart.

The Enochian Invocation of the Light makes the greatest contribution to the change of self-image because of the aspirants identification of, and joining with, the "Divinity" within the Light.

Enochian Rituals are an ever-living embodiment of Power and Truth. They are another important tool in changing self-image. It doesn't matter whether the voice is strong or feeble. What is important, however, is the underlying "emotion-desire-longing" which, when given expression through the reciting of Enochian Rituals, becomes a magnet attracting a Higher Force. This Higher Force will someday spark a "flame" deep within you , and that "inner flame" will ultimately develop into a self-generating force.

By using these tools with attention and concentration you can affect the images of the mind.

1. The mind is ever creating -- what?
2. That which is created -- what happens to it?
3. The mind creates beautiful images (manifesting them or not).
4. The mind creates ugly images (manifesting them or not).

Now that you have examined the characteristics of a best friend and your own self-image, it is time to investigate if you have the qualities yourself to become someone else's best friend.

Character building in oneself is what attracts or makes one worthy of another person who is also building character. From the review of the ideals and the diary, it should now be clear what you need to cultivate. Personality changes take place according to the strength of the desire to achieve the Goal.

Here you should once more go over the exercises on negative qualities and their positive opposites, bringing in your newly developed awareness. Listing such qualities and feelings makes clear the subtlety of the obstacles one encounters.

When emotions arise, catch them, look at them, take the power out of them, and then withdraw your identification from them. This practice takes time, but it may be better than to struggle with them. It is harmful, even destructive, to suppress your emotions or to deny their existence. Transform them into refined feelings. If the emotions have erupted before your awareness could catch them, replay the situation and take the position of an onlooker. This will help you to become detached.
Emotions are attached to certain personality aspects -- the "Self" is always only the Witness.
Desires arise from the memories of experiences of the past. They are also projections into the future. Selfish desires are outgrowths from competition and comparisons. Whatever the root of these desires, cut them off before it is too late.
Discrimination serves very well as a tool of selective elimination, because not all desires are detrimental to one's growth. A desire to grow in character and spirituality is necessary for growth to take place.
Desires have to carefully evaluated. What can one do about old desires manifesting when one has progressed beyond that point? Pray. Ask that the desires that accompanied a lesser state of development will not be fulfilled. With a greater awareness of needs there is a greater attempt to simplify life in order to remove all possible distractions from the chosen Path.
Renunciation of desires can be achieved without pain and frustration if the contents or the fulfillment of them is well reasoned out. Leaving them to the emotions means that the attachment is still there, that one really wants this or that, but is denying oneself. It is important to make a list of desires, to look at each, and to evaluate with discrimination.
Negative thoughts, if left unattended, depleted of energy, will die by themselves, like a plant without nourishment. However, the control of thoughts has to be preceded by control of the body and the speech. Here are a few methods to help with the control and cultivation of speech.
1. Choose subjects carefully.
2. Avoid stimulating talk about sex.
3. Avoid stimulating talk about money.
4. Avoid stimulating talk about various pleasures.

Realize that you lay your own traps by indulging in careless conversation. It is this carelessness that is the beginning of temptation.
Another investigation to be made at this time concerns the core of beliefs of which you may or may not have been aware. Part of the process of clarification that is now necessary is to discover beliefs and where they come from. Beware of mindless conformity.
The Spiritual/Magickal Path of Enochian Magick means personal responsibility. Clarification of such words as "Sympathy", "Kindness", "Compassion", and "Understanding", leads to acceptance of others and then to an inner union in oneself.
Pay attention to what people really think and whether they say what they think, or if they make you guess. Do you get a message that is different from the words? Do you say what you think, or do you imply and insinuate? How does this go with straight-forward thinking?

You must fully comprehend the important words you use. Make a list of them, clarify their meaning, and note the way you use them. The following list is by no means complete. A minimum of five (5) minutes should be given to each single word, first thinking about and then writing down the meaning. Do not use books written by others. You must take responsibility for what is meant.

1. Perspective
2. Thought
3. Concentration
4. Memory
5. Observation
6. Imagination
7. Learning
8. Humor
9. Discrimination

44. Knowledge (Spiritual)
45. Visions (Earthly)
46. Visions (Spiritual)

At a later point in your development and practice of Enochian Magick, this exercise should be repeated and notes compared to ascertain that your horizon has expanded. By repetition of this exercise understanding grows in depth and becomes refined. All perceptions go through a process of refinement. Each, and every, aspirant should extend this list of words to include those that are frequently used, in order to gain the maximum benefit.

Continue this process of clarification with questions such as:

1. How is pain experienced?
2. What is my concept of Energy in general?
3. What is my concept of Energy in the body?
4. What is my concept of Energy in the brain (because it records all sensations like pain)?
5. What is my concept of Divine Energy?
6. Do I consider Light as a by-product of Energy? or
7. Do I consider Energy as a by-product of Light?
8. What is my concept of consciousness?
9. How does consciousness function in the brain?

Phrases like the following are common in everyday speech. Think what they mean to you and then add to the list yourself:

1. Touch and go.
2. A finishing touch.
3. A touching scene.
4. A touching person.
5. A touching tone of voice.
6. A soft touch.
7. Touch with the eyes.
8. Touch my heart.
9. As soft as butter.
10. As hard as nails.
11. See how it feels.

Such expressions are very revealing in their use.

In these three sections you, the aspirant, have become aware that attitude is extremely important. The preparation for the practice of Enochian Magick is control of the mind. The right attitude and motives result in the clear conscience that is necessary to receive intuitive and spiritual wisdom. The heightened perception of the five senses on which this depends is only possible through proper and continued practice. In all Spiritual/Magickal practice, surrender has to be stressed. One has to learn to accept criticism and must forego self-justification.

The Spiritual/Magickal Path of Enochian Magick requires a more discriminating and deeper understanding of yourself and the world around you. It is only through this deeper understanding that you will continue to grow with greater sensitivity. An example of this follows:

"Know your SELF, then and only then, Be your SELF"

Examine your SELF and understand who you are,

how you live,
and what will become of you.
For whosoever does not know SELF does not know anything, but whosoever knows SELF already has acquired knowledge about the depth of the universe.

The time has arrived for you, the aspirant, to be formally introduced to the world of Enochian Magick. Therefore, I recommend that you read the following books, in the order that they are given:
